OUR 56TH YEAR | 10¢ PER COPY | SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI, THURSDAY, AUGUST 17, 1967 | NUMBER 277

By The Associated Press

Tall timber, beaver pelts, and faithful huskies pulling trappers and traders across the Yukon tundra -- that may have been Canada's image in the far past.

But Canada today, 100 years after confederation, has far more to offer than frontier products. It is the second largest country in the world, after the Soviet Union, the home of about 20 million people, and the site of a burst of new economic activity.

The Yukon is full of life: a new copper mine has been found, and surveyors are plotting a road to link the Arctic Ocean with the Pacific. And if you're hoping to see canadian trappers and traders, your best bet may be Expo 67 -- Canada's enormous international exhibition.

To be sure, problems still beset Canada. French Canadian unrest, highlighted by De Gaulle's recent visit, could disrupt communications, transportation and industry if Quebec province ever seceded. This is not expected to occur, but De Gaulle's cry of "Long Live Free Quebec" was cheered by some of Canada's 6.5 million French-speaking inhabitants.

Canada is still heavily in debt to foreign investors, and the country depends more and more on imports from the United States--70 per cent of 1965's incoming trade. But Canada's production is diversified and the whole economy is a far cry from the days when fish and furs constituted the little trade that existed.

Prospectors scrounging for gold in Northwest Territories streams are a thing of the past; gold production as a whole is slipping in Canada. But even with the gold rush played out, Canada has the highest per capita mineral output of any country in the world.

The nation now leads this hemisphere in producing nickel, zinc, platinum - group metals, and asbestos. Canadians are mining a rich iron - ore in Quebec - Labrador, developing a potash boom in Saskatchewan, and discovering new strikes in British Columbia -- where about 25 mines (assorted mineral have been developed since 1960).

Oil is another source of wealth for Canada -- and has been since 1958, when Ontario brought in North America's first oil well.

A 1947 oil discovery in Alberta set the pace for post-war economic boom in Canada's west. Successive strikes have spurred pipeline construction, new settlement, transportation links, and foreign investment.

The rush is still on. One oil corporation just paid a record price for oil rights at Zama Lake, in Alberta. And another is now drilling Canada's first offshore oil test--on a mobile platform in the Pacific, off Vancouver Island.

Transportation has had its own boom, close on the heels of western expansion.

The $470 million St. Lawrence Seaway and the $1 billion Trans - Canada Highway, both completed within the last ten years, tie the western regions to the east and to trading partners beyond. New railway lines are taking over where the dogsleds used to run -- opening up to the not - so - desolate north to bring out loads of ore.

As for the driver of the dog-sled -- he appears to have traded in the rough - and - tumble life for the culture circuit. The Stratford Shakespeare Festival, in Ontario, spent its first season in a circus tent; now it boasts a 2,200 - seat theater. A $40 million national arts center is under construction in Ottawa, with completion scheduled for 1968.

And another "cultural" happening, Expo 67, has turned into a major economic miracle on its own -- with attendance already past 25 million.

Desertion Report Disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara quickly dismissed today a London report that the desertion rate among U.S. soldiers in Germany is running at about 1,000 this year, and three-fourths were primarily concerned with avoiding duty in Vietnam.

"Sheer nonsense," McNamara called the report.

McNamara's reaction to the report was passed to reporters by Pentagon spokesman.

The Times of London stated that an international underground network was helping American soldiers desert rather than fight in Southeast Asia.

The Pentagon said top Army officials in Europe had been aware for some time of stories about an anti-Vietnam group aiding deserters but said these stories "have been greatly exaggerated."

"Their activities have had little or no effect on absenteeism," the Pentagon said, adding there has been no appreciable increase in the numbers of soldiers failing to report back to duty.

Army headquarters in Europe currently lists 338 men as long-term absentees." There are more than 225,000 Army men in Germany.

At the same time, the Pentagon pointed out that so far this year 10,500 servicemen in Europe have volunteered for Vietnam assignments. Last year the total was over 14,000, the Pentagon said.

The Times said about three-quarters of the 1,000 soldiers were primarily concerned with avoiding combat.

"As the Vietnam war grows, so does the number of deserters and the activity of groups aiding them-which often use the techniques of waretime resistance movements," the paper said.

The Times said its figures were based on an investigation in Europe. The U.S. did not provide figures on what it told the Times was a slight but insignificant rise in the absentee rate.

At Heidelberg, Germany, a spokesman for the U.S. army headquarters in Europe called the London Times report grossly exaggerated." He said the Army's present list of long-term absentees totals 338 persons, some dating back several years.

This figure was regarded as minimal in view of the fact that the Army has more than 200,000 troops in Europe.

Policy Rights Outlined

WASHINGTON (AP)- Undersecretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach told Congress today that the President has the top foreign affairs power under the Constitution. "and I doubt that any president has ever acted to the full limits of that authority."

Katzenbach, a former attorney general, at the same time said congressional support and authority is helpful to the President in carrying out foreign policy.

Katzenbach outlined the Johnson administration's stand before the Senate Foreign Relations committeemen who are looking into the question of whether President Johnson has overstepped his constitutional powers in such actions as sending U.S. forces to Vietnam.

The committee is headed by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., a critic of Johnson's Vietnam policy.

Katzenbach testified the United States would be using "outmoded phraseology" if it declared war in the Vietnam conflict.

"A declaration of war would greatly mis-state our objectives and be greatly misunderstood," Katzenbach said. "It would not, I think, reflect correctly the very limited objectives of the United States with respect to Vietnam to use an outmoded phraseology, to declare war."

Any such declaration presumably would be aimed against North Vietnam, although neither Katzenbach nor the committee members said so.

Katzenbach said Congress had its opportunity to pass on the use of American forces in Vietnam when it adopted a resolution on Aug. 7, 1964, authorizing President Johnson to repel attacks and prevent further aggression.

He said that resolution— usually called the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution— permitted Congress to fulfill its consitutional role in acting upon the use of American forces overseas and in helping to shape American policy.

"What could a declaration of war done that would have given the President clearer authority?" Katzenbach asked.

"I think that's one of the difficulties now," said Fulbright. "We're not quite sure which government you're waging war against."

Katzenbach flared. "The Congress knew the authority it was giving the president to use the armed forces," he told Fulbright.

Fulbright disagreed. He said the resolution was adopted in an atmosphere of emergency after Communist attacks on U.S. warships. "The general policy as to waging a war there was against it," he said.

Katzenbach contended that the Constitution's drafters "recognized that the voice of the United States in foreign affairs was that of the President" and "throughout our history the focus has always been upon the President."

Churchill Memorial Nears Completion

FULTON, Mo. (AP)- The three-year job of moving and restoring the 17th century stone church of St. Mary the Virgin Aldermanbury from London to the campus of Westminster College here is nearing completion.

This week five large bells are being installed atop the 160-foot tower of the chapel which is a memorial to the late Sir Winston Churchill who made his famous Iron Curtain speech at the college March 5, 1946. The bells will be electronically operated from a four-faced clock and will ring out the classic Westminster chimes every hour from 6 a.m. until midnight.

Starting in 1964, the church stood at Love Lane and Aldermanbury street in London, has been transported stone by stone to the Westminster campus in Fulton. The church was designed by Sir Christopher Wren in 1666 to replace one that burned on the same spot. The church was largely gutted by German bombs in the blitz of London in 1941.

David Stinson, Westminster college vice president and director of the Churchill Memorial project, said it began as "in honor of the speech Churchill made here . . . after he died it became more a memorial to the man than to the speech.

In the speech, with President Harry S. Truman in the audience, Churchill made a plea for solidarity of English speaking nations and support for the United Nations. And he added: "From Stettin in the Baltic to Trieste in the Adriatic an Iron Curtin has descended across the continent. Behind that line lie all the capitals of the ancient states of Central and Eastern Europe in what I must call the Soviet sphere."

Four More Bodies Found As Flood Begins Receding

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — The brown flood waters of the Chena River receded today, but at a pace so slow that the city's 15,000 evacuees were not expected to begin returning to their damaged homes and businesses before Saturday. Only a tiny fraction of them carried flood insurance, officials said.

The bodies of four more victims were found Wednesday, disaster headquarters and state police reported, bringing Alaska's flood death total to seven. Two bodies were discovered in the city and two more in Tok, a river community on the Alaska Highway.

Police conducting a house-to-house search earlier reported three deaths including that of a young child.

The victims were not identified and the cause of death was not given.

About 95 per cent of Fairbanks' buildings were affected by the flood, but an insurance executive estimated just two per cent of the community's property owners had flood insurance. The situation prompted calls for immediate federal rehabilitation funds and low cost loans to businessmen and homeowners.

"It's much more than I expected it to be," said Creath Tooley, western regional director of the President's Office of Emergency Planning, who toured the city of 30,000 by boat and helicopter Wednesday. "You just don't expect to see a town inundated such as this."

Damage was placed at about $200 million.

Gov. Walter Hickel, calling for Fairbanks to be designated a federal disaster area, said he thought Saturday would be the earliest time residents could return to their homes— if rain holds off.

Cloudy skies settled above the city today and the Weather Bureau forecast a few light showers. "If those clouds drop more rain we could be right back in trouble," said Mayor H. A. Boucher.

The danger of uncontrolled fire, which had officials on edge Wednesday after five buildings burned in the downtown area, tapered off with no additional fires reported today.

Dexter Girl Killed

A 11/2-year-old Dexter girl was killed when she was struck by a car one mile east of Gray Ridge on highway 114 at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

The highway patrol said the girl, Dona Sue Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Mason of route two, Dexter, was playing at the home of her grandparents, wandered onto the highway and in front of a car driven by Orville Fielder, 33, Essex. She was born at Dexter Dec. 31, 1965.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Sunday at Watkins and Sons Funeral Home in Dexter with the Rev. George Hill officiating. Burial will be in Essex cemetery.

One person was injured in a car-truck accident two miles west of Salcedo on Route AB at 8:30 p.m. last night.

Troopers said a car driven by Manual Dawson, 47, Essex, hit the rear of a pickup truck parked on the highway without lights. The truck was driven by Norman Johnson, 47, Essex route two.

Johnson was taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital with possible shoulder injury and fractured ribs, and head and arm cuts.

Added Tax To Increase Phone Rates

Telephone bills to Sikeston customers will go higher, although Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. says it is reducing its rates.

The company will begin adding on a five per cent city franchise tax on the bill along with the state tax of three per cent and federal excise tax of 10 per cent.

Previously, the city tax was included in the telephone bill. The new method of billing is expected to become effective Sept. 13.

One party business rates will change here from $10.74 to $11, including taxes an increase of 26 cents.

One party home phone rates will increase 19 cents, including taxes, from $5.09 to $5.28.

The change is being effected because company earnings have been down to a dangerous point, John Donoho, manager said.

The telephone company increased the franchise payment this year from $11,500 to $16,500.

The telephone company asked the Public Service Commission

NFO Threatens Market Boycott If Farm Price Demands Not Met

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The militant National Farmers Organization has given the nation's food processors an ultimatum: Increase prices for farm products or face an all-out market boycott by farmers that could "shut down the agricultural plant of America."

More than 35,000 NFO members shouted their approval of the plan and adopted the slogan, "No prices, no production," at a meeting Wednesday.

No deadline for the desired price boosts was set, but NFO President Oren Lee Staley of Rea, Mo., indicated that the board of directors will not hesitate to order the all-commodity boycott if market conditions fail to improve.

"The NFO is serving notice that farmers can no longer accept the low farm prices we are receiving," he said.

"Every processor has some time to decide whether he wants to pay the prices and sign the purchase contracts or push the American farmer into waging the economic battle we are willing to fight."

NFO members also authorized the directors to order holding actions of three to four days on milk plus regional market boycotts on livestock and to establish an NFO "grain bank" in hopes of putting a "floor" under grain prices.

Staley announced the NFO target on prices is $1.50 a bushel on corn; $3 a bushel on soybeans and $2 for wheat. On milk it is $6 a hundredweight, about 75 cents over the prevailing price in the Des Moines federally regulated market.

The target on livestock is $22.45 a hundredweight on hogs, $32.45 on choice cattle and $29.45 for lambs, well above prevailing markets.

Staley said the interim measures would "let the processors of this nation know that we are building for an all-out holding action that would affect every commodity and would shut down the agricultural plant of America."

Alluding to reports of scattered violence in three major withholding actions on livestock, grain and milk, the group has conducted since 1962, the NFO president promised that boycotts would be conducted with "a businesslike and calm approach."

The organization, which claims membership in 28 states, has never attempted an all-commodity holding action.

Radar Nabs 4 Motorists

Four motorists were charged by police Wednesday with speeding: Aubrey Michael Jr., Benton, Francinea Marshall, 317 Kramer, Ronald H. Cobb, 810 East Hunter, and Mrs. Joy A. Guthrie, 303 Missouri.

Ellouise S. Hearnes, 39, 500 Virginia, suffered injuries to her right knee and right arm at 11:35 p.m. Wednesday when the car she was driving struck the rear of a parked car on East street near Kathleen. She refused medical attention. The parked car is owned by Mary F. Compas, 305 Kay Drive.

A car owned by Mrs. C. C. Kindred, 32, 229 Missouri, was struck and damaged while parked at the Missouri Delta Community hospital parking lot Wednesday. The driver of the other car left the scene before police arrived.

Rodeo Success In All Ways

Although not all income and expense from the 15th annual Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo are tabulated, it was a financial success, John E. Harper Jr., Jaycee president, said today.

He reported that 23,000 persons attended four performances in ideal weather. Saturday night's performance was the biggest with 9,000 attending.

Ticket sales produced about $50,000, Harper reported.

A profit of $5,000 to $8,000 is expected, he said.

Jaycees will keep enough money to start wheels turning for next year's rodeo and pay the remainder of the profit on a $11,000 deficit from last year's rodeo when weather was unfavorable.

"The rodeo was in every way a success," Harper said.

Curtain Ready to Go up On 65th Annual State Fair

SEDALIA (AP) - The 65th annual Missouri State Fair opens here Saturday with all sorts of competition and entertainment for what is expected to be a record crowd of visitors for the nine-day event.

Fair officials said considerable interest has been shown in the 1967 edition through inquiries, through increases in exhibits, and in agricultural and other entries for $167,000 in prizes, an increase of $27,163 over 1966.

Due to a hike in admission from 50 cents to a dollar, many free attractions have been scheduled. Visitors will find the 60-year-old grandstand gone and in its place bleacher seats. The grandstand had been condemned as unsafe. Next year a new structure will go up in its place at a cost of more than $600,000.

And there should be less dust and mud in parts of the grounds. A new blacktop sidewalk has been laid through the midway to eliminate the dust of hot dry days, and the mud on rainy ones.

Final tabulation of the entries will not be completed until later this week, but as an example of the increasing list of entries, there are 400 more hogs entered than in past years.

Four Treated for Accident Injuries

Four emergency patients were treated Wednesday in the Missouri Delta Community hospital:

Orlando Williams caught a foot in a bicycle spoke; Vernon Ayers fell off the top of a truck and injured shoulder; Donnie Joe Morgan dropped wooden pallet on top of hand while working; Delmar G. Riess, Belleville, Ill., cut hand on metal while working.

Speeders Fined At Charleston

CHARLESTON -- Judge T. J. Brown Jr., heard these cases in magistrate court:

Edgar Harmon, charged with improper registration, using a borrowed or stolen license plate, and driving while operator's license suspended, fined $35 and $11 costs.

Herbert E. Yergar, charged with exceeding night speed limit, fined $37.50 and $11 costs.

George K. Conway, charged with speeding fined $10 and $11 costs.

Clinton W. Thurman, charged with exceeding day speed limit, fined $18 and $11 costs.

Stephen Robert Long, charged with exceeding day speed limit, fined $10 and $11 costs.

Two Injured As Police Car Crashes

BERNIE, Mo. (AP)— Two policemen were injured early today when their car went out of control on M25 at the south edge of town and struck a fireplug and tree.

The men are this Stoddard County town's only full-time policemen and the car is the only police car.

The Highway Patrol said the police car was traveling at high speed and skidded 360 feet.

It was not determined whether the officers were chasing any one.

Robert J. Johnson Newest Member of Police Force

Robert J. Johnson, formerly of Martin, Tenn., has been appointed as a police patrolman, City Manager W. Raymert Miller announced today.

The appointment is effective Saturday.

Johnson has been a policeman in Martin, one year. He replaces John McAteer. McAteer quit July 29.

The department now consists of 18 patrolmen, the chief, a secretary and a humane officer.

Johnson is 26. He and his wife Judy have two children, Kim, 4, and Sheryl, 2. They are moving to 813 Wayne.

Bids Asked for Bootheel Roads

JEFFERSON CITY-- The State Highway Commission will call for bids on Aug. 31 for an estimated $6,000,000 in highway construction, with two projects listed for Bootheel counties.

In New Madrid county, route WW, calls for 12.9 miles grading, culverts, bridging and surfacing from New Madrid east to the Mississippi county line. The project includes a 211-foot continuous I-beam bridge over East Bayou and a 102-foot precast concrete slab bridge over Wilson Bayou.

On Route B and route B spur in Dunklin county, calls for 3.5 miles grading, culvert bituminous mat surfacing from route BB to route 53, and from route B south to route 25 in Holcomb.

Student Finds Costa Rica Pro-American

He was Missouri's top ranking exchange student, one of 138, who assembled at Washington D.C., and were flown to countries around the world.

Underwood was introduced to the Lion's club by program chairman Earl Cook.

"There is no doubt that Costa Rica is very pro-American" Underwood said, in commenting on his 22-day visit.

"In fact I wasn't able to hear a single anti-American comment, even in regard to the Vietnam war.

"This country has a population of 1,400,000 on 23,000 square miles. It is bounded on two sides by water and on two sides by mountains. There was a picture in every business place, and I was told in every home, of the late President John F. Kennedy. Costa Rica has a free press and the same freedoms enjoyed in America. The only tax is on sales.

"Wages are low for an average of $7 per month, but living is cheap. The country's main exports are bananas and coffee.

"The country elects a different president every four years, and two vice-presidents."

The club will hold a chicken fry at the Shelter House next Wednesday at 7 p.m. On Aug. 30 the club will have a ladies night at the Country Club at 7 p.m.

Lion Charles Matthews displayed the trophy won by Dick Inman, winner of a miniature golf tournament.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
TORCH OF FREEDOM

In 1950, when Congress passed the Internal Security Act requiring registration of the Communist Party, disclosure of its official roster, membership, and financial details, the general conclusion was that homegrown U. S. Reds would find a legal loophole. They did -- in the Fifth Amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

The Supreme Court said that the Communist Party need not register, as Congress had directed. The technicality? The Justice Department could not prove that the party had anyone available who could give the registration statement without incriminating himself.

When Congress passed the Subversive Activities Control Act, it intended that the Party register. The Senate passed the bill 70-7; the House by a vote of 313-20. After Presidential veto, both branches overrode the veto.

The Communist Party, described a year ago as a "desperately sick organization" hanging on the legal ropes, has staged quite a comeback.

Its head, the man who prefers to be called the Party's "leading spokesman," is Gus Hall. One of twelve persons sentenced to prison years ago for advocating violent overthrow of the U. S. Government, Hall jumped bond. He dyed his hair and ran off to Mexico. Apprehended and returned, Hall served time for his flight and was released from the penitentiary in 1957.

Not knowing, at least for sure, what decision the Supreme Court would render on the refusal of the Communists to register, Hall more or less coasted until June 8, 1964. When the decision was handed down, Hall obviously interpreted it as giving him the green light to spread his poison wherever he could. Busy building up a new party "image," Hall and his cohorts have zeroed in on youthful restlessness and the civil rights uproar.

The late Eugene Dennis, Communist Party General Secretary, explained years ago why the Red emphasis on youth:

"The youth will determine the future. Therefore we Communists must help determine the future of American youth."

Dennis is dead, but dark-haired Gene Jr., a tough 22-year-old radical, and his wife Elizabeth are busy pushing the Communist line at the University of Wisconsin in Madison. They work through the W.E.B. DuBois Club, which has been identified by the FBI as "Communist-spawned."

Mickey Lima, chairman of the Communists' northern California district, has been in and out of courtrooms for failing to register under the McCarran Act. His 22-year-old daughter, Margaret, a petite brunette, is a history major at the University of California. A seasoned agitator, Margaret Lima has been arrested at least three times. She has written for the Communist PEOPLE'S WORLD and attended the 1962 Helsinki Youth Festival where hatred of America was the theme. More recently this second-generation homegrown Red was tossed into jail as a demonstrator in the "Free Speech Movement" which disrupted the Berkeley campus.

Frank Wilkinson, another member of the Communist Party, USA, served a year's time for refusing to testify about subversive affiliations. His two sons have taken up the Communist cause: Jeffry, 22, at Oakland City College; and Anthony, 20, at San Francisco State College.

Jeffry protested the U. S. "intervention" in Cuba in 1961, later picketed for the Fair Play for Cuba Committee, protested the McCarran Act and worked to kill off the House Committee on Un-American Activities. Brother Anthony demonstrated against "police brutality" in Los Angeles and picketed for the Committee to Preserve American Freedoms, listed as subversive, of which his father is an official.

Herbert Aptheker, a member of the National Committee of the Communist Party, USA, has a 20-year-old daughter who is perhaps the best known of the young Reds. Of her, Bettina Fay, the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee reports: "She has been the teenage director of the New York Communist youth group 'Advance.' Miss Aptheker recently transferred her Communist Party membership to California where she is attending college."

This second-generation Communists dresses plainly, and wears her long brown hair in an unkempt pony tail. A prime fomenter of the student revolution on the Berkeley campus of the University of California, she was one of the 814 demonstrators arrested in the "Free Speech Movement."

Although it was a technicality which has immunized these domestic Reds from the law Congress enacted in 1950, they no doubt feel that they have won a victory for the communist conspiracy.

This fact underscores the necessity of individual responsibility in resisting Red overtures and brainwashing.

The truth about socialism-communism must be told, and the facts exposed. Only in this way will deluded youth learn the horrible truth about communism.

A report in Colorado Editor says that the U. S. Post Office deficit is up $700 million. First class mail (including airmail) is paying 103 per cent of its cost, says the report, but will likely be raised one cent. Second class mail pays for only 30 per cent of its handling cost and third class 61 per cent of its cost. One problem the Post Office is faced with is a large turnover in personnel. The Chicago office reported that it hired 600 new employees one week while at the same time 650 quit. The average wage for the post office clerk is 6 cents a minute. Some of the workers are taking 10 seconds to read an address, resulting in a cost of 1 cent. This only leaves four cents on a first class letter for transportation costs, handling, and delivery to the destination.

IS AUDIENCE THERE?

IF AN ADVERTISER was paying good money to go before a theatre audience and tell them about his product, he would want to know all about the audience. How many people? Where do they live? How much they paid to get in? How many would stay for his message? The answers to these questions would have a bearing on the value of the audiunce to his business and whether it was worthy of his time and effort. Thousands of advertising dollars are spent each week for an audience that is not there.

There are definite standards for advertising values as well as for merchandise. The advertising audience should be bought and sold on the basis of actual value received. Value received is measured by audience delivered.

Just as a merchant buys and sells merchandise on the basis of known standards of known quality, weight and measure, so is his newspaper prepared to sell space on known delivered audience. The newspaper can and does give the advertiser a verified count and description of the audience.

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that people get tired of reading on vacation postcards:

"Having wonderful time. Don't you wish you were?"

"Drove from 5 a.m. to 8:39 p.m. today and made 687½ miles. Pretty good, eh? More tomorrow."

"Well, here we are at Expo 67, the big fair in Montreal, Canada. There must be an awful lot of tourists here from Paris, as a surprising number of people we talked to had French accents."

"In Taos, Myrtle found just the kind of silver Indian necklace that your wife asked her to look out for. Get ready for a shock, pal. It's costing you $237.50. They're cheaper by the dozen, but I thought that one was all you'd want."

"This is the first time Clarabelle and I have visited Niagara Falls since our wedding 24 years ago. The water looks pretty much the same, as I remember it."

"Had two flat tires today. More tomorrow."

"Sue still insists there was a funny smell in the house like leaking gas when we left. Would you mind going by and checking up? But be careful opening the door— a spark might blow up the whole joint."

"Sorry you can't be with us to see this beautiful, awe-inspiring scenery. But Malcolm is making hundreds and hundreds of color slides, and we'll show them all to you just as soon as we return home. That's a promise!"

"Everywhere a tourist goes today he gets gypped. Some motels sell you postcards for a nickel apiece, but this one cost a dime. It shows an interesting view of a shopping center outside Dubuque. The hamburgers we ate there weren't half bad, but— no catsup. C'est la guerre!"

"No wonder they say travel is broadening. Did you know that the Washington monument— see other side— is 555 feet, 5½ inches tall and weighs 81,120 tons? My wife said it made her feel humble just to stand next to it."

"... and the bass were biting so fast that we finally decided, to keep the boat from sinking, to throw back all those weighing under five pounds."

"As a souvenir, Fred, I got you a handcrafted pillow filled with pine needles and a swell picture of an Indian encampment embroidered on one side and that well-known painting, "The Last Supper," on the other side, which makes it ideal for the home. The trouble is that the pine needles stick in your ears when you sleep on it, but it still should make a swell conversation piece for your guest room."

"Too tired tonight to tell you all the wonders we saw today. More tomorrow."

There was a substantial decrease in the number of Missouri traffic deaths in July, as compared to the corresponding month last year. The Missouri State Highway Patrol reports that 118 persons lost their lives on the State's streets and highways last month. In July of 1966, 143 persons were killed in traffic crashes.

A study of last month's traffic fatalities by the Patrol showed that one hundred of the deaths last month were in rural traffic and the remainder in urban areas. Five were pedestrians. The most deadly day of last month was Friday, July 21. On that day nine persons were killed in Missouri traffic. The State experienced only two days during the month of July without a recorded traffic death.

Weekends were a time for nearly half of the total Missouri traffic fatalities last month. Forty-nine persons were killed during the five weekends of July.

The study also showed that there were 16 multiple - death accidents that took the lives of 37 persons.

The Patrol stated that late deaths resulting from injuries received in traffic accidents last month would be added to the July fatality toll.

Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Highway Patrol, commenting on the study said, "Although there was a decrease in the number of Missouri traffic deaths in July, as compared to the corresponding month last year, it behooves everyone not to become complacent concerning the traffic toll. Many of the fatal accidents last month could have been avoided if the drivers involved would have been more alert and defensive in their driving.

"I urge everyone to do everything possible to be a better driver every day. This can be done, for example, by obeying the traffic laws and showing courtesy to others," he concluded.

A pessimist defined ambition as working your head off at a job you don't enjoy, in a place you don't like trying to save money you can't keep, in order to spend your declining years in idle boredom that you can't stand at some place you won't like any better.

An immigrant walked into a New York bank and approached the guard.

"Pardon - I'd like to talk with the fella who arranges loans."

"I'm sorry," the guard replied, "but the loan arranger's out."

"Maybe then," said the immigrant, "I could talk to Tonto."

WHEN NOT TO ADVERTISE

Since we spend most of our time telling folks when to advertise, we came across some advice given by the advertising manager of a very successful woman's magazine telling the merchants when not to advertise. He says in part:

Within the last few weeks I have read a number of statements regarding the importance of advertising under present conditions. After digesting this material it seems to me that a manufacturer who finds himself in an over - sold condition, or who expects shortly to be oversold, can with all logic discontinue his advertising provided the following conditions prevail:

1. His present competitiors stop advertising.
2. No new competitors enter the field.
3. No one discovers a substitute for his product.
4. None of his present dealers goes out of business.
5. No new dealers enter the picture.
6. His dealers do not realize he has stopped pushing the product after stocking them with it.
7. The public stops being born.
8. The public stops dying.
9. The public stops forgetting.
10. He expects to go out of business as soon as the parade is over.

H. L. Hunt Says

RUSSIAN AID IN U. S. SHIPS

It is no secret that Soviet Russia is aiding her fellow-communists in North Vietnam by shipping in armaments and supplies. The extent of military aid from Russia since August 1953 has been estimated at $510 million.

What most Americans almost certainly do not know is that some of the supplies have been carried in ships legally owned by the United States. Attention was called to this fact recently by U. S. Senator Clifford Hansen of Wyoming. Senator Hansen labeled the situation "startling and shocking." Few will disagree.

"Russia is aiding the North Vietnamese," the Senator said, "and she is doing it with ships designed and manufactured by American men and women, loaned to Russia in wartime to the end of achieving peace, and now as in the past used by the Russian government to deliver material for the purpose of killing American boys."

Among the lend-leased equipment sent to Russia from the United States during World War II were 84 merchant ships and 48 miscellaneous Army and Navy watercraft. The lend-lease agreement provided that at the end of the war all defense articles sent to Russia that had not been destroyed or consumed would be returned to the U. S. But Russia has refused to return them and refused to pay for them.

That is how it happens that our own ships are being used for shipments to the communist aggressors in Vietnam. They were used in Korea against American troops fighting there in 1950-53. They were used by the Russians in Cuba in 1961-62. Always against our interests. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

Editor's note -- Drew Pearson, who has been on vacation, today interrupts that vacation to write a column on a unique visitor to Washington.

HONOLULU -- Today President Johnson receives a unique visitor at the White House, President Felix Houphouet-Boigny of the Ivory Coast, sometimes called the George Washington of West Africa.

He is unique because, though a friend of President De Gaulle's and though he served five years as a member of the French cabinet, he had the courage to order his U. N. ambassador to vote with the United States and against De Gaulle during the recent showdown over the Near East.

He is also unique because, while surrounded with pro-Communist neighbors, he has stood firmly for the free enterprise system.

Finally, President Houphouet-Boigny's visit is important because at a time of Negro unrest in our big cities, when some American Negroes are looking to Africa for leadership, the Ivory Coast's experience with Chinese Communist activities is most revealing.

I visited the President of the Ivory Coast two years ago, lunched with him at his summer home, and we talked at length regarding the problems of the United States and Africa. Flanking the double doors of his living room were two of the largest elephant tusks I have ever seen, and in the outer hall was a small golden elephant.

"President Johnson wouldn't approve of that," remarked President Houphouet-Boigny, "but tell him we will soon acquire a donkey."

FRANCE VS. RED CHINA

The President of the Ivory Coast is a Negro of quiet dignity, who was taken to Paris as a small boy, educated in French schools and universities, obtained a doctor's degree, and for many years practiced medicine.

He explained how the new Republics of West Africa were being pulled in two different directions: 1, Toward France, with which they have cultural and economic ties; 2, Toward Red China, which is staging a political and propaganda drive to take them over.

On the other hand, he told me, many Africans see their future with the United States, if they can develop more trade and obtain technical help in developing their economy.

To the east of the Ivory Coast is Ghana, which at the time I was in Africa was virtually a satellite of Red China under the totalitarian rule of Nkrumah. Some months later, while Mkrumah was in Peking, his people kicked him out and established a new pro-west government, leaving Nkrumah to take refuge in Guinea to the west of the Ivory Coast.

President Sekou Toure of Guinea once used as many as 1,200 Communist advisers, and in 1965 got a promise from Moscow to build a huge hydroelectric dam on the Kondure River. Generally speaking, President Sekou Toure follows the Chinese rather than the Russian line of Communism, believing in violent revolution. He has been preaching this to some of the young American Negroes who have gone to see him.

These include John Lewis of SNCC, James Farmer of CORE, and Stokely Carmichael, former SNCC head, who while in Cuba recently urged Negro guerrilla war in the big U. S. cities.

Carmichael brought back from Guinea a long white flowing robe, the gift of President Sekou Toure, which he displays proudly.

U.S. NEGROES TURN TO AFRICA

These are days when young American Negroes are turning more and more to Africa. Hair-straighteners are out; kinky hair is in. African robes are worn at black power rallies.

So far the African influence has taken the anti-American, pro-Chinese line. But it could take the pro-American line of men like President Houphouet-Boigny of the Ivory Coast.

"China is out to take over the world," Houphouet-Boigny told me. "In Africa the Chinese are teaching hatred, dissension and assassination.

"Africans are taught to murder men whose eyes are open to the Chinese danger, so they can be replaced with servile men who would open the doors of Africa to China.

"Wherever the Chinese go you find trouble," said the President of the Ivory Coast. "whether it be Guinea, Uganda, Somalia or Cuba. Don't let them influence your people in Harlem. Mao Tse-tung doesn't have time to wait. Time is working on the side of the Russians. But not the Chinese. They are looking for opportunities of revolution all over the world. They would like to overthrow the liberal government of the United States.

"This is why I think President Johnson's firm position in Vietnam is so wise," he concluded.

NEED FOR PRICE STABILIZATION

Most significant aspect of the Ivory Coast's economic progress is that it has been achieved by welcoming foreign capital, with no foreign aid from the United States. Some aid has been received from France, however.

The Ivory Coast has now become the third largest coffee-producer in the world (ranking behind Brazil and Colombia), the second largest cocoa producer, and ranks high in bananas and tropical lumber.

The one thing it needs is stable prices. Like other African countries and our Latin neighbors, the Ivory Coast suffers from the ups and downs of commodity prices. In six years it received $50 million of foreign aid from France. But in the same period prices on tropical products dropped $200 million.

In the United States, the American farmer gets the benefit of price supports for wheat, corn, other staple commodities, with subsidies for sugar. If Sen. Allen Ellender and Rep. Otto Passman, the two Louisiana Democrats who are such bitter foes of foreign aid and such indefeatigable champions of sugar subsidies, would permit price stabilization for the sugar, coffee, cocoa and bananas of Africa and Latin America, their countries wouldn't need aid from the United States and would become prosperous, free enterprise neighbors.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

The 'Old Bogey' Computer Rooms, Not Dooms, the Nation.

The sun really never sets on the General Electric Co. It's up there in outer space. Its engineers and scientists are spread across the moon landing project. Its plants in many parts of the world now produce so efficiently that the firm can undersell the Japanese right in Japan.

Regularly, its executives get into a collective bargaining dialogue with some mighty militant unions and sometimes the dialogue is loud and heated. But regularly its management and labor settle down peacefully. Since GE is one of the leaders if labor relations and communications, I asked its chief executive officer to muse aloud about the future of our automated society. Here is his reply:

By F. J. Borch
President and Chief Executive Officer, General Electric Company

NEW YORK: -- In the three years, 1964-65-66, U. S. business invested an unprecedented $150 billion in new plants and equipment -- or approximately $750 for every man, woman and child in the U. S. A particularly important portion of this went for so-called "automated" equipment: numerically controlled machines, computers, process controls, industrial and information systems -- equipment to improve productivity and lower costs.

During this period, the economy grew at an annual rate of more than $50 billion a year in gross national product, unemployment dropped to the lowest levels in a decade, and the prices of most manufactured goods remained relatively stable.

Along with this, the many fears that were being so freely expressed in the early 1950s and '60s of widespread disruptions in the economy as a result of the impact of computers and automation have failed to materialize. In an expanding economy, there has been a net gain in the number and quality of jobs.

The President's National Commission on Technology, Automation and Economic Progress, which presented its report last year, concludes: "If unemployment does creep upward in the future it will be the fault of public policy, not the fault of technological change . . . the most important condition for successful adjustment to technological change is an adequate level of total income and employment."

In spite of the record expansion of the last six years the needs of our American society are still only partially met. And the needs of the rest of the world exceed the whole world's productive capacity -- and will for years to come.

In the world today, the real threat to our security is not the machine, or even a revolutionary new technology. The real danger lies in failing to increase what we can afford to do, of failing to increase our productive output with our available labor force, and capital and other resources. For if more is produced, there is more to divide up. If less is produced, there is less to divide up -- and this latter becomes a problem for which there is no solution. No one expects the problems of underdeveloped nations, or of our underprivileged areas, to be easy of solution, but they will be impossible without continued economic growth at home and in the other developed countries of the world.

Since the growth problem has international dimensions, I see the remedy as requiring more healthy competition among nations, among their institutions, and particularly among their various industries. I see the current drive by American industry to achieve greater cost effectiveness and improved productivity not only as a short-term answer to the present profit squeeze, but as a continuing way of life in the future.

A particularly important part of this achievement is the assimilation and integration of the computer and the new information technology into existing systems -- technological, human and social. We have found at General Electric -- as a manufacturer and very extensive user of computer systems -- that they are a vital element in nearly every other technology in which we are engaged.

It is significant that the information industry is growing at a faster rate than any other major industry -- from about $1 billion a year in 1956 to $8 billion a year today, and forecast to grow to $25 billion in 1976.

It is also significant that the assimilation of computer technology has proceeded in a relatively orderly fashion -- with many industries making good use of computers in areas where there are many routine - type jobs and a chronic shortage of people equipped to do them. Banking, insurance, finance, government, have been among the biggest users. Process industries like oil, chemicals, steel, and technical industries like the electrical and aerospace were also early extensive users. The modern airline could hardly be operated without computers. And computers look like they are going to be of great value in reducing costs in such essential services as medical care and education.

With continued "balance" in our economy's growth, this pattern of integration may continue into the next decade. A Labor Department Survey of America's Industrial and Occupational Manpower Requirements 1964-75 predicts that, although there will be some major employment shifts, the overall demand for workers will grow sharply, and that while professional and technical workers will be in greatest demand "the overall demand for less-skilled workers will not decrease over this 11 - year period."

With the increasing use of computers and information technology we may expect to see a very great acceleration in the continuous process of job improvement and development of people. The computer is, after all, the perfect moron. It must be told what to do -- told by people. Thus, in order to capitalize on its prodigious powers to do what it's told, managers and employes will be challenged to be better educated, to think more, to communicate better -- while at the same time opening up ways, even for the disadvantaged, to make education a lifelong affair.

It is perhaps in relation to this -- meeting the challenges of the underdeveloped person, as well as those of the underdeveloped nations -- that the new technology finds its greatest promise in the fulfillment of human purposes.

For, given the needs and resources of the world, we obviously must find ways to stimulate economic growth and healthy competition in judicious balance, ways to create a desire for progress among all who fear and resist it, ways to involve governments, companies and labor unions alike in the tasks of making the underdeveloped nation and the underdeveloped person a part of the solution, rather than part of the problem.

It is in the fulfillment of this early prediction about automation, that it would lead to "the human beings," that the new information technology may make its greatest contribution in the coming decades.

TERESA HAWES, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hawes, route three, will enter Matthews elementary school, Matthews.

BARRY RAY CROWLEY, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Crowley, 522 Clayton St., will enter Southwest elementary school as a first grader.

One day in 1943 at Henderson Field on Guadalcanal, an exuberant Marine general put on an impromptu flying show in a borrowed plane. While he performed suicidal - looking dives, loops and rolls, all the soldiers, sailors, Marines and Seabees at the field stopped work to gape. Almost all, that is. One lone mechanic, wearing greasy overalls and a Confederate cap, went right on with his work. Finally, he glanced skyward and remarked, "Ah shore wish that s.o.b. would crack up - so's Ah could get me some spare parts."

NONE can believe how powerful prayer is, and what it is able to effect, but those who have learned it by experience.

Rose Carter Marries B.D. Thurman

PORTAGEVILLE -- The First Baptist church was the setting Aug. 7 for the wedding of Miss Rose Carter and Billy Dale Thurman. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Rose Carter. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Cora Jeffords of Marston, and the late R. J. Jeffords and Mrs. Myrtle Carter and the late Andy Carter.

Thurman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Thurman of Conran. He is the grandson of Mrs. Alice Disher of Boekerton and the late Mr. Paul Disher and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Thurman of Doniphan.

The Rev. Owen Sherrill performed the double ring ceremony in a candlelight setting. The church was set with baskets of white gladioli. Nuptial music was provided by Miss Ann Grable. Bill Foster sang "Oh Promise Me."

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Robert A. Carter, wore a dress of white lace over candlelight peau de soie with a fitted bodice, bateau neckline and long lace sleeves with a shoulder length veil of tulle attached to a pill box hat. She carried a white Bible covered in lace with an orchid.

Miss Dianne Robinson, friend of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a dress fashioned like that of the bride of yellow brocade and veil to match. The flower girl was Kimberly Katherine Duff. She also wore a dress fashioned like the bride of yellow brocade.

Ronnie Thurman served his brother as best man. The ring bearer was Glenn Gill. Candles were lighted by Larry Swilley and Kirk Stewart. Jimmy Swilley and Glenn Stewart were ushers.

Bill Dickey tells this one on Lefty Gomez. "Gomez was pitching for the Yankees, I was catching. The Athletics had two on in the last of the ninth of a tie game, and Jimmy Foxx was at bat. He looked big enough to drive a ball into the next county and often did. Well, Lefty stands out there looking down at me, shaking off every sign I give him. He doesn't want a curve. He doesn't want the first ball. He doesn't want a change - up. So I walk out and say, 'Okay, wise guy. What do you want?'

"He looks me straight in the eye and, as serious as can be, says, 'Let's just wait a while. Maybe somebody will want him on the telephone.'"

Miss Saundra Kay Greene

Saundra K. Greene to Wed Charles Michael Fodge

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Greene, 2140 Ables Road, announce the engagement of their daughter, Saundra Kay, to Charles Michael Fodge.

Fodge is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Fodge, 433 Coleman.

I figured if I leave, it will straighten itself out. So i'm using you as an excuse."

Brenda Stewart Honored at Bridal Shower

BENTON -- Miss Brenda Stewart, bride-elect of John Cathey of Charleston, was honored at a surprise bridal shower last Thursday in the home of Mrs. Clem Ramson.

The gift table was covered with a green and white cloth. A centerpiece was a yellow umbrella covered in daisies.

Mrs. Oneda Ziegler and Miss Lynn Crafton were awarded prizes as the guests played games. As Miss Stewart opened her gifts, guests wrote their advice to the bridalcouple in books prepared for that purpose.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Miss Ann Scherer, Miss Sharon Dennis and Miss Margaret Ziegler.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Lynn Crafton and daughter Lynn, Mrs. Donald Butler, Mrs. Bill Sailer and daughter Kim, all of Cape Girardeau; Mrs. Burman Green and daughter Sharon, Lansing, Mich.; Mrs. Ray Cathey and daughter Sue and Linda, Mrs. Orville Witt, Mrs. Presnal Jones, Mrs. Kenny Pinkerton and Mrs. Danny Lambert, all of Charleston; Miss Sharon Hodgkiss and Mrs. Gaylon Harper, both of Sikeston, and Mrs. Alice Schegal, Scott City.

Sending gifts were Miss Janie Caldwell, Miss Carla Beardslee, Miss Cecilia Essner, Mrs. Earline Brock and Mrs. Frank Wilhelm.

Mary Jane Linhart Five Years Old

Mary Jane Linhart celebrated her fifth birthday with a party at the Kiddieland nursery school Aug. 8. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Linhart, 319 Daniel St.

Mary Jane blew out the candles on a pink cake. "Happy Birthday" was sung, and cake and ice cream were served. Each child received a balloon and gum as favors.

Those present were Cindy Lawrence, Tommy and David Wood, Glenn Blumenberg, Mickey Wagoner, Tammy Laseter, Reesa and Darren Bailey, Paul and Russell Murphy, Mark, Gregory and Denise Bronson, Alan and Julia Trice, Terry and Lloyd Patterson, Judith Warth, Belinda, Kevin and Keith Landers, Douglas Schindelar, Karen Odum and Freda Ann and Buster Sturgeon.

Several of umpire Bill McGowman's calls had gone against the Washington Senators, and coach Nick Altrock had discussed each one with McGowan. In the sixth inning, as McGowan told it, a foul ball was hit into the stands. He looked back and saw a woman being carried out on a stretcher and asked Altrock if the ball had hit her. In a voice loud enough to raise the dead, Altrock yelled, "No! You called that one right, and she fainted."

Family Reunion Set

DEXTER --- The McMullin family reunion will be Sunday at Dexter park.

I had lost the claim ticket for my wife's shoes, and the shoemaker refused to surrender them without some proof of ownership. Suddenly I hit upon an idea. My puppy was waiting in the car. I brought him in, lifted him to the rack and commanded him to "get the shoe," a game we play at home. He sniffed from one pair to another and finally grabbed the pair belonging to his mistress. With a grin the shoemaker wrapped the shoes and handed them to me. "Proof enough," he said.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The St. Louis Cardinals, described by pitcher Jack Lamabe as "just hustling fools," came from behind again to defeat the Chicago Cubs, 4-3, Wednesday night.

It was the tenth victory for the Cardinals in a 13-game homestand and the eighth out of those ten won by one run.

The Cardinals, bolstered by a 10½ game lead over the rest of the field in the National League and with complete confidence they are the only passengers aboard the "pennant express," turned three infield hits, an error and a walk into two runs in the ninth for their victory.

Orlando Cepeda drove in the first run for the Cards in the first inning on a single and launched the ninth inning rally by beating out an infield hit.

Tim McCarver homered in the fourth for the other St. Louis run.

Alex Johnson won it when he outlegged his hit in the ninth to drive in McCarver who got on by an Ernie Banks error at first.

Lamabe was the winner with one inning of shut out relief.

Glenn Beckert's two-run seventh inning homer was the big blow for the Cubs.

The tale of the tape— that's the story of a serious, but unsuccessful bid for the first no-hitter in the 59-year history of Pittsburgh's Forbes Field.

Tape around the right ankle of Cincinnati's Jim Maloney enabled the veteran right-hander to make the bid Wednesday night.

But it didn't prevent him from aggravating an injury, which forced him to leave in the seventh inning of the game won by Cincinnati 4-0.

Billy McCool took over and was touched for both Pittsburgh hits in the eighth inning.

St. Louis nipped the Chicago Cubs 4-3, Atlanta topped San Francisco 6-3, the New York Mets beat Philadelphia 5-3 and Los Angeles trounced Houston 7-1 in other National League games.

"I was scared," said McCool, who relieved Maloney after he stepped into a hole with his right foot in delivering a fourth ball to Matty Alou, making Alou the first Pirate base runner.

"I wanted it real badly," continued McCool, "but I wished he could have stayed in. I think he might have gotten it."

Maloney declined to talk about what might have been but he did comment about his ankle injury, which he said he suffered last Friday night against Los Angeles.

"I haven't been able to run on it at all, and the only way I could pitch tonight was because of the tape," he said.

He also said that if it had been his left ankle, he would have been able to continue, but since it was the right one he couldn't because he pushes off on it when he pitches.

Jose Pagan kept the Forbes Field jinx against no-hitter intact with a one-out single in the eighth. Jerry May followed with a double but McCool then settled down to preserve the shutout.

Tony Perez' 23rd homer gave the Reds a 2-0 lead in the fourth, and they added another pair in the sixth on Lee May's RBI double and an error.

Ron Swoboda was the big gun in New York's victory over Philadelphia. He slammed three hits and drove in four runs.

Hank Aaron's 30th homer, with two on in the third, powered Atlanta past San Francisco as Ken Johnson boosted his record to 13-5.

Los Angeles broke out of run scoring famine as Jim Lefebvre and pitcher Bill Singer each drove in two runs against Houston. Singer also limited the Astros to four hits in bringing his record to 7-4.

Ortiz Retains Crown

NEW YORK (AP)— Carlos Ortiz, his fifth straight successful lightweight championship defense behind him, had a slightly puffy eye cocked toward bigger and better things.

"Give me two months," the Puerto Rican-born New Yorker said in his dressing room after solidly trouncing Ismael Laguna in 15 rounds Wednesday night, "and I be ready to fight again.

"Two months. Then bring on Cokes."

The reference was to Curtis Cokes, the world welterweight champion.

"I don't need the money," the happy Ortiz said. "I'm loaded. But I would like to be the first Puerto Rican to hold three titles. I'd like Cokes."

Ortiz, 30, held the world junior welterweight title before taking the lightweight championship from Joe Brown in 1962. In lightweight title fights he is 11-1, losing the title to Laguna in his native Panama in 1965 on a 15-round decision, then winning it back seven months later in Puerto Rico.

This time there was little doubt about it.

In the middle rounds, he let up a bit— "I told him to take it easy, to let Laguna have a couple," manager Bill Daly explained later— and the swift, flashy Panamanian swarmed to the attack to the delight of a group of about 2,500 Panamanians in the shouting, chanting, flag-waving crowd of 19,480 at Shea Stadium.

"I had him from the first round on," Ortiz said. "I knew I had him when I first hit him with that right hand. He was fighting my fight.

"I was never concerned. I just wanted to be sure I didn't make any mistakes and had enough to go the distance if I had to. He was in good condition and fought a good fight. But I'm the champion."

Then he grinned even more broadly.

"In fact," he said, "I'm the greatest."

Referee Art Mercante and judge Al Berl each had Ortiz ahead in rounds 10-4-1. Judge Jack Gordon had Ortiz the winner 11-3-1. The Associated Press scored for Ortiz 10-4-1.

"I'm very proud of my people," Ortiz said of the Puerto Ricans in the audience. "We don't want to do anything against our citizenship. I won. But I don't think there would be any trouble if I hadn't. But I fought extra hard to be sure."

Hundreds of extra police were on duty to prevent a recurrence of the riots that developed in Madison Square Garden the last three times Puerto Rican fighters were involved. There wasn't a hint of trouble.

Laguna, taller and faster, had only praise for Ortiz as "a great champion. He won it clearly and cleanly. I have no excuses."

In the end, it was Ortiz' power and cunning against Laguna's speed.

Time and again Laguna swarmed in with a flashy, two-handed attack. Time and again the stolid Ortiz punished him, rocking him in the second, fourth, eighth, 10th and 11th rounds with right hands.

"He tries to suck you in," Ortiz said. "He feints in, then steps back. I've fought him before. I know him. I just wait until he starts back, then go with the right. He's a sucker for it.

"I wanted to get him coming in with a looping right and end it. I just never found the spot.

"I'm 30 years old and have been fighting for 13 years. For six I have been champion. A boy like that isn't supposed to beat me."

There were no knockdowns. Ortiz suffered nicks at the corner of both eyes, but they didn't bother him. Each fighter weighed 135 pounds.

Jets Hope Tom Burnett Takes Cue from Brother

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y.—(NEA)—All winter, Tommy Burnett listened intently as his brother, Bob, explained the intricacies of professional football and the dos and don'ts of training camp.

A year ago, Bobby was a rookie halfback with the Buffalo Bills. The Bills coaching staff knew they had a sound, fundamentally strong football player who probably was a year — maybe two — away from being a useful professional.

Then, last December, Bobby Burnett received a trophy which said he was the American Football League's rookie of the year.

This season, there is a rookie flanker in the training camp of the New York Jets. His name is Tommy Burnett and he is not expected to play very much this year—at least right now he's not. He is expected to watch and listen and learn and maybe by the 1968 season he will be ready to sufficiently challenge Don Maynard for a starting job.

Tommy Burnett is a polite pleasant 22-year-old from the University of Arkansas who was picked as a future draft choice by the Jets two years ago.

"I was really surprised," Tommy said. "Like Bob, I had to struggle to play at Arkansas. I didn't think I was playing well at all. That's why I was surprised the Jets drafted me."

The Jets picked Tommy, a 6-2, 200-pounder, mainly because of his speed (9.8 for the 100).

Besides, the Jets had picked another unknown from the Southwest Conference three years earlier, a youngster named George Sauer Jr., who caught all of 12 passes for the University of Texas during his last collegiate season. Last year, George Sauer Jr. was on the American Football League's All-Star team and was second in the league in pass receiving.

"It will take Tommy time," says Clive Rush, the coach of the Jets' offense. "George Sauer Jr. didn't learn everything in one year you know.

"Right now it's all probably very confusing to Tommy. And he's behind a man (Maynard) with 10 years' experience."

The most difficult adjustment for Tommy is learning the myriad pass patterns in the Jets' playbook. "Bobby told me to take that playbook and memorize it," he said.

Last year, at Buffalo, Bobby Burnett had a similar problem: learning to block for a pocket passer. The Buffalo coaches were concerned because Arkansas' passing attack was built around the roll out, which meant its backs seldom blocked for a drop-back passer.

The Jets are hoping that Tommy learns the nuances of playing flanker as well as his brother learned about pass blocking.

If the Jets get a repeat from Tommy Burnett, 25 professional teams will have representatives at Fayetteville, Ark., to scout another Burnett, young Billy, who is a sophomore at the university.

All three brothers received their early coaching from their father, Clell, who coached at Smackover, Ark., then at Bentonville, where the family lives now.

"For a while last season, after Bobby made rookie-of-the-year, Dad couldn't button his shirt—he was so proud," Tommy said.

Mr. Burnett better have a good supply of shirts around. Before Tommy and Billy are finished, it's possible some more buttons may be missing.

U.S. Trackmen Fight For Lost Prestige

DUESSELDORF, Germany (AP)— The U. S. track and field squad, shaken by their own first night showing against the fiery West Germans, face a fight to regain lost prestige tonight.

The U. S. aces hold a slender seven-point lead going into the final day of the two-day dual meet.

Only a mighty final heavy by chunky hammer thrower Ed Burke of Newport Beach, Calif., and a soaring lead by pole vaulter Dick Railsback of Pasadena, Calif., in Wednesday night's two final events kept the Americans' lead alive by a score of 56-49.

Foresters Set up New Camp

FARMINGTON, N. M. -- Sightseeing since winning the southern plains regional championship Monday night, Sikeston's Potlatch Foresters are expected to arrive today at the site of the Connie Mack League Little World Series which starts Friday night.

One of the eight finalists winning their way into the playoff for the national title, the Foresters are scheduled to see action in the second game Friday night against Bridgeport, Conn., winner of the Atlantic regional crown. The starting time will depend on the length of the first game, but is expected to get underway between 9 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Sikeston time.

The action will be broadcasted by radio station KMPL, as will all following contests involving the Foresters.

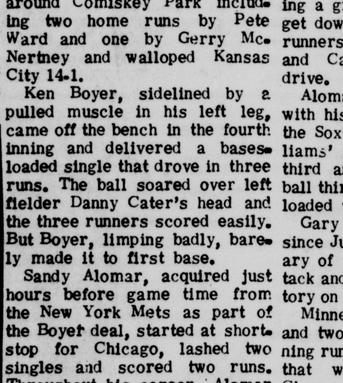

Preceding their entry in the Little World Series, the Sikeston club received bad news yesterday when it was learned that star second baseman Richard Montgomery would be lost to the team for the remainder of the season due to a mild attack of mononucleosis.

He will rest in the mountains with other members of the Joel Montgomery family who accompanied the Foresters to Colorado.

THE NAME'S THE SAME, the game is different and some of the training methods are similar. Punchless Sox Break Loose

The Chicago White Sox, who sometimes seem to win with mirrors, did it Wednesday night with a hitter who can't run, a runner who suddenly can hit and— would you believe— three home runs.

The notoriously light hitting White Sox sprayed 17 safeties around Comiskey Park including two home runs by Pete Ward and one by Gerry McNertney and walloped Kansas City 14-1.

Ken Boyer, sidelined by a pulled muscle in his left leg, came off the bench in the fourth inning and delivered a bases-loaded single that drove in three runs. The ball soared over left fielder Danny Cater's head and the three runners scored easily. But Boyer, limping badly, barely made it to first base.

Sandy Alomar, acquired just hours before game time from the New York Mets as part of the Boyer deal, started at short-stop for Chicago, lashed two singles and scored two runs. Throughout his career, Alomar has been noted as a fast runner and good fielder but weak hitter.

The victory kept the Sox 1½ games back of the streaking first place Minnesota Twins who won their seventh straight, 5-1 from California.

Boston moved into third place by beating Detroit 6-3. Cleveland nipped Washington 1-0 and Baltimore edged New York 5-4.

Ward's two homers drove in three runs for the White Sox but the blow that broke the game wide open was Boyer's pinch hit in the fourth. It climaxed a five-run rally that opened a 9-0 Chicago lead.

Boyer, who pulled up lame in Minnesota last week while fielding a ground ball, struggled to get down the line as the three runners tore around the bases and Cater chased after his drive.

Alomar started the big inning with his second hit and scored the Sox' first run on Walt Williams' double. Williams stole third and scored on a passed ball third strike before Chicago loaded the bases for Boyer.

Gary Peters, who hadn't won since July 23, was the beneficiary of the unusually heavy attack and picked up his 13th victory on a four-hitter.

Minnesota bunched four hits and two walks for five first inning runs against California and that was enough for Dean Chance, who won his 16th game.

The first three Minnesota batters— Zoilo Versalles, Cesar Tovar and Tony Oliva— tripled, doubled and singled for two runs. An infield out following two walks drove in another run and Ted Uhlaender's two-out double produced two more.

George Scott drove in four runs with a pair of homers and Reggie Smith contributed a solo shot as Boston rapped Detroit.

Scott and Smith connected in the first inning against Denny McLain and then Scott hit another in the third.

Steve Hargan outduelled Camilo Pascual and Tony Horton's ninth inning double— only the second hit for the Indians— gave Cleveland its victory.

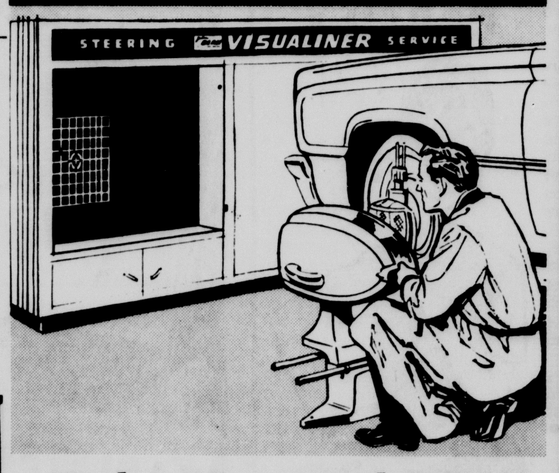

Hargan, who struck out 10, finished with a three-hitter. Horton's two-out double scored pinch runner Chuck Hinton from first base. Pascual did not allow a hit until the seventh when Max Alvis singled with two out.

Frank Robinson drove in four runs for the Orioles— three of them on a sixth inning homer— as Baltimore beat Al Downing.

Watermelon Quality High, Crop Short

By Leo Schade

Thousands of watermelons are going to market. They are of superior quality.

Two top growers are the James Brothers, Joe and J. O., and the W. A. Beggs family of Blodgett.

Watermelons are late this year. Cool, wet early summer weather, stopped growth and continued rain following the cool spell almost produced a crop failure. More recently, three weeks of warm, dry weather, saved the crop, which is short.

The James brothers produce four varieties with emphasis on Blackstone, a small melon averaging about 25 pounds each, the Garrisonian, Charleston Gray and the Yellow Meat, averaging 30-35 pounds.

They have 35 acres planted in melons, and five acres to cantaloupes.

Cantaloupes also are of excellent quality. Rain caused many of them to break open and rot before they ripened.

Don Beggs and associates, his father, W. A. Beggs, and a brother, Gary Beggs, have 55 acres in melons and 10 acres of cantaloupes, on the Lenore Galeener farm, west of Blodgett. They specialize in a new variety known as the Jubilee, averaging 30-35 pounds, and the Charleston Gray of the same size. All are of excellent quality. One week they shipped 80,000 pounds of melons to Michigan and 25,000 pounds to Milwaukee. They are working a crew of ten men.

The Beggs family started their watermelon project three years ago and have increased it each year. They also raise a Jumbo, a large cantaloupe averaging 45-50 pounds per dozen.

Besides the melon projects the Beggs family farms 1,250 acres, of which 650 acres are near Blodgett and the balance near Benton.

CANTALOUPES on the James Brothers farm are placed in a large sack. The melons were selected by Garfield Whitehead, right. Boys are not identified.

The Maternal Health Program in Scott County had a disturbing year. The patients did not like the attitude of the special nursing supervisor; and some of them went through their pregnancies with no pre-natal care because they did not want her in their homes. As a result, with 12 fewer non-white babies born, there were 106 fewer clinic visits in 1966 than in 1965. The number of patients seen each month at the office and the clinic fell from an average of 32 to 23. In December only 8 patients attended--the smallest number seen since the clinic started in 1950.

An average of 4 to 6 mothers who have no pre-natal care are delivered each year in our county. This number had not varied for years. In 1966, 13 failed to receive care. Instead of the usual 8 to 10 who had no seriological test for syphilis during their pregnancy, there were 19.

Of our two excellent midwives, one took a leave of absence to accept employment by the O.E.O. program.

Rules for delivery by a midwife were unchanged. The patient had to have at least 4 pre-natal check-ups, either by a private physician or at the clinic, and be found to have a normal pregnancy. Our private doctors and the hospital gave their usual courteous efficient help if trouble arose.

Author of Novel About Race Relations Honored

Former social worker Bella Rodman was the recent recipient of two awards for "Lions in the Way," her juvenile novel about integration in a Southern public school. The book was recently released in paperback by Camelot Books, the juvenile line of Avon Books. On May 31st, in Chicago, Mrs. Rodman was presented with the Charles W. Follett Award for her worthy contribution to children's literature. Also in May, she received the Nancy Bloch Memorial Award in New York for her contribution to intercultural relations.

Both awards are presented annually. The Follett Award is presented by the Follett Publishing Company, the hardcover publisher of "Lions in the Way." Although the award is usually given to the promising new author of a recently submitted manuscript, the Follett judges broke precedent this year to present the award to Mrs. Rodman after publication of her book. The Nancy Bloch Intercultural Library has presented its Memorial Award annually since 1955. This year, seventh and eighth grade students participated in reading the books submitted by publishers for the award, and their enthusiasm for "Lions in the Way" is said to have tipped the vote of the judges in favor of this title.

Since the hardcover publication of "Lions in the Way," both the book and Mrs. Rodman have gained increasing recognition, particularly among educators. In April, "Lions in the Way" was selected by the American Library Association as one of the "notable books" of 1966. When it was reprinted by Camelot Books on May 20th, it became the first such "notable book" to be rushed into paperback and thus made available

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

The Missouri General Assembly, during the session just completed, passed legislation providing financial support for kindergarten programs, on the same basis as has been provided for grades one through twelve. However, as kindergarten children attend only one-half day sessions, only one-half of the amount of state aid provided for a full-day student, is paid to the school operating the program.

As a basis for computing the cost of a kindergarten program for our schools, we estimate that we would probably enroll about 320 children. The total cost of this program is estimated to be about $65,000.00. This would include transportation, maintenance and upkeep of buildings, teachers' salaries, supplies and equipment. On the basis of 320 students, our district would received about $39,000 in state aid, this would then leave a balance of approximately $25,000 to be raised locally. This would require a $.15 tax levy.

A sound kindergarten program would help to prepare our beginning school youngsters, would get their formal education started one year earlier and would enable them to start on a more-or-less even basis with children in schools where kindergartens are maintained. Our Board of Education has discussed this problem but, has as yet taken no definite step toward its establishment. The only sound approach, in our opinion, will be to submit this issue to the patrons of the district at the next school election to see whether or not we, the taxpayers, believe that the education of our kindergarten-age children is of sufficient importance to spend an additional $.15 per $100 evaluation. We would imagine that such a vote would favor the education of these youngsters, especially as the major portion of the cost comes from the state and as state taxpayers we will support kindergartens in those schools which already are and will operate them. Unless we provide kindergartens for our children, we are paying for something which they are not getting here. If we had to build a building for kindergarten, it would require an outlay much in excess of $.15 tax increase. However, we have asked the city to continue our lease on two buildings at Airport School. (Our lease on this property expires this year.) Two of these buildings have large, well-lighted classrooms and would be very adequate for a kindergarten until such time as the school district is in a financial situation as to provide other facilities.

Most intelligent educators and educationally informed laymen have long recognized that schools should be centers of inquiry rather than only stale purveyors of information. In essence, we should teach people to think for themselves, to develop inquiring minds, to be problem solvers rather than to attempt to fill them with dead, mostly uninteresting and usually unimportant facts. Yet, few schools fall in this category. It is not easy to maintain an atmosphere wherein students are encouraged to think for themselves and to ask questions. The questions are many times embarrassing ones and our society doesn't seem to be able to accept this kind of education. Maybe sometime it will, then we can develop individuals who can adapt to and change their environment for the better.

One of the current criticisms of college education is that many colleges and universities have lost their concern for the individual student. He is a victim, in many cases, of bigness. He becomes, it is charged, merely a hole in an IBM card. Each student must conform to the rules with little or no exception. This charge may be true in some of our schools.

We submit, however, that there are still colleges that are willing to make exceptions to the rule, who look at the student as a person -- a person who needs and problems may differ from those of any other student. Colleges where the student still maintains an identify and where his problems will be considered as such. We believe our own Southeast Missouri State College is one of these. We are aware of the concern which the administration and faculty there, indicates for the student body generally and especially in individual cases where a general rule does not apply and where exceptions are made on the basis of what is helpful and needful for the individual. This, we believe, is a real and commendable distinction.

The Faculty Orientation Workshop will begin Monday with registration of participants from 9:00 - 10:00 A.M. and at 10:00 the group will be greeted by a representative of the Ministerial Alliance; Dr. A. D. Martin, president of the Board of Education; Mayor Kendall Sikes and William Huff, president of the Chamber of Commerce. The speaker for the morning session will be Dr. Neal Neff, an educational specialist in non-graded systems, college lecturer and curriculum advisor. His topic will be: "Creating the School of Today for Tomorrow's Children".

The remainder of the week will be devoted to small group meetings, in which Dr. Neff will also participate for one day, and other session will be devoted to school policies, personnel information, etc. The faculty will devote considerable time to grade-level or departmental discussions, concerning problems peculiar to their area of concern and will devote the last part of the week to preparing their lesson plans, getting their rooms ready in order to start classes on time Monday, August 28th, when school officially opens.

We have found the pre-school workshop to be one of the most important activities of the year.

We have had occasion last week to visit the beautiful new Charleston High School. This was during the beginning of their special workshop which they held to acquaint teachers and school officials with some of the programs as part of its year-long solidarity campaign with the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong. In Cuba, this is the "year of heroic Vietnam."

Thi Tuyet arrived in Havana in July with dozens of other Vietnamese to attend the Organiztion of Latin-American Solidarity conference at which she was an honorary delegate.

In an interview with the Cuban Communist organ Granma she told this story:

She joined the Viet Cong when she was 11, working first in the underground and becoming a guerrilla fighting in 1965 when "the Yankees sent troops" near her home in the vicinity of Chu Lai.

"First I lost my father, she said. "They killed him. Later they killed my mother, too. There was no alternative but to fight the enemy to avenge my parents and my people."

I am a Protestant minister. One Sunday I had just finished my sermon and was engaged in greeting my parishioners as they left the church. I was approached by a woman who said, "I always enjoy your sermons and try not to miss any if I can help it." Then she added, "I do hope they will be published in book form some day."

To which I replied jokingly, "Perhaps they will be some day, posthumously."

"Well, I hope that will be real soon," replied the woman fervently.

A lady walked into an appliance store and asked to see some toasters. A high-pressure salesman decided instead to sell her an expensive freezer. "Madam," he pitched, "believe me when I tell you this freezer will pay for itself in no time at all."

"Fine," said the lady. "As soon as it doesn't - send it over."

Emerson Electric Plans Expansion

ST. LOUIS (AP)— The Emerson Electric Co. has announced plans for expansion of its electronic and space division at its plant in St. Louis County.

President W. L. Davis said the division will be expanded by more than 125,000 square feet.

Space now assigned to manufacture of fractional-horsepower motors would be devoted to electronics and space efforts.

Davis said the motor production would be shifted to other Emerson plants.

THE Outlook for Business

Vice President
Ford Motor Company

In addition to the usual problems of forecasting the future of general business conditions, forecasting the outlook for the automotive industry in the second half of 1967 is especially complicated because of uncertainties associated with such special factors as labor negotiations, expected higher car prices due to safety and emission control equipment, and the effect of changes in the international situation on the current economic and political situation.

General economic prosperity has contributed to an increase in car sales from 5.9 million in 1961 to 9.3 million in 1965 and a leveling off at 9.0 million last year. The 1967 models started off at what appeared to be a 9.0 million annual rate in the fourth quarter of 1966 and then fell to a calculated 8.0 million rate in the first quarter of 1967. This sharp drop in sales between the fourth and first quarters was due in part to accelerated deliveries of fleet sales in the fourth quarter of 1966 which altered the normal fourth to first quarter seasonal pattern. Hence, the "true" normal demand appears to have been at or near the 8.5 million rate since the beginning of the model years last October. This trend in demand was confirmed by April car sales which were at an 8.5 million rate and sales in early May which continued at the 8.5 million rate.

Assuming no serious work stoppage, sales in the second half of 1967 should be buoyed by higher consumer incomes and an upward trend in consumer confidence but dampened somewhat by higher car prices resulting from government requirements for safety and emission control equipment on the 1968 models.

We believe the economy will advance strongly in the second half. The money supply and time deposits have both increased rapidly since January. This monetary expansion is expected to cause business and consumer spending to pick up in the third quarter. Government fiscal policy is also expansionary, as it looks as if the deficit will be greater than budgeted. These positive factors could be dampened if the Administration's request for a 6 per cent surcharge on personal and corporate income taxes is implemented before the end of the year. Manufacturers' inventories are still somewhat high, which will have a continuing dampening effect on production and employment during the next couple of months, but the underlying expansive forces should begin to be reflected in higher sales, production, and employment by the beginning of the third quarter.

Demand for premium models and specialty cars has remained strong, confirming that consumers have the money to buy cars. Also, the cost of credit has dropped, and there appears to be ample credit availability for new car purchases. Taking all of these factors into consideration, we expect car sales in the second half of the year to be at an 8.6 or 8.7 million rate.

Truck sales in the first quarter of calendar 1967 were at a 1.6 million annual rate -- 10 per cent below the previous year. However, truck availability remains at peak levels, and the rate of plant and equipment spending is expected to increase in the last half of the year. Our forecast is for truck sales to continue at about the same rate, resulting in total sales of 1.6 million for calendar year 1967.

In summary, we expect car sales in the last half of the year to exceed the current 8.5 million rate, possibly reaching the 9.0 million rate by the end of the year. Although below the record 1965 and 1966 levels, total car and truck sales for the year should be about 10 million -- about normal for our population and income and a very good year by any standard of comparison.

Report From Washington

Paul C. Jones

On June 28 I asked the Chairman of the Armed Services Subcommittee on Military Preparedness, Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss) to hold full and complete hearings on the effectiveness of current bombing practices in North Vietnam and the number of military targets which have not been touched.

After two days of hearings this last week, Sen. Stennis, speaking for the committee of which I am a member, said that the bombing should be continued and that there are "additional targets -- military targets of value to the enemy -- that could be put on the target list."

The Committee will not draw final conclusions until all of the testimony is completed. We hope the hearings will clear up the conflicts in an information presented to the American people regarding the results of the air attacks against North Vietnam which does not coincide with testimony given previously in executive session to the Armed Services Committee.

These hearings perhaps may serve to break the military, political and economic stalemate now characteristic of so much of our operations in Vietnam; operations which are sapping the treasure of the United States, and what is more important, costing the lives of so many young men.

SCENIC RIVER BILL PASSES

By 84 to 0, the Senate last week voted to preserve the Eleven Point River in Southern Missouri in its natural state. The Wild and Scenic Rivers bill, of which I am a co-sponsor, designates the Eleven Point as a scenic river from its headwaters at Thomasville to the intersection with Highway 142 near the Arkansas border. The bill now goes to the House for consideration.

As passed by the Senate, the bill also would authorize a study of the Gasconade River for future consideration as a scenic river. The difference between the designation of wild and scenic rivers is based on locality and population, with wild rivers found in the most rugged and sparsely populated areas of the country.

Near Tragedy Ends Huck Finn Raft Journey

ST. LOUIS -- The raft voyage of two modern Huckleberry Finns ended abruptly in near - tragedy about 4 a.m. Wednesday when their wood and drum raft slipped under a moored barge near Crystal City, and they were forced to swim, bumping their heads, under two barges.

Rick Moulton, 18, of Keene, N. H., floated unconscious and was not seen for several minutes after coming from under the barges. When found he was hoisted 40 feet up to the dock of the Armour Agricultural Chemical Co., where the barges were moored.

The boy was given artificial mout - to mouth respiration by Armour employes 45 minutes before he regained consciousness. He was admitted to Jefferson Memorial Hospital in Festus for observation.

Lunsford Phillips, 18, University City, immediately was fished out of the water. He was treated and released at the hospital.

Young Phillips said he and Moulton misjudged the width of the channel in early morning fog and drifted too close to the Missouri shore where the barges were moored.

"We knew right away we were going to hit it and there was nothing we could do about it," young Phillips said. "So we took a good deep breath and jumped. The current carried us under the barge and another one behind it.

"I remember bumping along the bottom of the barge as we were pulled along by the tow (current). We finally surfaced, but th raft, didn't" he said.

The two had patterened their trip after one described by Mark Twain in "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn." Huck's fictional trip with the runaway

PAUL FLOWERS

GREENHOUSE

His twin weaknesses were poker and ice cream; he could eat for or five quarts of the latter any day; after winning a fat pot in a poker game, he did a "victory" dance in the street, and a loser tagged him as 'Bajangles,' which was cant of the time for 'happy-go-lucky.'

Thus he acquired the nickname by which he was more widely known than as Luther 'Bill' Robinson, saluted by Mayor Jimmy Walker as "probably the greatest dancer in the world today." That was in 1938.

For half a century he danced across the stages of America, one of the longest and most successful careers in history of show business. His name emerges again, to strike fond memories in theater goers of the gladsome era, in a book "Famous Negro Entertainers of Stage, Screen and TV," by Charlemae Rollins, (Dodd, Mead, $3.50)a volume to be cherished by theater addicts.

A critic wrote of him:

"He expressed as much beauty with his feet as a singer does with his voice, and 'Bojangles' himself said: "I hear the music, and something comes into my head which I just send down to my feet . . . And that's all there is to it. They just won't be still after that."

The stair tap probably was his most memorable contribution to tap dancing. Although there are many versions of how the routine began, his own story is that it came from a drem.

"I was being made a lord by the King of England, and the King was standing at the head of the stairs. Rather than walk, I danced up to receive the honor."

He played with Shirley Temple in "The Little Colonel" and "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," and he gained great distinction in "The Hot Mikado."

He served his country in two wars, the Spanish-American and World War I; on the other hand, and surely in no wise connected with his military accomplishments, he held the record for backward running, a distance of 75 yards in 8 1-5 seconds.

Here also is the story of how Marian Anderson sang a full concert in Carnegie Hall while standing on one foot. Enroute back to this country for the event, she slipped on the ship's deck just before landing in New York, and broke her ankle. She refused to permit the concert to be canceled, and gave instructions that there was to be no mention of her injury.

On the night of her concert, she wore a long dress to hide the cast on her foot; she asked the stagehands to keep the curtains closed while she placed herslef on the grand piano, so that part of her weight could rest on the instrument. Thus she sang the entire concert while standing on one foot.

How a boy from Perdido (Lost) Street in New Olreans came to be known as 'Dippermouth' and later as "Satchelmouth," eventually contracted to 'Sathmo," makes a part of this book. It is the story of Louis Armstrong, whose musical career began with playing the tambourine in a band in the New Orleans Waifs' Home. He had been sent to the home for shooting at a cat with a .38 caliber pistol, the playing Western badman and shooting up and down the street. Before he left the home, he was playing the cornet, after an apprenticeship as bugler; later he became director of the band.

His gravelly voice became a trademark; it was called "froggish" and he popularized "scat" singing, talking in a singsong to melody.

This is fascinating stuff about some good names in show business of yesterday and today -- Ira Aldrich, Josephine Baker, Harry Belafonte, Nat 'King' Cole, 'Duke' Ellington, Sammy Davis Jr., Lena Horne, Eartha Kitt, Sidney Poitier, Leontyne Price, Paul Robeson, Bert Williams and 'Fats' Waller.

It is to be wished that there had been a chapter on Jimmy Lunceford, the Memphis band leader who gained wide popularity with his records. From 1934 until 1944 his band, in the words of Leonard Feather, "enjoyed a unique reputation as the best disciplined and most showmanly Negro jazz orchestra."

Jimmy Lunceford is bured in Memphis.

Lightest Mexico

by John Abney

MEXICO CITY -- As if it is any wonder, some government officials here are reportedly envious of the United States because of the National Debt.

Mexico has not been able to build up a debt worth mentioning while Washington (probably by fudging) has piled up one slightly higher than the sky. Such status would make any neighbor mad.

A quick review of the history of the U.S. National Debt (referred to hereafter as the party of the first part) plus a capsule explanation of International Financial Systems (referred to hereafter as Mother Pool's Carsick Remedy) should provide a fairly clear picture of what is happening.

The reader will note that the U.S. government went into business back in 1700-something the United States was a backward young nation in that it had no history, royalty nor even major baseball leagues. (There was a group known as the Philadelphia Pirates but they operated from boats.)

At any rate, the most prudent manner of acquiring status seemed to be through a credit system and going into debt. Possibly the initial 50 million amounted to mothing more than expense accounts and random entertainment by a few Congressmen.

Until this time, England, France and Spain were the only nations powerful enough (by international agreement) to maintain a National Debt and catching up with them meant a long and bitter struggle.

But even with such a modest start, Washington managed through a series of clever maneuvers to catch and pass the other world powers. Astute political leaders soon realized that Congressmen alone, in their limited numbers, could not achieve a debt of any signifance. Thus, the Senate was created to speed up the project.

Similarly, the Whigs and Tories were a bit slow so the Democrats and Republicans were invited to initiate a crash program.

Within a relatively short time, the revised system was able to devise a National Debt of 286 billion dollars. (It may be explained at this point that there actually is no debt, since this is money the country reportedly owes itself. For practical and other purposes, however, it is necessary to quote some figure in order to remain a world power.)

There is reliable information available at most bars here to the effect that the amount of the Debt was derived through a simple formula taken from Pizoff's "Handy Guide For Undertakers," published in 1932.

Briefly, the formula (known as "X" or "Common Market Obstacles") is used in this manner:

Bank Assets- -$40,000,000,000
Exports- - - - 20,000,000,000
Political Assassinations- - 25
Commitments- 225,999,999,575
Gobi Desert- - - - - - - - - 400
Total Debt- - -$286,000,000,000

This elementary manner of checking the formula is recommended:

National Debt- $286,000,000,000
(Less) Distance
to moon- - - - 286,000 (miles)
Zero

No need for anyone to be envious of a status as simple as that.

HERE'S WHAT'S NEW IN SHOWER BATH CONTROLS

There was a time when devotees of tub-bathing and those who favored showers came close to feuding. According to the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau, they argued their position in colorfully worded letters-to-the-editor, in syndicated columns and even before state legislatures when building codes came up for review.

Now all that has changed. Most families have members who favor both, and few bathrooms being installed today are without showering equipment as well as bathtubs. Major improvements in equipment helped popularize the shower, especially in recent years, so that if yours is over 5 years old, it's outdated. (It may even be outdated it it's brand new and doesn't include some of the advanced features.)

According to Howard Griesbach of Powers Regulator Co., a firm that helped pioneer all types of liquid flow controls, the upgrading features include the following:

1. BETTER TEMPERATURE CONTROLS. In old-fashioned showers, hot and cold water was mixed manually. Any sudden surge in water supply pressure could change the mixture, giving the user a sudden dousing of icy cold or near-scalding water that could be as dangerous as it was unwelcome. Today's controls are engineered to adjust to pressure change so that, once it's set, the temperature remains constant.

2. BETTER SHOWER HEADS. The old ones were shaped like the rose on a watering can and offered the user just as little control over water flow. Some were so large in diameter that the strong rush of water could knock over an off-balance bather. Today's showerhead has as many as eight different spray settings, ranging from fine, needle and coarse to full-flow. Unlike the old types, which often clogged, today's are self-cleaning.

Marine Chief Points out Enemy's Lack of Successes

KANSAS CITY (AP)— Marine Corps Commandant Wallace Green Jr. said Wednesday the "enemy hasn't been able to successfully complete any major operation they've commenced."

He made the comment in talking about action around the demilitarized zone separating North and South Vietnam.

Greene, in Kansas City to address the 44th annual Marine League meeting, said he observed more progress being made in Vietnam in his most recent visit there than ever before.

The four-star general also said he backed President Johnson in expanding the number of bombing targets in North Vietnam.

Announcement

Tharon E. Stallings and William S. Huff are pleased to announce that Allen Malcolm is now associated with their agency . .

Allen, who is the son of Mrs. Virginia Malcolm and the late Pleas Malcolm, former postmaster, now resides here in Sikeston with his wife Elaine and their three children.

Allen graduated from the University of Missouri at Columbia in 1963 with a Bachelor of Science degree. After serving in the U.S. Marine Corps, he began working for one of the nation's largest accounting firms. He then joined General American Life and spent four years in their Kansas City office before returning to Sikeston. With General American, Allen has had experience in all fields of life and health insurance, including estate taxation planning.

At the time Allen joined Stallings-Huff, they became the general agents in this area for General American Life, one of the oldest and largest mutual insurance companies in America, offering the finest in major medical, hospitalization, and life insurance coverage.

WASHING AND WAXING THE CAR

Back in the good old days on a sunny Saturday afternoon, everybody in the neighborhood was out in the back yard polishing up his Marmon or Hupmobile. Paint dulled so quickly then that a car might fade before it got dirty.

Today's automobile paint is wonderfully durable, but road haze from dirt, oil and (you should pardon the expression) air pollution does cause a car to lose some of its luster after a while. Weekly washes and occasional polish jobs are a wise form of prevention for the preservation of auto paint. If nothing else, this is marvelous exercise for the lady of the house. It uses muscles you didn't know you had.

Some car wash compounds, available from most any type of automotive retailer, do such a good job on modern paint finishes that you will not even need to dry the car. These detergents air dry without spotting. They usually come in powdered form, ready to mix with water.

A waxing is advised every six months or so. You can use one of the new, one-step cleaner-waxes which are popular, easy to apply and eliminate a step or two. But now and then you really ought to go all the way and give the car a professional treatment.

To do this, wash the car first and be sure it is thoroughly dry. Then apply a paste or liquid cleaner to remove the tough road film washing compounds that do not penetrate. This will dry to a powdery look. Wipe it off.

Now, if you haven't collapsed from so much unaccustomed stretching and bending, you're all set to wax. Plain automotive paste or liquid wax will do nicely.

A hint or two, may be old hat to the Saturday afternoon car fussers, but helpful if you're new at the game: Avoid waxing in hot sun. Work in small patches. Use plenty of clean, soft cloth --old bath towels are perfect.

An elbow grease saver, especially if you are using good old paste wax: Sprinlking a little cornflour on spots that are difficult to polish will work wonders. The cornflour picks upexcessive wax and, with minimum rubbing, brings the paint to a beautiful shine. Also, keep a can of tar remover handy and use it where you need to before you apply the wax.

Sprucing up your car is a great project for a dull weekend - not to mention the benefits to your muscle tone.

honorable man whom we know has spent many long years developing the knowledge and skill required to save the live of the dear one we entrust to his care.

We don't want equality. If there were no men in this world superior to ourselves, no men capable of earning more than we earn, no men capable of preaching finer sermons, organizing greater skill in medicine, in the arts and in literature, and no men of great devotion or spiritual insight, it would be a poor, drab world in which to live. Let us have done with the cult of the common man and begin to recognize and appreciate worth, talent, ability and devotion wherever we find it. Gifted men have carried the world forward on their shoulders. Whatsoever progress we have made, we owe to them. Let us acknowledge it and be grateful for it, and not try to clip their wings and reduce them to the level of mediocrity.

The school has closed at Bertrand and sorry to learn that Prof. Yates has moved to Tenn. Prof will be missed in Bertrand. He was a kind teacher and did all he could to please his scholars; and was a kind neighbor and has many warm friends and we are sorry to say farewell dear teacher.

Mrs. James Hester has been very sick for the past week but is better at this writing.

Claud Whitsell was in Dexter to make his brother a visit Saturday last. Gurley Cahoon accompanied him.

A great many attended church at Bertrand Sunday. The sermon that was preached will long be remembered by young and old.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephens and Miss Annie Goins were in Charleston Friday.

Mr. Dick, the tie inspector, is spending a few days with us this week.

A meeting was held at Dunover church Sunday. A very large crowd attended; more than could get in the house. A basket dinner was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Burton and father started last Saturday for Bardwell, Ky., to see a sick daughter who had been sick for some time. She grew worse and they were sent for in haste but she passed away to that better world above before they reached her, but we hope you will all meet her in heaven where there will be no parting.

Mr. Charles Phillips has gone to Cairo to work for the Halliday firm. He left here but we hope he will improve.

Mr. W.C. Kelner, of Dunaver's Switch, has moved in our neighborhood. He will work this summer for Grant Lumber Company.

Hearnes Vetoes Bill Providing Extra Judges

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes vetoed a bill Wednesday that was originally drawn up in the Senate to provide an additional circuit judge in Jefferson and Washington counties by appointment after Oct. 13, 1967, when bills become effective, and elected in 1968.

The bill was amended in the House by Rep. Charles Sheehan, D-House Springs (Jefferson County) providing that none of the provisions of the act would become effective until January, 1969.

In stating his reasons for the veto Gov. Hearnes noted the amendment is in total conflict with the provisions of the bill or an election in 1968 and creates a conflict which cannot be reconciled by any reasonable interpretation.

The 23rd Judicial District, which is composed of Jefferson and Washington counties, now has two circuit judges. The Senate bill was introduced by Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, whose senatorial district includes the 23rd Judicial District.

Blackwell and Sheehan have been at loggerheads before on legislation affecting the area they both represent.

Hearnes signed three other new bills. One will permit the director of a mental health or correctional institution to order standard medical, surgical and psychiatric treatment for a patient or inmate without consent.

IT'S UP TO YOU

Pacifists: Enemies of Peace

We wish once more to register our strong disapproval of all the publicity given to the avowed enemies of our country and to their treasonable activities among us. Before me as I prepare this column is a picture of Herbert Aptheker, our number one Communist, along with Tom Hayden, one of the founders of Students for a Democratic Society, and fellow travelers and Communist fronters Staughton Lynd and A. J. Muste. (The two latter I am sorry to say are members of the Society of Friends and thus my co-religionists, but I couldn't disapprove more of their activities.)

These men have been widely pictured throughout America and have received an enormous amount of newspaper space. They want to see our country defeated. They are a part of the group who defy our laws and carry Vietcong flags in parades. They look with favor upon draft card burners and obstructionist tactics designed to thwart the activities of our government in Vietnam, resulting in the slaughter of more of our boys.

Our Communist enemies now openly point to the fact that there is division in our country and that they need not assemble around a conference table to talk peace, for sooner or later the opposition here will take us out of the war. Just as the emergency peace campaign in Europe was one of the very important factors in inducing Chamberlain to agree to the sell-out in Munich, thus bringing on further aggression and leading to World War II, so our own pacifists are undermining the will and determination of our government and large numbers of our people to prosecute the war to a successful conclusion in Vietnam. A back-down there would bring further aggression and eventually war for survival. The greatest enemies of achieving peace in the modern world are the pacifists, who insist upon neutralizing the efforts of government to establish and maintain peace on the basis of justice throughout the world. In time of war such activity ought not to be tolerated. It gives aid and comfort to the enemy and causes him to think with good reason that if he persists a little longer we will back down and he will win. That has always been considered treason, and it ought to be so considered now.

EQUALITY: THE LEVEL OF MEDIOCRITY

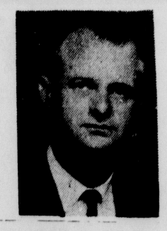

Most of us are conscious of the fact that the world contains multitudes of men who are far abler than ourselves. Far from making us jealous or unhappy, we are exceedingly grateful for them. We enjoy great music, but we could not write it, as Beethoven, Bach, Brahms, Chopin, Tchaikovsky, Schubert, Mozart, Verdi and a host of others have done. We can play a few instruments, but not like Liszt, Paderewski, Kreisler, Heifetz, Rubinstean and many other immortals who have brought heaven down to earth with their superb excellence.

Our libraries are filled with good books, the treasuries of history, literature and culture. We take great delight in reading Shakespeare's plays and Tennyson's poetry, but we could not have written such marvelous works. We are fortunate that they could. Suppose we had no great minds such as these! How fortunate that we can ride along with them, enjoying their creations as if they were our own. Why should we be jealous of them? Rather we should be thankful and pay tribute to them.

Our devotion and spiritual perception is vastly inferior to that of a Saint Paul, a Saint Francis of Assisi, a Saint Augustine or a Saint Thomas Aquinas, but we can soar up into the heavens on the spiritual power generated by a host of saints and prophets.

We enjoy our automobile, riding about the world in jet planes, our radio, television, and stereophonic music. We could not have developed the great industrial giants of our country that have lifted the burden of toil from our backs and emancipated us from the handicraft age into a degree of luxury unknown by kings a few centuries ago, but we can enjoy the results of the efforts of the great men who created these things for our enjoyment.

When taking a loved one to the hospital, who wants a common, average surgeon? We all want a doctor, not only with superior skill, but a conscientious,

Viet Youths Forsake Riots For Positive Political Work

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Many young men and women in South Vietnam have of late decided that parades, protest marches and demonstrations aren't the most effective way to get better government.

Groups representing thousands of young people met recently in Saigon and decided "it is no longer useful for the youth of Vietnam to take to the streets to shout cheers or boos or to foster ineffective criticism."

Instead, these youth decided to get into the coming presidential and legislative political campaigns.

Teams of these young people will go to the thousands of South Vietnam's hamlets to explain the election laws. They'll explain to people exactly how the polls work. They'll aim to stir discussions that will get people to the polls. They'll make certain that the people know their voting rights and that all candidates' rights are not shaded.

Youth units in each province will arrange for candidate debates so that the villagers will hear "both sides" of the issues.

In the weeks before the election, youth "watchdog" teams will try to discover and expose any shady deals or "undue pressure" tactics carried out to influence the voters.

On election day, these same watchdog teams will check the polls to make certain the men running the voting places do an honest job.

This movement is likely to set off some fireworks if there are generals unwilling to accept the results of the elections.

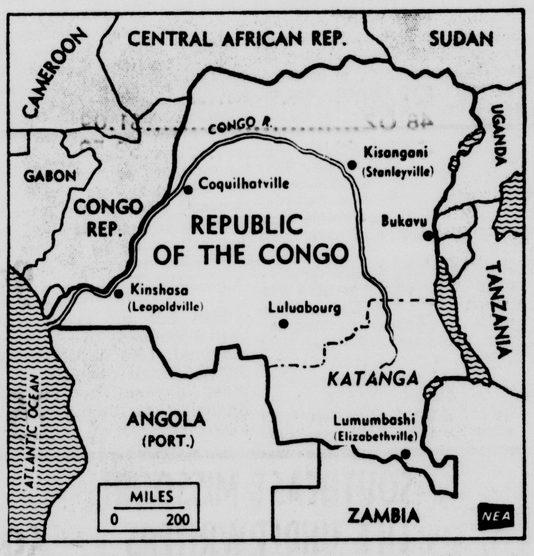

If some generals attempt to nullify the elections and attempt to take over illegally the powers of the men elected to the presidency and the South Vietnam legislature, it is unlikely that the young people who will have pushed so hard for honest and open elections would stand still. A continued rule by a military junta would thus meet opposition among these organized youths.

The ability and willingness of young Vietnamese to stand up against pressure showed up in the meetings of the assemblymen elected to write South Vietnam's new constitution. On a number of occasions, these assemblymen disagreed with views of the military junta. On these occasions, the assemblymen did not bow to the military's wishes. They stood firm and achieved their objectives. One can quarrel with parts of the new constitution, but it was not written by the military.

What will happen if there is a clash between the military junta and the youth groups is certainly not clear today. But one thing is certain. Great numbers of the young people of South Vietnam have decided that protest marches and street riots are not the answer to Vietnam's problems.

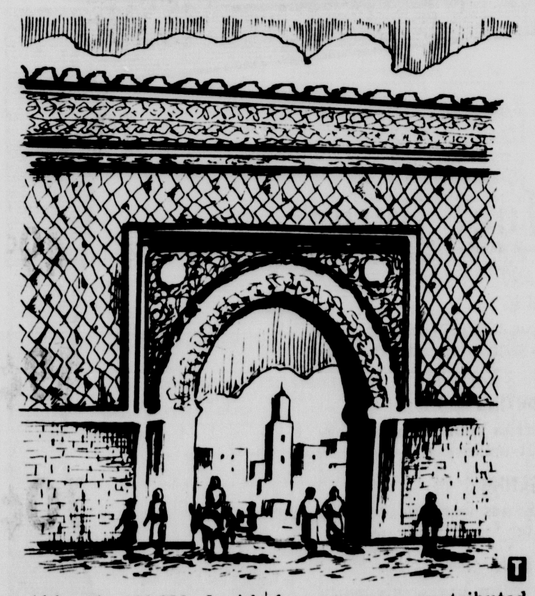

They've decided, instead, that what's needed is for them, the youth, to become workers in a positive program to get better elections and better government. They're going to take part in the tough, monotonous, undramatic tasks of precinct work and getting out the vote. This isn't going to get them the headlines or television coverage that a riot or sit-in would provide.

It's a very healthy sign.

CONGO CRISIS is again on the United Nations agenda. President Joseph Mobutu has appealed to the world body to halt recruitment of foreign mercenaries for an alleged plot seeking his overthrow. Trouble spots are Kisangani and Bukavu, where planeloads of mercenaries were reported to have landed following kidnaping of exiled former Premier Moise Tshombe.

175,000 JEWS STILL LIVE IN ARAB AND MOSLEM LANDS

Although 100,000 Jewish children and adults have managed to move from Algeria to France, while thousands of others escaped to Israel, South America and elsewhere, 175,000 others are still stranded in Algeria, Iran, Morocco and Tunisia.

Of these people still in Arab and Moslem lands about 50,000 receive an average of $100 per year in help from money contributed through the United Jewish Appeal. The money goes for such things as school feeding, medical aid, welfare services, care of the aged and food parcels.

A donation to help these people may be mailed to United Jewish Appeal at 1290 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019.

JEWS FLEE TERROR

Jewish survivors from Iraq owe their lives to generous Americans whose contributions helped bring them to Israel. You can help other Jews, still in Arab lands, move to Israel. The move costs $400 per Jew. Contributions may be mailed to: United Jewish Appeal, 1290 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019.

More than 400 works have been written about Billy the Kid, including movies, plays, poems, novels, and at least one ballet.

Flooding Has Long Plagued Fairbanks

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Throughout its history, first as a brawling mining camp and then as a major distribution point for the vast Alaskan interior, Fairbanks has done almost yearly battle with the Chena River.

Virtually every year, almost like clockwork, the Chena has lapped to the top of its banks with winter snow melting under sunny summer skies.

This year was no exception, but drenching rains that continued unabated through four long days and nights, gave the river punch it had never had before and it sent Fairbanks reeling under the impact.

Water is everywhere.

It surges against buildings and homes and cars and trucks, abandoned by their owners as they sought to escape the rapidly rising water.

The main streets of Fairbanks, the side streets and the main highways leading in and out of town, are strewn with abandoned vehicles, literally hundreds of them, of all shapes and sizes.

Some lie in water midway up to their doors, some have only their tops showing above the brown sea that has engulfed Fairbanks.

Debris of a thousand descriptions floats down the streets turned into rivers — oil drums, new lumber and old lumber, a liquor bottle, a box, a partially inflated football, a half-sunken couch which once graced someone's living room.

At Fairbanks International Airport, the main building is crammed to the rafters with men, women and children driven from their homes.

They wait-silent and unsmiling for the most part— and try to catch a nap as they can, on hard plastic chairs, on benches, on the bare floor.

River boats, the long, narrow, shallow-draft craft used on interior Alaskan streams, darted everywhere, carrying evacuees to higher ground.

Above the ground, helicopters kept the sky alive with coughing engine sounds as they scurried about rescuing the stranded and carrying rescue officials from place to place as they were needed.

When night fell on Fairbanks, it left one with an eerie feeling of being alone on the sea at night. The water muffled all but a very few sounds.

THE AIR FORCE THUNDERBIRDS in action demonstrating precision flying in F-100 Super Saber jet fighters. The six-pilot team will be the highlight of the air show-open house Sept. 2 celebrating Scott air force base's golden Anniversary.

Thrills Await Visitors at Scott Air Force Base Open House and Sky Show

Celebrating 50 years service with a day-long open house and six-hour air show, the base has gone all-out to invite world-famous and nationally-known attractions--some never before seen in the midwest.

Acts like the precision flying Thunderbirds in their six Super Sabre jets; the army's free-falling Golden Knights' the comical "Flying Professor," and Ernie Opp--a pilot who brings back the barnstorming days as he literally twists and bends his small plane from one impossible maneuver to the next; and many others will headline the air show. St. Louis celebrity, Bob Hardy, will keep spectators informed of events.

On the ground, the Jefferson Rifles will march to lively tunes from the Bagpipers, members of the air force band. And spectators will see exhibits ranging from the air force official art display to the atomic energy commission's explanation of nuclear power in space. The public will be able to tour parked aircraft on display--enter the cavernous C-141 Starlifter, jet cargo plane; peer into the cockpit of the famed Phantom war plane; and wee what it's like inside a flying hospital.

Gates will open to the public at 10 a.m. Refreshments will be available. Nearly all displays and exhibits will be shown along the main flight line and inside the large hangars of the base, several blocks from the main entrance to Scott on highway 158. The art collection display will be seen in the base gymnasium about one block from the flight line.

Acres of free parking and plenty of refreshments will be available. Scott Air Force Base is on highway 158 near Belleville.

If You Were the Judge

Leftovers to Patron

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

"Let us be couth, madam," the snooty waiter growled. "This is a dignified restaurant. What you don't finish, you've got to leave on your plate."

"Not on your life," was Vera's stubborn response. "The food was expensive and I paid for it. Therefore, it's mine and I can take it home with me."

The dispute had to be resolved in court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you have permitted Vera to take home her left overs?

This is how the judge ruled: He sided with Vera. He held that food served and paid for in a restaurant constitutes a sale; that the food served to Vera, therefore, belonged to Vera and and she had a right to take it home if she so desired.

(Based upon a 1954 New York Court of Appeals Decision)

Lightning Hits Barn, Four Mules Killed

50 Years Ago
August 17, 1917

The storm Sunday afternoon proved disastrous to Mr. Alexander, who lives on a farm a few miles south of Buckeye, when lightning struck and burned his large barn, killed four mules and crippled three so badly it was necessary to kill them.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Lee are the proud parents of a fine boy born Monday of this week.

Fred, Henry and Herman Schroeder and Gus Daus of Cape Girardeau, and Charles Bush of Poplar Bluff, arrived Monday to work on the new Scott County Milling Co.'s office building.

H. S. Harper has resigned his position as manager of the grocery department of the Farmers Supply Co., and will go to farming on his place near Noxall. Si is an industrious young man and we feel sure that he has made no mistake in taking this step. Good luck to him.

The grounds surrounding the local high school and gymnasium is one of the prettiest spots in Sikeston. The flowers and shrubbery, set off by the evenly mowed grass, is an ample reward for the Woman's Club, in cooperation with Mr. Hayden, and the school board's work.

Eight couples of Sikeston young folks, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Trowbridge, motored to Keeners Springs, north of Poplar Bluff, last Saturday and spent a very enjoyable night under the shelter of cars and a lean-to.

Miss Hyacinth Sheppard entertained Wednesday afternoon with a party in honor of her little nieces and nephews, Lavinia, Ray Allen, Raynette and Miller Moll of Cairo.

Kentucky Serviceman Thinks Vietnam Needs Bluegrass

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Warrant Officer Russell Preston, a native of Kentucky, yearned for the sight of some of that wonderful grass from the Blue Grass State as he gazed on the expanse of bare ground at his Mekong delta base camp in Vietnam.

So Preston, attached to the 9th Infantry Division, wrote a plea to Kentucky's governor, Edward T. Breathitt:

"I would like to have some grass seed. Not the ordinary, run-of-the-mill grass seed common to the other 49 states, but the grass seed of the exceptional state— that is to say, Suh, Kentucky Bluegrass seed."

Breathitt, described as touched by the letter, turned the matter over to his special assistant for agriculture, Hayden Timmons. Timmons figures he can accommodate the Kentuckian far from home.

Ann Landers

Pets Aren't People

Dear Ann Landers: I had a bridge game last night and invited a substitute. The woman hadn't been in my home 20 minutes when she received a phone call. It seems her poodle was upset when she left the house and her husband couldn't quiet her. We heard him say, "Madame Lazonga is having a nervous breakdown. Please speak to her for a few minutes."

The woman talked to that dog for 12 minutes. I could feel my blood pressure mounting. After she hung up she said, "Madame Lazonga is just like a child. You girls who have children know what it's like when a youngster won't go to sleep."

I resented the interruption, but I resented the comparison even more. Will you comment please? -- STILL STEAMING

Dear Still: Well, here we go again. Every time I say pets are pets and should not be confused with people, about 20,000 animal lovers accuse me of being a mean old woman, a Communist and mentally ill. I will simply say there is a line to be drawn and rational people know where to draw it.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a letter from a wife who was mad because her husband wouldn't roll up the tube of toothpaste. Then a nitwit wrote that she was ready to leave her husband because he kept saying "without" instead of "unless." Another nut was hysterical because her husband wouldn't let her see him without his dentures. She felt "left out."

An old maid wants to call the police because her neighbor hangs out the wash on Sunday. A teen-ager gripes because Mom flicks the porch light off and on while she is saying good night to her boy friend. A young kid screams his head off because he spent $14 on a girl and she didn't kiss him good night.

The trouble with these lunatics is they have never had any real trouble in their lives. Why do people write about such trifles anyway? And why do you print such nonsense? - - OTTAWA MALE

Dear Ot: Letters like the ones you describe serve a useful purpose because they help put the two-bit, penny ante gripes in proper perspective. Now what is YOUR problem, Mister?

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 13-year-old girl who lives in Wisconsin. Isn't it dumb for Mother's Day to fall on the first day of the fishing season? Every Mother's Day as far back as I can remember, my mother has sat home while her corsage wilted in the refrigerator, and Dad went fishing. Is there a solution to this annual problem? -- EAU CLAIRE READER

Dear Eau Claire: From what I know about Wisconsin fishermen, it would be easier to change Mother's Day than to get them to stay home. Celebrate Mother's Day one day early -- on Saturday --and tell your Dad that's HIS Father's Day present.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50¢ in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

The Prayer From The Upper Room

"Pass no judgment, and you will not be judged. For as you judge others, so will yourselves be judged." (Matthew 7:1-2, NEB)

PRAYER: O God, let the mirror of Thy Word reveal me to myself. May the Holy Spirit remind me how I look. Teach me to look to Christ as my example and live in His spirit rather than being critical of what others look like. In Jesus' name. Amen.

Music Reading Urged For First Graders

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Children should be taught to read music when they begin the first grade, says Edwin Ara Movsesian.

Movsesian, coordinator of music and reading for San Bernardino County, says that children taught to read music will read the written word better and faster.

Words to the Star Spangled Banner, written by Frances Scott Key, were first printed on handbills and distributed to Baltimore citizens.

Today In U. S. History

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1940, Germany announced a total blockade of Britain in World War II.

On this date:

In 1786, the hero of the Alamo, Davey Crockett, was born.

In 1807, Robert Fulton's steamboat, the Clermont, made its first run up the Hudson River from New York to Albany.

In 1940, Wendell Willkie accepted the Republican nomination for president, in a speech at Elwood, Ind.

In 1948, Alger Hiss, appearing before the House Committee on Un-American Activities, emphatically denied that he was a Communist.

Ten years ago — The United Auto Workers Union said it would reshape its wage demands if car makers would reduce prices $100 per car.

TIZZY — by Kate Osann

"I don't think Father should make me wait a whole week for my allowance. After all, in summertime the days are LONGER!"

"Lost his class ring, did he? Have you looked in the refrigerator?"

"Haven't lived here long myself. Took a wrong exit off the turnpike one day and decided to heck with it!"

for permission to list gross receipts taxes apart from service charges on monthly telephone bills in Missouri. The company proposes to lower certain basic rates before adding the special city taxes with the net effect of an increase in Bell's revenues of about $1,800,000.

Gross receipts taxes, or franchise taxes, are assessed by cities as a source of revenue.

The new tariffs will go into effect Sept. 13 unless the state public service commission finds reasons, not apparent at this time, for suspension.

A cowboy with nothing much to do ambled into a blacksmith's shop and picked up a horseshoe without realizing it had just come from the forge. Instantly, he dropped it, shoved his seared hand into his pocket and tried to act nonchalant.

"Kinda hot, wasn't it?" chided the blacksmith.

"Nope," replied the cowpoke, "Just don't take me long to look at a horseshoe."

OUR 56TH YEAR | 10¢ PER COPY | SIKESTON, SCOTT COUNTY, MISSOURI, THURSDAY, AUGUST 17, 1967 | NUMBER 277

Fish, furs, Eskimos, dog teams—that's not the full picture of Canada today. In its 100th birthday year, Canada can boast of its huge industrial output (highest per capita in the world), oil boom, mineral wealth, the $1 billion Trans-Canada Highway, Expo 67 and an arts revolution. The health of the Confederation is robust, despite some unrest in French-speaking Quebec.

By The Associated Press

Tall timber, beaver pelts, and faithful huskies pulling trappers and traders across the Yukon tundra -- that may have been Canada's image in the far past.

But Canada today, 100 years after confederation, has far more to offer than frontier products. It is the second largest country in the world, after the Soviet Union, the home of about 20 million people, and the site of a burst of new economic activity.

The Yukon is full of life: a new copper mine has been found, and surveyors are plotting a road to link the Arctic Ocean with the Pacific. And if you're hoping to see canadian trappers and traders, your best bet may be Expo 67 -- Canada's enormous international exhibition.

To be sure, problems still beset Canada. French Canadian unrest, highlighted by De Gaulle's recent visit, could disrupt communications, transportation and industry if Quebec province ever seceded. This is not expected to occur, but De Gaulle's cry of "Long Live Free Quebec" was cheered by some of Canada's 6.5 million French-speaking inhabitants.

Canada is still heavily in debt to foreign investors, and the country depends more and more on imports from the United States--70 per cent of 1965's incoming trade. But Canada's production is diversified and the whole economy is a far cry from the days when fish and furs constituted the little trade that existed.

Prospectors scrounging for gold in Northwest Territories streams are a thing of the past; gold production as a whole is slipping in Canada. But even with the gold rush played out, Canada has the highest per capita mineral output of any country in the world.

The nation now leads this hemisphere in producing nickel, zinc, platinum - group metals, and asbestos. Canadians are mining a rich iron - ore in Quebec - Labrador, developing a potash boom in Saskatchewan, and discovering new strikes in British Columbia -- where about 25 mines (assorted mineral have been developed since 1960).

Oil is another source of wealth for Canada -- and has been since 1958, when Ontario brought in North America's first oil well.

A 1947 oil discovery in Alberta set the pace for post-war economic boom in Canada's west. Successive strikes have spurred pipeline construction, new settlement, transportation links, and foreign investment.

The rush is still on. One oil corporation just paid a record price for oil rights at Zama Lake, in Alberta. And another is now drilling Canada's first offshore oil test--on a mobile platform in the Pacific, off Vancouver Island.

Transportation has had its own boom, close on the heels of western expansion.

The $470 million St. Lawrence Seaway and the $1 billion Trans - Canada Highway, both completed within the last ten years, tie the western regions to the east and to trading partners beyond. New railway lines are taking over where the dogsleds used to run -- opening up to the not - so - desolate north to bring out loads of ore.

As for the driver of the dog-sled -- he appears to have traded in the rough - and - tumble life for the culture circuit. The Stratford Shakespeare Festival, in Ontario, spent its first season in a circus tent; now it boasts a 2,200 - seat theater. A $40 million national arts center is under construction in Ottawa, with completion scheduled for 1968.

And another "cultural" happening, Expo 67, has turned into a major economic miracle on its own -- with attendance already past 25 million.

Desertion Report Disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara quickly dismissed today a London report that the desertion rate among U.S. soldiers in Germany is running at about 1,000 this year, and three-fourths were primarily concerned with avoiding duty in Vietnam.

"Sheer nonsense," McNamara called the report.

McNamara's reaction to the report was passed to reporters by Pentagon spokesman.

The Times of London stated that an international underground network was helping American soldiers desert rather than fight in Southeast Asia.

The Pentagon said top Army officials in Europe had been aware for some time of stories about an anti-Vietnam group aiding deserters but said these stories "have been greatly exaggerated."

"Their activities have had little or no effect on absenteeism," the Pentagon said, adding there has been no appreciable increase in the numbers of soldiers failing to report back to duty.

Army headquarters in Europe currently lists 338 men as long-term absentees." There are more than 225,000 Army men in Germany.

At the same time, the Pentagon pointed out that so far this year 10,500 servicemen in Europe have volunteered for Vietnam assignments. Last year the total was over 14,000, the Pentagon said.

The Times said about three-quarters of the 1,000 soldiers were primarily concerned with avoiding combat.

"As the Vietnam war grows, so does the number of deserters and the activity of groups aiding them-which often use the techniques of waretime resistance movements," the paper said.

The Times said its figures were based on an investigation in Europe. The U.S. did not provide figures on what it told the Times was a slight but insignificant rise in the absentee rate.

At Heidelberg, Germany, a spokesman for the U.S. army headquarters in Europe called the London Times report grossly exaggerated." He said the Army's present list of long-term absentees totals 338 persons, some dating back several years.

This figure was regarded as minimal in view of the fact that the Army has more than 200,000 troops in Europe.

Policy Rights Outlined

WASHINGTON (AP)- Undersecretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach told Congress today that the President has the top foreign affairs power under the Constitution- "and I doubt that any president has ever acted to the full limits of that authority."

Katzenbach, a former attorney general, at the same time said congressional support and authority is helpful to the President in carrying out foreign policy.

Katzenbach outlined the Johnson administration's stand before the Senate Foreign Relations committeemen who are looking into the question of whether President Johnson has overstepped his constitutional powers in such actions as sending U.S. forces to Vietnam.

The committee is headed by Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., a critic of Johnson's Vietnam policy.

Katzenbach testified the United States would be using "outmoded phraseology" if it declared war in the Vietnam conflict.

"A declaration of war would greatly mis-state our objectives and be greatly misunderstood," Katzenbach said. "It would not, I think, reflect correctly the very limited objectives of the United States with respect to Vietnam to use an outmoded phraseology, to declare war."

Any such declaration presumably would be aimed against North Vietnam, although neither Katzenbach nor the committee members said so.

Katzenbach said Congress had its opportunity to pass on the use of American forces in Vietnam when it adopted a resolution on Aug. 7, 1964, authorizing President Johnson to repel attacks and prevent further aggression.

He said that resolution— usually called the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution— permitted Congress to fulfill its consitutional role in acting upon the use of American forces overseas and in helping to shape American policy.

"What could a declaration of war done that would have given the President clearer authority?" Katzenbach asked.

"I think that's one of the difficulties now," said Fulbright, "We're not quite sure which government you're waging war against."

Katzenbach flared. "The Congress knew the authority it was giving the president to use the armed forces," he told Fulbright.

Fulbright disagreed. He said the resolution was adopted in an atmosphere of emergency after Communist attacks on U.S. warships. "The general policy as to waging a war there was against it," he said.

Katzenbach contended that the Constitution's drafters "recognized that the voice of the United States in foreign affairs was that of the President" and "throughout our history the focus has always been upon the President."

Churchill Memorial Nears Completion

FULTON, Mo. (AP)- The three-year job of moving and restoring the 17th century stone church of St. Mary the Virgin Aldermanbury from London to the campus of Westminster College here is nearing completion.

This week five large bells are being installed atop the 160-foot tower of the chapel which is a memorial to the late Sir Winston Churchill who made his famous Iron Curtain speech at the college March 5, 1946. The bells will be electronically operated from a four-faced clock and will ring out the classic Westminster chimes every hour from 6 a.m. until midnight.

Starting in 1964, the church stood at Love Lane and Aldermanbury street in London, has been transported stone by stone to the Westminster campus in Fulton. The church was designed by Sir Christopher Wren in 1666 to replace one that burned on the same spot. The church was largely gutted by German bombs in the blitz of London in 1941.

David Stinson, Westminster college vice president and director of the Churchill Memorial project, said it began as "in honor of the speech Churchill made here . . . after he died it became more a memorial to the man than to the speech.

In the speech, with President Harry S. Truman in the audience, Churchill made a plea for solidarity of English speaking nations and support for the United Nations. And he added: "From Stettin in the Baltic to Trieste in the Adriatic an Iron Curtin has descended across the continent. Behind that line lie all the capitals of the ancient states of Central and Eastern Europe in what I must call the Soviet sphere."

Four More Bodies Found As Flood Begins Receding

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — The brown flood waters of the Chena River receded today, but at a pace so slow that the city's 15,000 evacuees were not expected to begin returning to their damaged homes and businesses before Saturday. Only a tiny fraction of them carried flood insurance, officials said.

The bodies of four more victims were found Wednesday, disaster headquarters and state police reported, bringing Alaska's flood death total to seven. Two bodies were discovered in the city and two more in Tok, a river community on the Alaska Highway.

Police conducting a house-to-house search earlier reported three deaths including that of a young child.

The victims were not identified and the cause of death was not given.

About 95 per cent of Fairbanks' buildings were affected by the flood, but an insurance executive estimated just two per cent of the community's property owners had flood insurance. The situation prompted calls for immediate federal rehabilitation funds and low cost loans to businessmen and homeowners.

"It's much more than I expected it to be," said Creath Tooley, western regional director of the President's Office of Emergency Planning, who toured the city of 30,000 by boat and helicopter Wednesday. "You just don't expect to see a town inundated such as this."

Damage was placed at about $200 million.

Gov. Walter Hickel, calling for Fairbanks to be designated a federal disaster area, said he thought Saturday would be the earliest time residents could return to their homes— if rain holds off.

Cloudy skies settled above the city today and the Weather Bureau forecast a few light showers. "If those clouds drop more rain we could be right back in trouble," said Mayor H. A. Boucher.

The danger of uncontrolled fire, which had officials on edge Wednesday after five buildings burned in the downtown area, tapered off with no additional fires reported today.

Alaska Declared Disaster Area

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson today declared a major disaster area for Alaska, hit by severe storms and floods, and made available $1 million in federal funds for emergency relief and recovery areas.

Alaska sustained serious damages, particularly in and around Fairbanks, when flood waters broke through barriers and forced thousands of residents from their homes and businesses.

The White House statement said federal aid will be made available immediately to the state and its stricken communities.

The Office of Emergency Planning's regional office in Everett, Wash., is coordinating the federal agency disaster assistance activities in Alaska.

The Small Business Administaation also will make loans available for home and business repairs, the White House said, with 3 per cent interest for 30-year periods.

Dexter Girl Killed

A 11/2-year-old Dexter girl was killed when she was struck by a car one mile east of Gray Ridge on highway 114 at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

The highway patrol said the girl, Dona Sue Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Mason of route two, Dexter, was playing at the home of her grandparents, wandered onto the highway and in front of a car driven by Orville Fielder, 33, Essex. She was born at Dexter Dec. 31, 1965.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Sunday at Watkins and Sons Funeral Home in Dexter with the Rev. George Hill officiating.

Burial will be in Essex cemetery.

One person was injured in a car-truck accident two miles west of Salcedo on Route AB at 8:30 p.m. last night.

Troopers said a car driven by Manual Dawson, 47, Essex, hit the rear of a pickup truck parked on the highway without lights. The truck was driven by Norman Johnson, 47, Essex route two.

Johnson was taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital with possible shoulder injury and fractured ribs, and head and arm cuts.

Added Tax To Increase Phone Rates

Telephone bills to Sikeston customers will go higher, although Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. says it is reducing its rates.

The company will begin adding on a five per cent city franchise tax on the bill along with the state tax of three per cent and federal excise tax of 10 per cent.

Previously, the city tax was included in the telephone bill. The new method of billing is expected to become effective Sept. 13.

One party business rates will change here from $10.74 to $11, including taxes an increase of 26 cents.

One party home phone rates will increase 19 cents, including taxes, from $5.09 to $5.28.

The change is being effected because company earnings have been down to a dangerous point, John Donoho, manager said.

The telephone company increased the franchise payment this year from $11,500 to $16,500.

The telephone company asked the Public Service Commission

NFO Threatens Market Boycott If Farm Price Demands Not Met

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The militant National Farmers Organization has given the nation's food processors an ultimatum: Increase prices for farm products or face an all-out market boycott by farmers that could "shut down the agricultural plant of America."

More than 35,000 NFO members shouted their approval of the plan and adopted the slogan, "No prices, no production," at a meeting Wednesday.

No deadline for the desired price boosts was set, but NFO President Oren Lee Staley of Rea, Mo., indicated that the board of directors will not hesitate to order the all-commodity boycott if market conditions fail to improve.

"The NFO is serving notice that farmers can no longer accept the low farm prices we are receiving," he said.

"Every processor has some time to decide whether he wants to pay the prices and sign the purchase contracts or push the American farmer into waging the economic battle we are willing to fight."

NFO members also authorized the directors to order holding actions of three to four days on milk plus regional market boycotts on livestock and to establish an NFO "grain bank" in hopes of putting a "floor" under grain prices.

Staley announced the NFO target on prices is $1.50 a bushel on corn; $3 a bushel on soybeans and $2 for wheat. On milk it is $6 a hundredweight, about 75 cents over the prevailing price in the Des Moines federally regulated market.

The target on livestock is $22.45 a hundredweight on hogs, $32.45 on choice cattle and $29.45 for lambs, well above prevailing markets.

Staley said the interim measures would "let the processors of this nation know that we are building for an all-out holding action that would affect every commodity and would shut down the agricultural plant of America."

Alluding to reports of scattered violence in three major withholding actions on livestock, grain and milk, the group has conducted since 1962, the NFO president promised that boycotts would be conducted with "a businesslike and calm approach."

The organization, which claims membership in 28 states, has never attempted an all-commodity holding action.

Radar Nabs 4 Motorists

Four motorists were charged by police Wednesday with speeding: Aubrey Michael Jr., Benton, Francinea Marshall, 317 Kramer, Ronald H. Cobb, 810 East Hunter, and Mrs. Joy A. Guthrie, 303 Missouri.

Ellouise S. Hearnes, 39, 500 Virginia, suffered injuries to her right knee and right arm at 11:35 p.m. Wednesday when the car she was driving struck the rear of a parked car on East street near Kathleen. She refused medical attention. The parked car is owned by Mary F. Compas, 305 Kay Drive.

Bids Asked for Bootheel Roads

JEFFERSON CITY-- The State Highway Commission will call for bids on Aug. 31 for an estimated $6,000,000 in highway construction, with two projects listed for Bootheel counties.

In New Madrid county, route WW, calls for 12.9 miles grading, culverts, bridging and surfacing from New Madrid east to the Mississippi county line. The project includes a 211-foot continuous I-beam bridge over East Bayou and a 102-foot precast concrete slab bridge over Wilson Bayou.

On Route B and route B spur in Dunklin county, calls for 3.5 miles grading, culvert bituminous mat surfacing from route BB to route 53, and from route B south to route 25 in Holcomb.

Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach, a B-25 navigator in World War II, was shot down and taken prisoner by the Italians in 1943 while on a bombing mission over the Mediterranean.

Rodeo Success In All Ways

Although not all income and expense from the 15th annual Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo are tabulated, it was a financial success, John E. Harper Jr., Jaycee president, said today.

He reported that 23,000 persons attended four performances in ideal weather. Saturday night's performance was the biggest with 9,000 attending.

Ticket sales produced about $50,000, Harper reported.

A profit of $5,000 to $8,000 is expected, he said.

Jaycees will keep enough money to start wheels turning for next year's rodeo and pay the remainder of the profit on a $11,000 deficit from last year's rodeo when weather was unfavorable.

"The rodeo was in every way a success," Harper said.

Curtain Ready to Go up On 65th Annual State Fair

SEDALIA (AP) - The 65th annual Missouri State Fair opens here Saturday with all sorts of competition and entertainment for what is expected to be a record crowd of visitors for the nine-day event.

Fair officials said considerable interest has been shown in the 1967 edition through inquiries, through increases in exhibits, and in agricultural and other entries for $167,000 in prizes, an increase of $27,163 over 1966.

Due to a hike in admission from 50 cents to a dollar, many free attractions have been scheduled. Visitors will find the 60-year-old grandstand gone and in its place bleacher seats. The grandstand had been condemned as unsafe. Next year a new structure will go up in its place at a cost of more than $600,000.

And there should be less dust and mud in parts of the grounds. A new blacktop sidewalk has been laid through the midway to eliminate the dust of hot dry days, and the mud on rainy ones.

Final tabulation of the entries will not be completed until later this week, but as an example of the increasing list of entries, there are 400 more hogs entered than in past years.

Four Treated for Accident Injuries

Four emergency patients were treated Wednesday in the Missouri Delta Community hospital:

Orlando Williams caught a foot in a bicycle spoke; Vernon Ayers fell off the top of a truck and injured shoulder; Donnie Joe Morgan dropped wooden pallet on top of hand while working; Delmar G. Riess, Belleville, Ill., cut hand on metal while working.

Speeders Fined At Charleston

CHARLESTON -- Judge T. J. Brown Jr., heard these cases in magistrate court:

Edgar Harmon, charged with improper registration, using a borrowed or stolen license plate, and driving while operator's license suspended, fined $35 and $11 costs.

Herbert E. Yergar, charged with exceeding night speed limit, fined $37.50 and $11 costs.

George K. Conway, charged with speeding fined $10 and $11 costs.

Clinton W. Thurman, charged with exceeding day speed limit, fined $18 and $11 costs.

Stephen Robert Long, charged with exceeding day speed limit, fined $10 and $11 costs.

Two Injured As Police Car Crashes

BERNIE, Mo. (AP)— Two policemen were injured early today when their car went out of control on M25 at the south edge of town and struck a fireplug and tree.

The men are this Stoddard County town's only full-time policemen and the car is the only police car.

The Highway Patrol said the police car was traveling at high speed and skidded 360 feet.

Robert J. Johnson Newest Member of Police Force

Robert J. Johnson, formerly of Martin, Tenn., has been appointed as a police patrolman, City Manager W. Raymert Miller announced today.

The appointment is effective Saturday.

Johnson has been a policeman in Martin, one year. He replaces John McAteer. McAteer quit July 29.

The department now consists of 18 patrolmen, the chief, a secretary and a humane officer.

Johnson is 26. He and his wife Judy have two children, Kim, 4, and Sheryl, 2. They are moving to 813 Wayne.

Student Finds Costa Rica Pro-American

Underwood was introduced to the Lion's club by program chairman Earl Cook.

"There is no doubt that Costa Rica is very pro-American" Underwood said, in commenting on his 22-day visit.

"In fact I wasn't able to hear a single anti-American comment, even in regard to the Vietnam war.

"This country has a population of 1,400,000 on 23,000 square miles. It is bounded on two sides by water and on two sides by mountains. There was a picture in every business place, and I was told in every home, of the late President John F. Kennedy. Costa Rica has a free press and the same freedoms enjoyed in America. The only tax is on sales.

"Wages are low for an average of $7 per month, but living is cheap. The country's main exports are bananas and coffee.

"The country elects a different president every four years, and two vice-presidents."

The club will hold a chicken fry at the Shelter House next Wednesday at 7 p.m. On Aug. 30 the club will have a ladies night at the Country Club at 7 p.m.

Fish, furs, Eskimos, dog teams—that's not the full picture of Canada today. In its 100th birthday year, Canada can boast of its huge mineral output (highest per capita in the world), oil boom, mining boom, the $1 billion Trans Canada Highway, Expo 67, and an arts revolution. The health of Confederation is robust, despite some unrest in French-speaking Quebec.

By The Associated Press

Tall timber, beaver pelts, and faithful huskies pulling trappers and traders across the Yukon tundra -- that may have been Canada's image in the far past.

But Canada today, 100 years after confederation, has far more to offer than frontier products. It is the second largest country in the world, after the Soviet Union, the home of about 20 million people, and the site of a burst of new economic activity.

The Yukon is full of life: a new copper mine has been found, and surveyors are plotting a road to link the Arctic Ocean with the Pacific. And if you're hoping to see canadian trappers and traders, your best bet may be Expo 67 -- Canada's enormous international exhibition.

To be sure, problems still beset Canada. French Canadian unrest, highlighted by De Gaulle's recent visit, could disrupt communications, transportation and industry if Quebec province ever seceded. This is not expected to occur, but De Gaulle's cry of "Long Live Free Quebec" was cheered by some of Canada's 6.5 million French-speaking inhabitants.

Canada is still heavily in debt to foreign investors, and the country depends more and more on imports from the United States--70 per cent of 1965's incoming trade. But Canada's production is diversified and the whole economy is a far cry from the days when fish and furs constituted the little trade that existed.

Prospectors scrounging for gold in Northwest Territories streams are a thing of the past; gold production as a whole is slipping in Canada. But even with the gold rush played out, Canada has the highest per capita mineral output of any country in the world.

The nation now leads this hemisphere in producing nickel, zinc, platinum - group metals, and asbestos. Canadians are mining a rich iron - ore in Quebec - Labrador, developing a potash boom in Saskatchewan, and discovering new strikes in British Columbia -- where about 25 mines (assorted mineral have been developed since 1960).

Oil is another source of wealth for Canada -- and has been since 1958, when Ontario brought in North America's first oil well.

A 1947 oil discovery in Alberta set the pace for post-war economic boom in Canada's west. Successive strikes have spurred pipeline construction, new settlement, transportation links, and foreign investment.

The rush is still on. One oil corporation just paid a record price for oil rights at Zama Lake, in Alberta. And another is now drilling Canada's first offshore oil test--on a mobile platform in the Pacific, off Vancouver Island.

Transportation has had its own boom, close on the heels of western expansion.

The $470 million St. Lawrence Seaway and the $1 billion Trans - Canada Highway, both completed within the last ten years, tie the western regions to the east and to trading partners beyond. New railway lines are taking over where the dogsleds used to run -- opening up to the not - so - desolate north to bring out loads of ore.

As for the driver of the dogsled -- he appears to have traded in the rough - and - tumble life for the culture circuit. The Stratford Shakespeare Festival, in Ontario, spent its first season in a circus tent; now it boasts a 2,200 - seat theater. A $40 million national arts center is under construction in Ottawa, with completion scheduled for 1968.

And another "cultural" happening, Expo 67, has turned into a major economic miracle on its own -- with attendance already past 25 million.

Desertion Report Disputed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara quickly dismissed today a London report that the desertion rate among U.S. soldiers in Germany is running at about 1,000 this year, and three-fourths were primarily concerned with avoiding duty in Vietnam.

"Sheer nonsense," McNamara called the report.

McNamara's reaction to the report was passed to reporters by Pentagon spokesman.

The Times of London stated that an international underground network was helping American soldiers desert rather than fight in Southeast Asia.

Four More Bodies Found As Flood Begins Receeding

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — The brown flood waters of the Chena River receded today, but at a pace so slow that the city's 15,000 evacuees were not expected to begin returning to their damaged homes and businesses before Saturday. Only a tiny fraction of them carried flood insurance, officials said.

The bodies of four more victims were found Wednesday, disaster headquarters and state police reported, bringing Alaska's flood death total to seven. Two bodies were discovered in the city and two more in Tok, a river community on the Alaska Highway.

Gov. Walter Hickel, calling for Fairbanks to be designated a federal disaster area, said he thought Saturday would be the earliest time residents could return to their homes— if rain holds off.

Cloudy skies settled above the city today and the Weather Bureau forecast a few light showers. "If those clouds drop more rain we could be right back in trouble," said Mayor H. A. Boucher.

The danger of uncontrolled fire, which had officials on edge Wednesday after five buildings burned in the downtown area, tapered off with no additional fires reported today.

Alaska Declared Disaster Area

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson today declared a major disaster area for Alaska, hit by severe storms and floods, and made available $1 million in federal funds for emergency relief and recovery areas.

Alaska sustained serious damages, particularly in and around Fairbanks, when flood waters broke through barriers and forced thousands of residents from their homes and businesses.

The White House statement said federal aid will be made available immediately to the state and its stricken communities.

The Small Business Administaation also will make loans available for home and business repairs, the White House said, with 3 per cent interest for 30-year periods.

Dexter Girl Killed

A 11/2-year-old Dexter girl was killed when she was struck by a car one mile east of Gray Ridge on highway 114 at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

The highway patrol said the girl, Dona Sue Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Mason of route two, Dexter, was playing at the home of her grandparents, wandered onto the highway and in front of a car driven by Orville Fielder, 33, Essex. She was born at Dexter Dec. 31, 1965.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Sunday at Watkins and Sons Funeral Home in Dexter with the Rev. George Hill officiating. Burial will be in Essex cemetery.

One person was injured in a car-truck accident two miles west of Salcedo on Route AB at 8:30 p.m. last night.

Troopers said a car driven by Manual Dawson, 47, Essex, hit the rear of a pickup truck parked on the highway without lights. The truck was driven by Norman Johnson, 47, Essex route two.

Johnson was taken to the Missouri Delta Community hospital with possible shoulder injury and fractured ribs, and head and arm cuts.

Added Tax To Increase Phone Rates

Telephone bills to Sikeston customers will go higher, although Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. says it is reducing its rates.

The company will begin adding on a five per cent city franchise tax on the bill along with the state tax of three per cent and federal excise tax of 10 per cent.

Previously, the city tax was included in the telephone bill. The new method of billing is expected to become effective Sept. 13.

One party business rates will change here from $10.74 to $11, including taxes an increase of 26 cents.

One party home phone rates will increase 19 cents, including taxes, from $5.09 to $5.28.

The change is being effected because company earnings have been down to a dangerous point, John Donoho, manager said.

The telephone company increased the franchise payment this year from $11,500 to $16,500.

The telephone company asked the Public Service Commission

NFO Threatens Market Boycott If Farm Price Demands Not Met

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The militant National Farmers Organization has given the nation's food processors an ultimatum: Increase prices for farm products or face an all-out market boycott by farmers that could "shut down the agricultural plant of America."

More than 35,000 NFO members shouted their approval of the plan and adopted the slogan, "No prices, no production," at a meeting Wednesday.

No deadline for the desired price boosts was set, but NFO President Oren Lee Staley of Rea, Mo., indicated that the board of directors will not hesitate to order the all-commodity boycott if market conditions fail to improve.

"The NFO is serving notice that farmers can no longer accept the low farm prices we are receiving," he said.

"Every processor has some time to decide whether he wants to pay the prices and sign the purchase contracts or push the American farmer into waging the economic battle we are willing to fight."

NFO members also authorized the directors to order holding actions of three to four days on milk plus regional market boycotts on livestock and to establish an NFO "grain bank" in hopes of putting a "floor" under grain prices.

Staley announced the NFO target on prices is $1.50 a bushel on corn; $3 a bushel on soybeans and $2 for wheat. On milk it is $6 a hundredweight, about 75 cents over the prevailing price in the Des Moines federally regulated market.

The target on livestock is $22.45 a hundredweight on hogs, $32.45 on choice cattle and $29.45 for lambs, well above prevailing markets.

Staley said the interim measures would "let the processors of this nation know that we are building for an all-out holding action that would affect every commodity and would shut down the agricultural plant of America."

Alluding to reports of scattered violence in three major withholding actions on livestock, grain and milk, the group has conducted since 1962, the NFO president promised that boycotts would be conducted with "a businesslike and calm approach."

The organization, which claims membership in 28 states, has never attempted an all-commodity holding action.

Radar Nabs 4 Motorists

Four motorists were charged by police Wednesday with speeding: Aubrey Michael Jr., Benton, Francinea Marshall, 317 Kramer, Ronald H. Cobb, 810 East Hunter, and Mrs. Joy A. Guthrie, 303 Missouri.

Ellouise S. Hearnes, 39, 500 Virginia, suffered injuries to her right knee and right arm at 11:35 p.m. Wednesday when the car she was driving struck the rear of a parked car on East street near Kathleen. She refused medical attention. The parked car is owned by Mary F. Compas, 305 Kay Drive.

Bids Asked for Bootheel Roads

JEFFERSON CITY-- The State Highway Commission will call for bids on Aug. 31 for an estimated $6,000,000 in highway construction, with two projects listed for Bootheel counties.

In New Madrid county, route WW, calls for 12.9 miles grading, culverts, bridging and surfacing from New Madrid east to the Mississippi county line. The project includes a 211-foot continuous I-beam bridge over East Bayou and a 102-foot precast concrete slab bridge over Wilson Bayou.

On Route B and route B spur in Dunklin county, calls for 3.5 miles grading, culvert bituminous mat surfacing from route BB to route 53, and from route B south to route 25 in Holcomb.

Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach, a B-25 navigator in World War II, was shot down and taken prisoner by the Italians in 1943 while on a bombing mission over the Mediterranean.

Student Finds Costa Rica Pro-American

Underwood was introduced to the Lion's club by program chairman Earl Cook.

"There is no doubt that Costa Rica is very pro-American" Underwood said, in commenting on his 22-day visit.

"In fact I wasn't able to hear a single anti-American comment, even in regard to the Vietnam war.

"This country has a population of 1,400,000 on 23,000 square miles. It is bounded on two sides by water and on two sides by mountains. There was a picture in every business place, and I was told in every home, of the late President John F. Kennedy. Costa Rica has a free press and the same freedoms enjoyed in America. The only tax is on sales.

"Wages are low for an average of $7 per month, but living is cheap. The country's main exports are bananas and coffee.

"The country elects a different president every four years, and two vice-presidents."

The club will hold a chicken fry at the Shelter House next Wednesday at 7 p.m. On Aug. 30 the club will have a ladies night at the Country Club at 7 p.m.

Rodeo Success In All Ways

Although not all income and expense from the 15th annual Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo are tabulated, it was a financial success, John E. Harper Jr., Jaycee president, said today.

He reported that 23,000 persons attended four performances in ideal weather. Saturday night's performance was the biggest with 9,000 attending.

Ticket sales produced about $50,000, Harper reported.

A profit of $5,000 to $8,000 is expected, he said.

Jaycees will keep enough money to start wheels turning for next year's rodeo and pay the remainder of the profit on a $11,000 deficit from last year's rodeo when weather was unfavorable.

"The rodeo was in every way a success," Harper said.

Curtain Ready to Go up On 65th Annual State Fair

SEDALIA (AP) - The 65th annual Missouri State Fair opens here Saturday with all sorts of competition and entertainment for what is expected to be a record crowd of visitors for the nine-day event.

Fair officials said considerable interest has been shown in the 1967 edition through inquiries, through increases in exhibits, and in agricultural and other entries for $167,000 in prizes, an increase of $27,163 over 1966.

Due to a hike in admission from 50 cents to a dollar, many free attractions have been scheduled. Visitors will find the 60-year-old grandstand gone and in its place bleacher seats. The grandstand had been condemned as unsafe. Next year a new structure will go up in its place at a cost of more than $600,000.

And there should be less dust and mud in parts of the grounds. A new blacktop sidewalk has been laid through the midway to eliminate the dust of hot dry days, and the mud on rainy ones.

Final tabulation of the entries will not be completed until later this week, but as an example of the increasing list of entries, there are 400 more hogs entered than in past years.

Four Treated for Accident Injuries

Four emergency patients were treated Wednesday in the Missouri Delta Community hospital;

Orlando Williams caught a foot in a bicycle spoke; Vernon Ayers fell off the top of a truck and injured shoulder; Donnie Joe Morgan dropped wooden pallet on top of hand while working; Delmar G. Riess, Belleville, Ill., cut hand on metal while working.

Speeders Fined At Charleston

CHARLESTON -- Judge T. J. Brown Jr., heard these cases in magistrate court:

Edgar Harmon, charged with improper registration, using a borrowed or stolen license plate, and driving while operator's license suspended, fined $35 and $11 costs.

Herbert E. Yergar, charged with exceeding night speed limit, fined $37.50 and $11 costs.

George K. Conway, charged with speeding fined $10 and $11 costs.

Clinton W. Thurman, charged with exceeding day speed limit, fined $18 and $11 costs.

Stephen Robert Long, charged with exceeding day speed limit, fined $10 and $11 costs.

Two Injured As Police Car Crashes

BERNIE, Mo. (AP)— Two policemen were injured early today when their car went out of control on M25 at the south edge of town and struck a fireplug and tree.

The men are this Stoddard County town's only full-time policemen and the car is the only police car.

The Highway Patrol said the police car was traveling at high speed and skidded 360 feet.

Robert J. Johnson Newest Member of Police Force

Robert J. Johnson, formerly of Martin, Tenn., has been appointed as a police patrolman, City Manager W. Raymert Miller announced today.

The appointment is effective Saturday.

Johnson has been a policeman in Martin, one year. He replaces John McAteer. McAteer quit July 29.

The department now consists of 18 patrolmen, the chief, a secretary and a humane officer.

Johnson is 26. He and his wife Judy have two children, Kim, 4, and Sheryl, 2. They are moving to 813 Wayne.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
TORCH OF FREEDOM

In 1950, when Congress passed the Internal Security Act requiring registration of the Communist Party, disclosure of its official roster, membership, and financial details, the general conclusion was that homegrown U. S. Reds would find a legal loophole. They did -- in the Fifth Amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

The Supreme Court said that the Communist Party need not register, as Congress had directed. The technicality? The Justice Department could not prove that the party had anyone available who could give the registration statement without incriminating himself.

When Congress passed the Subversive Activities Control Act, it intended that the Party register. The Senate passed the bill 70-7; the House by a vote of 313-20. After Presidential veto, both branches overrode the veto.

The Communist Party, described a year ago as a "desperately sick organization" hanging on the legal ropes, has staged quite a comeback.

Its head, the man who prefers to be called the Party's "leading spokesman," is Gus Hall. One of twelve persons sentenced to prison years ago for advocating violent overthrow of the U. S. Government, Hall jumped bond. He dyed his hair and ran off to Mexico. Apprehended and returned, Hall served time for his flight and was released from the penitentiary in 1957.

Not knowing, at least for sure, what decision the Supreme Court would render on the refusal of the Communists to register, Hall more or less coasted until June 8, 1964. When the decision was handed down, Hall obviously interpreted it as giving him the green light to spread his poison wherever he could. Busy building up a new party "image," Hall and his cohorts have zeroed in on youthful restlessness and the civil rights uproar.

The late Eugene Dennis, Communist Party General Secretary, explained years ago why the Red emphasis on youth:

"The youth will determine the future. Therefore we Communists must help determine the future of American youth."

Dennis is dead, but dark-haired Gene Jr., a tough 22-year-old radical, and his wife Elizabeth are busy pushing the Communist line at the University of Wisconsin in Madison. They work through the W.E.B. DuBois Club, which has been identified by the FBI as "Communist-spawned."

Mickey Lima, chairman of the Communists' northern California district, has been in and out of courtrooms for failing to register under the McCarran Act. His 22-year-old daughter, Margaret, a petite brunette, is a history major at the University of California. A seasoned agitator, Margaret Lima has been arrested at least three times. She has written for the Communist PEOPLE'S WORLD and attended the 1962 Helsinki Youth Festival where hatred of America was the theme. More recently this second-generation homegrown Red was tossed into jail as a demonstrator in the "Free Speech Movement" which disrupted the Berkeley campus.

Frank Wilkinson, another member of the Communist Party, USA, served a year's time for refusing to testify about subversive affiliations. His two sons have taken up the Communist cause: Jeffry, 22, at Oakland City College; and Anthony, 20, at San Francisco State College.

Jeffry protested the U. S. "intervention" in Cuba in 1961, later picketed for the Fair Play for Cuba Committee, protested the McCarran Act and worked to kill off the House Committee on Un-American Activities. Brother Anthony demonstrated against "police brutality" in Los Angeles and picketed for the Committee to Preserve American Freedoms, listed as subversive, of which his father is an official.

Herbert Aptheker, a member of the National Committee of the Communist Party, USA, has a 20-year-old daughter who is perhaps the best known of the young Reds. Of her, Bettina Fay, the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee reports: "She has been the teenage director of the New York Communist youth group 'Advance.' Miss Aptheker recently transferred her Communist Party membership to California where she is attending college."

This second-generation Communists dresses plainly, and wears her long brown hair in an unkempt pony tail. A prime fomenter of the student revolution on the Berkeley campus of the University of California, she was one of the 814 demonstrators arrested in the "Free Speech Movement."

Although it was a technicality which has immunized these domestic Reds from the law Congress enacted in 1950, they no doubt feel that they have won a victory for the communist conspiracy.

This fact underscores the necessity of individual responsibility in resisting Red overtures and brainwashing.

The truth about socialism-communism must be told, and the facts exposed. Only in this way will deluded youth learn the horrible truth about communism.

A report in Colorado Editor says that the U. S. Post Office deficit is up $700 million. First class mail (including airmail) is paying 103 per cent of its cost, says the report, but will likely be raised one cent. Second class mail pays for only 30 per cent of its handling cost and third class 61 per cent of its cost. One problem the Post Office is faced with is a large turnover in personnel. The Chicago office reported that it hired 600 new employees one week while at the same time 650 quit. The average wage for the post office clerk is 6 cents a minute. Some of the workers are taking 10 seconds to read an address, resulting in a cost of 1 cent. This only leaves four cents on a first class letter for transportation costs, handling, and delivery to the destination.

IS AUDIENCE THERE?

IF AN ADVERTISER was paying good money to go before a theatre audience and tell them about his product, he would want to know all about the audience. How many people? Where do they live? How much they paid to get in? How many would stay for his message? The answers to these questions would have a bearing on the value of the audiunce to his business and whether it was worthy of his time and effort. Thousands of advertising dollars are spent each week for an audience that is not there.

There are definite standards for advertising values as well as for merchandise. The advertising audience should be bought and sold on the basis of actual value received. Value received is measured by audience delivered.

Just as a merchant buys and sells merchandise on the basis of known standards of known quality, weight and measure, so is his newspaper prepared to sell space on known delivered audience. The newspaper can and does give the advertiser a verified count and description of the audience.

NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that people get tired of reading on vacation postcards:

"Having wonderful time. Don't you wish you were?"

"Drove from 5 a.m. to 8:39 p.m. today and made 687½ miles. Pretty good, eh? More tomorrow."

"Well, here we are at Expo 67, the big fair in Montreal, Canada. There must be an awful lot of tourists here from Paris, as a surprising number of people we talked to had French accents."

"In Taos, Myrtle found just the kind of silver Indian necklace that your wife asked her to look out for. Get ready for a shock, pal. It's costing you $237.50. They're cheaper by the dozen, but I thought that one was all you'd want."

"This is the first time Clarabelle and I have visited Niagara Falls since our wedding 24 years ago. The water looks pretty much the same, as I remember it."

"Had two flat tires today. More tomorrow."

"Sue still insists there was a funny smell in the house like leaking gas when we left. Would you mind going by and checking up? But be careful opening the door— a spark might blow up the whole joint."

"Sorry you can't be with us to see this beautiful, awe-inspiring scenery. But Malcolm is making hundreds and hundreds of color slides, and we'll show them all to you just as soon as we return home. That's a promise!"

"Everywhere a tourist goes today he gets gypped. Some motels sell you postcards for a nickel apiece, but this one cost a dime. It shows an interesting view of a shopping center outside Dubuque. The hamburgers we ate there weren't half bad, but— no catsup. C'est la guerre!"

"No wonder they say travel is broadening. Did you know that the Washington monument— see other side— is 555 feet, 5½ inches tall and weighs 81,120 tons? My wife said it made her feel numble just to stand next to it."

"... and the bass were biting so fast that we finally decided, to keep the boat from sinking, to throw back all those weighing under five pounds."

"As a souvenir, Fred, I got you a handcrafted pillow filled with pine needles and a swell picture of an Indian encampment embroidered on one side and that well-known painting, "The Last Supper," on the other side, which makes it ideal for the home. The trouble is that the pine needles stick in your ears when you sleep on it, but it still should make a swell conversation piece for your guest room."

There was a substantial decrease in the number of Missouri traffic deaths in July, as compared to the corresponding month last year. The Missouri State Highway Patrol reports that 118 persons lost their lives on the State's streets and highways last month. In July of 1966, 143 persons were killed in traffic crashes.

A study of last month's traffic fatalities by the Patrol showed that one hundred of the deaths last month were in rural traffic and the remainder in urban areas. Five were pedestrians. The most deadly day of last month was Friday, July 21. On that day nine persons were killed in Missouri traffic. The State experienced only two days during the month of July without a recorded traffic death.

Weekends were a time for nearly half of the total Missouri traffic fatalities last month. Forty-nine persons were killed during the five weekends of July.

The study also showed that there were 16 multiple - death accidents that took the lives of 37 persons.

The Patrol stated that late deaths resulting from injuries received in traffic accidents last month would be added to the July fatality toll.

Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Highway Patrol, commenting on the study said, "Although there was a decrease in the number of Missouri traffic deaths in July, as compared to the corresponding month last year, it behooves everyone not to become complacent concerning the traffic toll. Many of the fatal accidents last month could have been avoided if the drivers involved would have been more alert and defensive in their driving.

"I urge everyone to do everything possible to be a better driver every day. This can be done, for example, by obeying the traffic laws and showing courtesy to others," he concluded.

WHEN NOT TO ADVERTISE

Since we spend most of our time telling folks when to advertise, we came across some advice given by the advertising manager of a very successful woman's magazine telling the merchants when not to advertise. He says in part:

Within the last few weeks I have read a number of statements regarding the importance of advertising under present conditions. After digesting this material it seems to me that a manufacturer who finds himself in an over - sold condition, or who expects shortly to be oversold, can with all logic discontinue his advertising provided the following conditions prevail:

1. His present competitors stop advertising.
2. No new competitors enter the field.
3. No one discovers a substitute for his product.
4. None of his present dealers goes out of business.
5. No new dealers enter the picture.
6. His dealers do not realize he has stopped pushing the product after stocking them with it.
7. The public stops being born.
8. The public stops dying.
9. The public stops forgetting.
10. He expects to go out of business as soon as the parade is over.

RUSSIAN AID IN U. S. SHIPS

It is no secret that Soviet Russia is aiding her fellow-communists in North Vietnam by shipping in armaments and supplies. The extent of military aid from Russia since August 1953 has been estimated at $510 million.

What most Americans almost certainly do not know is that some of the supplies have been carried in ships legally owned by the United States. Attention was called to this fact recently by U. S. Senator Clifford Hansen of Wyoming. Senator Hansen labeled the situation "startling and shocking." Few will disagree.

"Russia is aiding the North Vietnamese," the Senator said, "and she is doing it with ships designed and manufactured by American men and women, loaned to Russia in wartime to the end of achieving peace, and now as in the past used by the Russian government to deliver material for the purpose of killing American boys."

Among the lend-leased equipment sent to Russia from the United States during World War II were 84 merchant ships and 48 miscellaneous Army and Navy watercraft. The lend-lease agreement provided that at the end of the war all defense articles sent to Russia that had not been destroyed or consumed would be returned to the U. S. But Russia has refused to return them and refused to pay for them.

That is how it happens that our own ships are being used for shipments to the communist aggressors in Vietnam. They were used in Korea against American troops fighting there in 1950-53. They were used by the Russians in Cuba in 1961-62. Always against our interests. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

Editor's note -- Drew Pearson, who has been on vacation, today interrupts that vacation to write a column on a unique visitor to Washington.

HONOLULU -- Today President Johnson receives a unique visitor at the White House, President Felix Houphouet-Boigny of the Ivory Coast, sometimes called the George Washington of West Africa.

He is unique because, though a friend of President De Gaulle's and though he served five years as a member of the French cabinet, he had the courage to order his U. N. ambassador to vote with the United States and against De Gaulle during the recent showdown over the Near East.

He is also unique because, while surrounded with pro-Communist neighbors, he has stood firmly for the free enterprise system.

Finally, President Houphouet-Boigny's visit is important because at a time of Negro unrest in our big cities, when some American Negroes are looking to Africa for leadership, the Ivory Coast's experience with Chinese Communist activities is most revealing.

I visited the President of the Ivory Coast two years ago, lunched with him at his summer home, and we talked at length regarding the problems of the United States and Africa. Flanking the double doors of his living room were two of the largest elephant tusks I have ever seen, and in the outer hall was a small golden elephant.

"President Johnson wouldn't approve of that," remarked President Houphouet - Boigny, "but tell him we will soon acquire a donkey."

FRANCE VS. RED CHINA

The President of the Ivory Coast is a Negro of quiet dignity, who was taken to Paris as a small boy, educated in French schools and universities, obtained a doctor's degree, and for many years practiced medicine.

He explained how the new Republics of West Africa were being pulled in two different directions: 1, Toward France, with which they have cultural and economic ties; 2, Toward Red China, which is staging a political and propaganda drive to take them over.

On the other hand, he told me, many Africans see their future with the United States, if they can develop more trade and obtain technical help in developing their economy.

To the east of the Ivory Coast is Ghana, which at the time I was in Africa was virtually a satellite of Red China under the totalitarian rule of Nkrumah. Some months later, while Mkrumah was in Peking, his people kicked him out and established a new pro-west government, leaving Nkrumah to take refuge in Guinea to the west of the Ivory Coast.

President Sekou Toure of Guinea once used as many as 1,200 Communist advisers, and in 1965 got a promise from Moscow to build a huge hydroelectric dam on the Kondure River. Generally speaking, President Sekou Toure follows the Chinese rather than the Russian line of Communism, believing in violent revolution. He has been preaching this to some of the young American Negroes who have gone to see him.

These include John Lewis of SNCC, James Farmer of CORE, and Stokely Carmichael, former SNCC head, who while in Cuba recently urged Negro guerrilla war in the big U. S. cities.

Carmichael brought back from Guinea a long white flowing robe, the gift of President Sekou Toure, which he displays proudly.

U.S. NEGROES TURN TO AFRICA

These are days when young American Negroes are turning more and more to Africa. Hair-straighteners are out; kinky hair is in. African robes are worn at black power rallies.

So far the African influence has taken the anti-American, pro-Chinese line. But it could take the pro-American line of men like President Houphouet-Boigny of the Ivory Coast.

"China is out to take over the world," Houphouet-Boigny told me. "In Africa the Chinese are teaching hatred, dissension and assassination.

"Africans are taught to murder men whose eyes are open to the Chinese danger, so they can be replaced with servile men who would open the doors of Africa to China.

"Wherever the Chinese go you find trouble," said the President of the Ivory Coast. "whether it be Guinea, Uganda, Somalia or Cuba. Don't let them influence your people in Harlem. Mao Tse-tung doesn't have time to wait. Time is working on the side of the Russians. But not the Chinese. They are looking for opportunities of revolution all over the world. They would like to overthrow the liberal government of the United States.

"This is why I think President Johnson's firm position in Vietnam is so wise," he concluded.

NEED FOR PRICE STABILIZATION

Most significant aspect of the Ivory Coast's economic progress is that it has been achieved by welcoming foreign capital, with no foreign aid from the United States. Some aid has been received from France, however.

The Ivory Coast has now become the third largest coffee-producer in the world (ranking behind Brazil and Colombia), the second largest cocoa producer, and ranks high in bananas and tropical lumber.

The one thing it needs is stable prices. Like other African countries and our Latin neighbors, the Ivory Coast suffers from the ups and downs of commodity prices. In six years it received $50 million of foreign aid from France. But in the same period prices on tropical products dropped $200 million.

In the United States, the American farmer gets the benefit of price supports for wheat, corn, other staple commodities, with subsidies for sugar. If Sen. Allen Ellender and Rep. Otto Passman, the two Louisiana Democrats who are such bitter foes of foreign aid and such indefeatigable champions of sugar subsidies, would permit price stabilization for the sugar, coffee, cocoa and bananas of Africa and Latin America, their countries wouldn't need aid from the United States and would become prosperous, free enterprise neighbors.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

The 'Old Bogey' Computer Rooms, Not Dooms, the Nation.

The sun really never sets on the General Electric Co. It's up there in outer space. Its engineers and scientists are spread across the moon landing project. Its plants in many parts of the world now produce so efficiently that the firm can undersell the Japanese right in Japan.

Regularly, its executives get into a collective bargaining dialogue with some mighty militant unions and sometimes the dialogue is loud and heated. But regularly its management and labor settle down peacefully. Since GE is one of the leaders if labor relations and communications, I asked its chief executive officer to muse aloud about the future of our automated society. Here is his reply:

By F. J. Borch

NEW YORK: -- In the three years, 1964-65-66, U. S. business invested an unprecedented $150 billion in new plants and equipment -- or approximately $750 for every man, woman and child in the U. S. A particularly important portion of this went for so-called "automated" equipment: numerically controlled machines, computers, process controls, industrial and information systems -- equipment to improve productivity and lower costs.

During this period, the economy grew at an annual rate of more than $50 billion a year in gross national product, unemployment dropped to the lowest levels in a decade, and the prices of most manufactured goods remained relatively stable.

Along with this, the many fears that were being so freely expressed in the early 1950s and '60s of widespread disruptions in the economy as a result of the impact of computers and automation have failed to materialize. In an expanding economy, there has been a net gain in the number and quality of jobs.

The President's National Commission on Technology, Automation and Economic Progress, which presented its report last year, concludes: "If unemployment does creep upward in the future it will be the fault of public policy, not the fault of technological change . . . the most important condition for successful adjustment to technological change is an adequate level of total income and employment."

In spite of the record expansion of the last six years the needs of our American society are still only partially met. And the needs of the rest of the world exceed the whole world's productive capacity -- and will for years to come.

In the world today, the real threat to our security is not the machine, or even a revolutionary new technology. The real danger lies in failing to increase what we can afford to do, of failing to increase our productive output with our available labor force, and capital and other resources. For if more is produced, there is more to divide up. If less is produced, there is less to divide up -- and this latter becomes a problem for which there is no solution. No one expects the problems of underdeveloped nations, or of our underprivileged areas, to be easy of solution, but they will be impossible without continued economic growth at home and in the other developed countries of the world.

Since the growth problem has international dimensions, I see the remedy as requiring more healthy competition among nations, among their institutions, and particularly among their various industries. I see the current drive by American industry to achieve greater cost effectiveness and improved productivity not only as a short-term answer to the present profit squeeze, but as a continuing way of life in the future.

A particularly important part of this achievement is the assimilation and integration of the computer and the new information technology into existing systems -- technological, human and social. We have found at General Electric -- as a manufacturer and very extensive user of computer systems -- that they are a vital element in nearly every other technology in which we are engaged.

It is significant that the information industry is growing at a faster rate than any other major industry -- from about $1 billion a year in 1956 to $8 billion a year today, and forecast to grow to $25 billion in 1976.

It is also significant that the assimilation of computer technology has proceeded in a relatively orderly fashion -- with many industries making good use of computers in areas where there are many routine - type jobs and a chronic shortage of people equipped to do them. Banking, insurance, finance, government, have been among the biggest users. Process industries like oil, chemicals, steel, and technical industries like the electrical and aerospace were also early extensive users. The modern airline could hardly be operated without computers. And computers look like they are going to be of great value in reducing costs in such essential services as medical care and education.

With continued "balance" in our economy's growth, this pattern of integration may continue into the next decade. A Labor Department Survey of America's Industrial and Occupational Manpower Requirements 1964-75 predicts that, although there will be some major employment shifts, the overall demand for workers will grow sharply, and that while professional and technical workers will be in greatest demand "the overall demand for less-skilled workers will not decrease over this 11 - year period."

With the increasing use of computers and information technology we may expect to see a very great acceleration in the continuous process of job improvement and development of people. The computer is, after all, the perfect moron. It must be told what to do -- told by people. Thus, in order to capitalize on its prodigious powers to do what it's told, managers and employes will be challenged to be better educated, to think more, to communicate better -- while at the same time opening up ways, even for the disadvantaged, to make education a lifelong affair.

It is perhaps in relation to this -- meeting the challenges of the underdeveloped person, as well as those of the underdeveloped nations -- that the new technology finds its greatest promise in the fulfillment of human purposes.

For, given the needs and resources of the world, we obviously must find ways to stimulate economic growth and healthy competition in judicious balance, ways to create a desire for progress among all who fear and resist it, ways to involve governments, companies and labor unions alike in the tasks of making the underdeveloped nation and the underdeveloped person a part of the solution, rather than part of the problem.

It is in the fulfillment of this early prediction about automation, that it would lead to "the human beings," that the new information technology may make its greatest contribution in the coming decades.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
TORCH OF FREEDOM

In 1950, when Congress passed the Internal Security Act requiring registration of the Communist Party, disclosure of its official roster, membership, and financial details, the general conclusion was that homegrown U. S. Reds would find a legal loophole. They did -- in the Fifth Amendment to the U. S. Constitution.

The Supreme Court said that the Communist Party need not register, as Congress had directed. The technicality? The Justice Department could not prove that the party had anyone available who could give the registration statement without incriminating himself.

When Congress passed the Subversive Activities Control Act, it intended that the Party register. The Senate passed the bill 70-7; the House by a vote of 313-20. After Presidential veto, both branches overrode the veto.

The Communist Party, described a year ago as a "desperately sick organization" hanging on the legal ropes, has staged quite a comeback.

Its head, the man who prefers to be called the Party's "leading spokesman," is Gus Hall. One of twelve persons sentenced to prison years ago for advocating violent overthrow of the U. S. Government, Hall jumped bond. He dyed his hair and ran off to Mexico. Apprehended and returned, Hall served time for his flight and was released from the penitentiary in 1957.

Not knowing, at least for sure, what decision the Supreme Court would render on the refusal of the Communists to register, Hall more or less coasted until June 8, 1964. When the decision was handed down, Hall obviously interpreted it as giving him the green light to spread his poison wherever he could. Busy building up a new party "image," Hall and his cohorts have zeroed in on youthful restlessness and the civil rights uproar.

The late Eugene Dennis, Communist Party General Secretary, explained years ago why the Red emphasis on youth:

"The youth will determine the future. Therefore we Communists must help determine the future of American youth."

Dennis is dead, but dark-haired Gene Jr., a tough 22-year-old radical, and his wife Elizabeth are busy pushing the Communist line at the University of Wisconsin in Madison. They work through the W.E.B. DuBois Club, which has been identified by the FBI as "Communist-spawned."

Mickey Lima, chairman of the Communists' northern California district, has been in and out of courtrooms for failing to register under the McCarran Act. His 22-year-old daughter, Margaret, a petite brunette, is a history major at the University of California. A seasoned agitator, Margaret Lima has been arrested at least three times. She has written for the Communist PEOPLE'S WORLD and attended the 1962 Helsinki Youth Festival where hatred of America was the theme. More recently this second-generation homegrown Red was tossed into jail as a demonstrator in the "Free Speech Movement" which disrupted the Berkeley campus.

Frank Wilkinson, another member of the Communist Party, USA, served a year's time for refusing to testify about subversive affiliations. His two sons have taken up the Communist cause: Jeffry, 22, at Oakland City College; and Anthony, 20, at San Francisco State College.

Jeffry protested the U. S. "intervention" in Cuba in 1961, later picketed for the Fair Play for Cuba Committee, protested the McCarran Act and worked to kill off the House Committee on Un-American Activities. Brother Anthony demonstrated against "police brutality" in Los Angeles and picketed for the Committee to Preserve American Freedoms, listed as subversive, of which his father is an official.

Herbert Aptheker, a member of the National Committee of the Communist Party, USA, has a 20-year-old daughter who is perhaps the best known of the young Reds. Of her, Bettina Fay, the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee reports: "She has been the teenage director of the New York Communist youth group 'Advance.' Miss Aptheker recently transferred her Communist Party membership to California where she is attending college."

This second-generation Communists dresses plainly, and wears her long brown hair in an unkempt pony tail. A prime fomenter of the student revolution on the Berkeley campus of the University of California, she was one of the 814 demonstrators arrested in the "Free Speech Movement."

Although it was a technicality which has immunized these domestic Reds from the law Congress enacted in 1950, they no doubt feel that they have won a victory for the communist conspiracy.

This fact underscores the necessity of individual responsibility in resisting Red overtures and brainwashing.

The truth about socialism-communism must be told, and the facts exposed. Only in this way will deluded youth learn the horrible truth about communism.

A report in Colorado Editor says that the U. S. Post Office deficit is up $700 million. First class mail (including airmail) is paying 103 per cent of its cost, says the report, but will likely be raised one cent. Second class mail pays for only 30 per cent of its handling cost and third class 61 per cent of its cost. One problem the Post Office is faced with is a large turnover in personnel. The Chicago office reported that it hired 600 new employees one week while at the same time 650 quit. The average wage for the post office clerk is 6 cents a minute. Some of the workers are taking 10 seconds to read an address, resulting in a cost of 1 cent. This only leaves four cents on a first class letter for transportation costs, handling, and delivery to the destination.

IS AUDIENCE THERE?

IF AN ADVERTISER was paying good money to go before a theatre audience and tell them about his product, he would want to know all about the audience. How many people? Where do they live? How much they paid to get in? How many would stay for his message? The answers to these questions would have a bearing on the value of the audiunce to his business and whether it was worthy of his time and effort. Thousands of advertising dollars are spent each week for an audience that is not there.

There are definite standards for advertising values as well as for merchandise. The advertising audience should be bought and sold on the basis of actual value received. Value received is measured by audience delivered.

Just as a merchant buys and sells merchandise on the basis of known standards of known quality, weight and measure, so is his newspaper prepared to sell space on known delivered audience. The newspaper can and does give the advertiser a verified count and description of the audience.

"Sorry you can't be with us to see this beautiful, awe-inspiring scenery. But Malcolm is making hundreds and hundreds of color slides, and we'll show them all to you just as soon as we return home. That's a promise!"

"Everywhere a tourist goes today he gets gypped. Some motels sell you postcards for a nickel apiece, but this one cost a dime. It shows an interesting view of a shopping center outside Dubuque. The hamburgers we ate there weren't half bad, but— no catsup. C'est la guerre!"

"No wonder they say travel is broadening. Did you know that the Washington monument— see other side— is 555 feet, 5½ inches tall and weighs 81,120 tons? My wife said it made her feel humble just to stand next to it."

"... and the bass were biting so fast that we finally decided, to keep the boat from sinking, to throw back all those weighing under five pounds."

"As a souvenir, Fred, I got you a handcrafted pillow filled with pine needles and a swell picture of an Indian encampment embroidered on one side and that well-known painting, "The Last Supper," on the other side, which makes it ideal for the home. The trouble is that the pine needles stick in your ears when you sleep on it, but it still should make a swell conversation piece for your guest room."

There was a substantial decrease in the number of Missouri traffic deaths in July, as compared to the corresponding month last year. The Missouri State Highway Patrol reports that 118 persons lost their lives on the State's streets and highways last month. In July of 1966, 143 persons were killed in traffic crashes.

A study of last month's traffic fatalities by the Patrol showed that one hundred of the deaths last month were in rural traffic and the remainder in urban areas. Five were pedestrians. The most deadly day of last month was Friday, July 21. On that day nine persons were killed in Missouri traffic. The State experienced only two days during the month of July without a recorded traffic death.

Weekends were a time for nearly half of the total Missouri traffic fatalities last month. Forty-nine persons were killed during the five weekends of July.

The study also showed that there were 16 multiple - death accidents that took the lives of 37 persons.

The Patrol stated that late deaths resulting from injuries received in traffic accidents last month would be added to the July fatality toll.

Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Highway Patrol, commenting on the study said, "Although there was a decrease in the number of Missouri traffic deaths in July, as compared to the corresponding month last year, it behooves everyone not to become complacent concerning the traffic toll. Many of the fatal accidents last month could have been avoided if the drivers involved would have been more alert and defensive in their driving.

"I urge everyone to do everything possible to be a better driver every day. This can be done, for example, by obeying the traffic laws and showing courtesy to others," he concluded.

WHEN NOT TO ADVERTISE

Since we spend most of our time telling folks when to advertise, we came across some advice given by the advertising manager of a very successful woman's magazine telling the merchants when not to advertise. He says in part:

Within the last few weeks I have read a number of statements regarding the importance of advertising under present conditions. After digesting this material it seems to me that a manufacturer who finds himself in an over - sold condition, or who expects shortly to be oversold, can with all logic discontinue his advertising provided the following conditions prevail:

1. His present competitiors stop advertising.
2. No new competitors enter the field.
3. No one discovers a substitute for his product.
4. None of his present dealers goes out of business.
5. No new dealers enter the picture.
6. His dealers do not realize he has stopped pushing the product after stocking them with it.
7. The public stops being born.
8. The public stops dying.
9. The public stops forgetting.
10. He expects to go out of business as soon as the parade is over.

RUSSIAN AID IN U. S. SHIPS

It is no secret that Soviet Russia is aiding her fellow-communists in North Vietnam by shipping in armaments and supplies. The extent of military aid from Russia since August 1953 has been estimated at $510 million.

What most Americans almost certainly do not know is that some of the supplies have been carried in ships legally owned by the United States. Attention was called to this fact recently by U. S. Senator Clifford Hansen of Wyoming. Senator Hansen labeled the situation "startling and shocking." Few will disagree.

"Russia is aiding the North Vietnamese," the Senator said, "and she is doing it with ships designed and manufactured by American men and women, loaned to Russia in wartime to the end of achieving peace, and now as in the past used by the Russian government to deliver material for the purpose of killing American boys."

Among the lend-leased equipment sent to Russia from the United States during World War II were 84 merchant ships and 48 miscellaneous Army and Navy watercraft. The lend-lease agreement provided that at the end of the war all defense articles sent to Russia that had not been destroyed or consumed would be returned to the U. S. But Russia has refused to return them and refused to pay for them.

That is how it happens that our own ships are being used for shipments to the communist aggressors in Vietnam. They were used in Korea against American troops fighting there in 1950-53. They were used by the Russians in Cuba in 1961-62. Always against our interests. HLH.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

Editor's note -- Drew Pearson, who has been on vacation, today interrupts that vacation to write a column on a unique visitor to Washington.

HONOLULU -- Today President Johnson receives a unique visitor at the White House, President Felix Houphouet-Boigny of the Ivory Coast, sometimes called the George Washington of West Africa.

He is unique because, though a friend of President De Gaulle's and though he served five years as a member of the French cabinet, he had the courage to order his U. N. ambassador to vote with the United States and against De Gaulle during the recent showdown over the Near East.

He is also unique because, while surrounded with pro-Communist neighbors, he has stood firmly for the free enterprise system.

Finally, President Houphouet-Boigny's visit is important because at a time of Negro unrest in our big cities, when some American Negroes are looking to Africa for leadership, the Ivory Coast's experience with Chinese Communist activities is most revealing.

I visited the President of the Ivory Coast two years ago, lunched with him at his summer home, and we talked at length regarding the problems of the United States and Africa. Flanking the double doors of his living room were two of the largest elephant tusks I have ever seen, and in the outer hall was a small golden elephant.

"President Johnson wouldn't approve of that," remarked President Houphouet-Boigny, "but tell him we will soon acquire a donkey."

FRANCE VS. RED CHINA

The President of the Ivory Coast is a Negro of quiet dignity, who was taken to Paris as a small boy, educated in French schools and universities, obtained a doctor's degree, and for many years practiced medicine.

He explained how the new Republics of West Africa were being pulled in two different directions: 1, Toward France, with which they have cultural and economic ties; 2, Toward Red China, which is staging a political and propaganda drive to take them over.

On the other hand, he told me, many Africans see their future with the United States, if they can develop more trade and obtain technical help in developing their economy.

To the east of the Ivory Coast is Ghana, which at the time I was in Africa was virtually a satellite of Red China under the totalitarian rule of Nkrumah. Some months later, while Mkrumah was in Peking, his people kicked him out and established a new pro-west government, leaving Nkrumah to take refuge in Guinea to the west of the Ivory Coast.

President Sekou Toure of Guinea once used as many as 1,200 Communist advisers, and in 1965 got a promise from Moscow to build a huge hydroelectric dam on the Kondure River. Generally speaking, President Sekou Toure follows the Chinese rather than the Russian line of Communism, believing in violent revolution. He has been preaching this to some of the young American Negroes who have gone to see him.

U.S. NEGROES TURN TO AFRICA

These are days when young American Negroes are turning more and more to Africa. Hair-straighteners are out; kinky hair is in. African robes are worn at black power rallies.

So far the African influence has taken the anti-American, pro-Chinese line. But it could take the pro-American line of men like President Houphouet-Boigny of the Ivory Coast.

"China is out to take over the world," Houphouet-Boigny told me. "In Africa the Chinese are teaching hatred, dissension and assassination.

"Africans are taught to murder men whose eyes are open to the Chinese danger, so they can be replaced with servile men who would open the doors of Africa to China.

"Wherever the Chinese go you find trouble," said the President of the Ivory Coast, "whether it be Guinea, Uganda, Somalia or Cuba. Don't let them influence your people in Harlem. Mao Tse-tung doesn't have time to wait. Time is working on the side of the Russians. But not the Chinese. They are looking for opportunities of revolution all over the world. They would like to overthrow the liberal government of the United States.

"This is why I think President Johnson's firm position in Vietnam is so wise," he concluded.

The President's National Commission on Technology, Automation and Economic Progress, which presented its report last year, concludes: "If unemployment does creep upward in the future it will be the fault of public policy, not the fault of technological change . . . the most important condition for successful adjustment to technological change is an adequate level of total income and employment."

In spite of the record expansion of the last six years the needs of our American society are still only partially met. And the needs of the rest of the world exceed the whole world's productive capacity -- and will for years to come.

In the world today, the real threat to our security is not the machine, or even a revolutionary new technology. The real danger lies in failing to increase what we can afford to do, of failing to increase our productive output with our available labor force, and capital and other resources. For if more is produced, there is more to divide up. If less is produced, there is less to divide up -- and this latter becomes a problem for which there is no solution. No one expects the problems of underdeveloped nations, or of our underprivileged areas, to be easy of solution, but they will be impossible without continued economic growth at home and in the other developed countries of the world.

Since the growth problem has international dimensions, I see the remedy as requiring more healthy competition among nations, among their institutions, and particularly among their various industries. I see the current drive by American industry to achieve greater cost effectiveness and improved productivity not only as a short-term answer to the present profit squeeze, but as a continuing way of life in the future.

A particularly important part of this achievement is the assimilation and integration of the computer and the new information technology into existing systems -- technological, human and social. We have found at General Electric -- as a manufacturer and very extensive user of computer systems -- that they are a vital element in nearly every other technology in which we are engaged.

It is significant that the information industry is growing at a faster rate than any other major industry -- from about $1 billion a year in 1956 to $8 billion a year today, and forecast to grow to $25 billion in 1976.

It is also significant that the assimilation of computer technology has proceeded in a relatively orderly fashion -- with many industries making good use of computers in areas where there are many routine - type jobs and a chronic shortage of people equipped to do them. Banking, insurance, finance, government, have been among the biggest users. Process industries like oil, chemicals, steel, and technical industries like the electrical and aerospace were also early extensive users. The modern airline could hardly be operated without computers. And computers look like they are going to be of great value in reducing costs in such essential services as medical care and education.

With continued "balance" in our economy's growth, this pattern of integration may continue into the next decade. A Labor Department Survey of America's Industrial and Occupational Manpower Requirements 1964-75 predicts that, although there will be some major employment shifts, the overall demand for workers will grow sharply, and that while professional and technical workers will be in greatest demand "the overall demand for less-skilled workers will not decrease over this 11 - year period."

With the increasing use of computers and information technology we may expect to see a very great acceleration in the continuous process of job improvement and development of people. The computer is, after all, the perfect moron. It must be told what to do -- told by people. Thus, in order to capitalize on its prodigious powers to do what it's told, managers and employes will be challenged to be better educated, to think more, to communicate better -- while at the same time opening up ways, even for the disadvantaged, to make education a lifelong affair.

It is perhaps in relation to this -- meeting the challenges of the underdeveloped person, as well as those of the underdeveloped nations -- that the new technology finds its greatest promise in the fulfillment of human purposes.

For, given the needs and resources of the world, we obviously must find ways to stimulate economic growth and healthy competition in judicious balance, ways to create a desire for progress among all who fear and resist it, ways to involve governments, companies and labor unions alike in the tasks of making the underdeveloped nation and the underdeveloped person a part of the solution, rather than part of the problem.

It is in the fulfillment of this early prediction about automation, that it would lead to "the human beings," that the new information technology may make its greatest contribution in the coming decades.

BARRY RAY CROWLEY, six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Crowley, 522 Clayton St., will enter Southwest elementary school as a first grader.

One day in 1943 at Henderson Field on Guadalcanal, an exuberant Marine general put on an impromptu flying show in a borrowed plane. While he performed suicidal-looking dives, loops and rolls, all the soldiers, sailors, Marines and Seabees at the field stopped work to gape. Almost all, that is. One lone mechanic, wearing greasy overalls and a Confederate cap, went right on with his work. Finally, he glanced skyward and remarked, "Ah shore wish that s.o.b. would crack up - so's Ah could get me some spare parts."

Rose Carter Marries B.D. Thurman

PORTAGEVILLE -- The First Baptist church was the setting Aug. 7 for the wedding of Miss Rose Carter and Billy Dale Thurman. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Rose Carter. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Cora Jeffords of Marston, and the late R. J. Jeffords and Mrs. Myrtle Carter and the late Andy Carter.

Thurman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Thurman of Conran. He is the grandson of Mrs. Alice Disher of Boekerton and the late Mr. Paul Disher and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Thurman of Doniphan.

The Rev. Owen Sherrill performed the double ring ceremony in a candlelight setting. The church was set with baskets of white gladioli. Nuptial music was provided by Miss Ann Grable. Bill Foster sang "Oh Promise Me."

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Robert A. Carter, wore a dress of white lace over candlelight peau de soie with a fitted bodice, bateau neckline and long lace sleeves with a shoulder length veil of tulle attached to a pill box hat. She carried a white Bible covered in lace with an orchid.

Miss Dianne Robinson, friend of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a dress fashioned like that of the bride of yellow brocade and veil to match. The flower girl was Kimberly Katherine Duff. She also wore a dress fashioned like the bride of yellow brocade.

Ronnie Thurman served his brother as best man. The ring bearer was Glenn Gill. Candles were lighted by Larry Swilley and Kirk Stewart. Jimmy Swilley and Glenn Stewart were ushers.

Brenda Stewart Honored at Bridal Shower

BENTON -- Miss Brenda Stewart, bride-elect of John Cathey of Charleston, was honored at a surprise bridal shower last Thursday in the home of Mrs. Clem Ramson.

The gift table was covered with a green and white cloth. A centerpiece was a yellow umbrella covered in daisies.

Mrs. Oneda Ziegler and Miss Lynn Crafton were awarded prizes as the guests played games. As Miss Stewart opened her gifts, guests wrote their advice to the bridalcouple in books prepared for that purpose.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Miss Ann Scherer, Miss Sharon Dennis and Miss Margaret Ziegler.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Lynn Crafton and daughter Lynn, Mrs. Donald Butler, Mrs. Bill Sailer and daughter Kim, all of Cape Girardeau; Mrs. Burman Green and daughter Sharon, Lansing, Mich.; Mrs. Ray Cathey and daughter Sue and Linda, Mrs. Orville Witt, Mrs. Presnal Jones, Mrs. Kenny Pinkerton and Mrs. Danny Lambert, all of Charleston; Miss Sharon Hodgkiss and Mrs. Gaylon Harper, both of Sikeston, and Mrs. Alice Schegal, Scott City.

Sending gifts were Miss Janie Caldwell, Miss Carla Beardslee, Miss Cecilia Essner, Mrs. Earline Brock and Mrs. Frank Wilhelm.

Mary Jane Linhart Five Years Old

Mary Jane Linhart celebrated her fifth birthday with a party at the Kiddieland nursery school Aug. 8. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Linhart, 319 Daniel St.

Mary Jane blew out the candles on a pink cake. "Happy Birthday" was sung, and cake and ice cream were served. Each child received a balloon and gum as favors.

Those present were Cindy Lawrence, Tommy and David Wood, Glenn Blumenberg, Mickey Wagoner, Tammy Laseter, Reesa and Darren Bailey, Paul and Russell Murphy, Mark, Gregory and Denise Bronson, Alan and Julia Trice, Terry and Lloyd Patterson, Judith Warth, Belinda, Kevin and Keith Landers, Douglas Schindelar, Karen Odum and Freda Ann and Buster Sturgeon.

Several of umpire Bill McGowman's calls had gone against the Washington Senators, and coach Nick Altrock had discussed each one with McGowan. In the sixth inning, as McGowan told it, a foul ball was hit into the stands. He looked back and saw a woman being carried out on a stretcher and asked Altrock if the ball had hit her. In a voice loud enough to raise the dead, Altrock yelled, "No! You called that one right, and she fainted."

I had lost the claim ticket for my wife's shoes, and the shoemaker refused to surrender them without some proof of ownership. Suddenly I hit upon an idea. My puppy was waiting in the car. I brought him in, lifted him to the rack and commanded him to "get the shoe," a game we play at home. He sniffed from one pair to another and finally grabbed the pair belonging to his mistress. With a grin the shoemaker wrapped the shoes and handed them to me. "Proof enough," he said.

Brenda Stewart Honored at Bridal Shower

BENTON -- Miss Brenda Stewart, bride-elect of John Cathey of Charleston, was honored at a surprise bridal shower last Thursday in the home of Mrs. Clem Ramson.

The gift table was covered with a green and white cloth. A centerpiece was a yellow umbrella covered in daisies.

Mrs. Oneda Ziegler and Miss Lynn Crafton were awarded prizes as the guests played games. As Miss Stewart opened her gifts, guests wrote their advice to the bridal couple in books prepared for that purpose.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Miss Ann Scherer, Miss Sharon Dennis and Miss Margaret Ziegler.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Lynn Crafton and daughter Lynn, Mrs. Donald Butler, Mrs. Bill Sailer and daughter Kim, all of Cape Girardeau; Mrs. Burman Green and daughter Sharon, Lansing, Mich.; Mrs. Ray Cathey and daughter Sue and Linda, Mrs. Orville Witt, Mrs. Presnal Jones, Mrs. Kenny Pinkerton and Mrs. Danny Lambert, all of Charleston; Miss Sharon Hodgkiss and Mrs. Gaylon Harper, both of Sikeston, and Mrs. Alice Schegal, Scott City.

Sending gifts were Miss Janie Caldwell, Miss Carla Beardslee, Miss Cecilia Essner, Mrs. Earline Brock and Mrs. Frank Wilhelm.

Mary Jane Linhart Five Years Old

Mary Jane Linhart celebrated her fifth birthday with a party at the Kiddieland nursery school Aug. 8. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dean Linhart, 319 Daniel St.

Mary Jane blew out the candles on a pink cake. "Happy Birthday" was sung, and cake and ice cream were served. Each child received a balloon and gum as favors.

Those present were Cindy Lawrence, Tommy and David Wood, Glenn Blumenberg, Mickey Wagoner, Tammy Laseter, Reesa and Darren Bailey, Paul and Russell Murphy, Mark, Gregory and Denise Bronson, Alan and Julia Trice, Terry and Lloyd Patterson, Judith Warth, Belinda, Kevin and Keith Landers, Douglas Schindelar, Karen Odum and Freda Ann and Buster Sturgeon.

Several of umpire Bill McGowman's calls had gone against the Washington Senators, and coach Nick Altrock had discussed each one with McGowan. In the sixth inning, as McGowan told it, a foul ball was hit into the stands. He looked back and saw a woman being carried out on a stretcher and asked Altrock if the ball had hit her. In a voice loud enough to raise the dead, Altrock yelled, "No! You called that one right, and she fainted."

Golf Notes

Mrs. Alberta Cox took first place in the annual women's championship tournament with a score of 168 at the Country Club Tuesday and Wednesday.

In a playoff for the title in class A Mary Bain won over June Watson. Alma Medley walked off with third place; Evelyn Warf, fourth; Thelma Bush, fifth.

Class B was won by Elizabeth Yates with Lou Dye taking second. Jean Lee scored for third place; Martha Graff, fourth; Daris Stepp, fifth.

In the class C competition Tatty Tope came out on top. Contending for the title were Beanie Ralph, second place; Evelyn Campbell, third; Venita Jones, fourth; Olga Hux, fifth.

Mrs. Cox took low medalist prize with an 83 while Martha Graff captured the Missouri State Award for the low medalist on a handicap basis for the second consecutive year.

Couple Is Engaged

PORTAGEVILLE -- Mr. and Mrs. Sam Corbett Jr. announce the engagement of their daughter, Ann, to George Edward Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond F. Smith of Trumann, Ark.

The wedding will take place Aug. 26.

The bride-elect is a 1965 honor graduate of Portageville high school and will be a junior this fall at Arkansas State University, Jonesboro, where she is an English major.

Smith was graduated with honors from Trumann high school in 1964. He will be a senior at Arkansas State University where he is a physical education major. Smith is a member of Sigma Pi social fraternity.

Family Reunion Set

I had lost the claim ticket for my wife's shoes, and the shoemaker refused to surrender them without some proof of ownership. Suddenly I hit upon an idea. My puppy was waiting in the car. I brought him in, lifted him to the rack and commanded him to "get the shoe," a game we play at home. He sniffed from one pair to another and finally grabbed the pair belonging to his mistress. With a grin the shoemaker wrapped the shoes and handed them to me. "Proof enough," he said.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The St. Louis Cardinals, described by pitcher Jack Lamabe as "just hustling fools," came from behind again to defeat the Chicago Cubs, 4-3, Wednesday night.

It was the tenth victory for the Cardinals in a 13-game homestand and the eighth out of those ten won by one run.

The Cardinals, bolstered by a 10½ game lead over the rest of the field in the National League and with complete confidence they are the only passengers aboard the "pennant express," turned three infield hits, an error and a walk into two runs in the ninth for their victory.

Orlando Cepeda drove in the first run for the Cards in the first inning on a single and launched the ninth inning rally by beating out an infield hit.

Tim McCarver homered in the fourth for the other St. Louis run.

Alex Johnson won it when he outlegged his hit in the ninth to drive in McCarver who got on by an Ernie Banks error at first.

Lamabe was the winner with one inning of shut out relief.

Glenn Beckert's two-run seventh inning homer was the big blow for the Cubs.

The tale of the tape— that's the story of a serious, but unsuccessful bid for the first no-hitter in the 59-year history of Pittsburgh's Forbes Field.

But it didn't prevent him from aggravating an injury, which forced him to leave in the seventh inning of the game won by Cincinnati 4-0.

Billy McCool took over and was touched for both Pittsburgh hits in the eighth inning.

St. Louis nipped the Chicago Cubs 4-3, Atlanta topped San Francisco 6-3, the New York Mets beat Philadelphia 5-3 and Los Angeles trounced Houston 7-1 in other National League games.

"I was scared," said McCool, who relieved Maloney after he stepped into a hole with his right foot in delivering a fourth ball to Matty Alou, making Alou the first Pirate base runner.

"I wanted it real badly," continued McCool, "but I wished he could have stayed in. I think he might have gotten it."

Maloney declined to talk about what might have been but he did comment about his ankle injury, which he said he suffered last Friday night against Los Angeles.

"I haven't been able to run on it at all, and the only way I could pitch tonight was because of the tape," he said.

He also said that if it had been his left ankle, he would have been able to continue, but since it was the right one he couldn't because he pushes off on it when he pitches.

Jose Pagan kept the Forbes Field jinx against no-hitter intact with a one-out single in the eighth. Jerry May followed with a double but McCool then settled down to preserve the shutout.

Tony Perez' 23rd homer gave the Reds a 2-0 lead in the fourth, and they added another pair in the sixth on Lee May's RBI double and an error.

Ron Swoboda was the big gun in New York's victory over Philadelphia. He slammed three hits and drove in four runs.

Hank Aaron's 30th homer, with two on in the third, powered Atlanta past San Francisco as Ken Johnson boosted his record to 13-5.

Los Angeles broke out of run scoring famine as Jim Lefebvre and pitcher Bill Singer each drove in two runs against Houston. Singer also limited the Astros to four hits in bringing his record to 7-4.

Ortiz Retains Crown

NEW YORK (AP)— Carlos Ortiz, his fifth straight successful lightweight championship defense behind him, had a slightly puffy eye cocked toward bigger and better things.

"Give me two months," the Puerto Rican-born New Yorker said in his dressing room after solidly trouncing Ismael Laguna in 15 rounds Wednesday night, "and I be ready to fight again.

"Two months. Then bring on Cokes."

The reference was to Curtis Cokes, the world welterweight champion.

"I don't need the money," the happy Ortiz said. "I'm loaded. But I would like to be the first Puerto Rican to hold three titles. I'd like Cokes."

Ortiz, 30, held the world junior welterweight title before taking the lightweight championship from Joe Brown in 1962. In lightweight title fights he is 11-1, losing the title to Laguna in his native Panama in 1965 on a 15-round decision, then winning it back seven months later in Puerto Rico.

This time there was little doubt about it.

In the middle rounds, he let up a bit— "I told him to take it easy, to let Laguna have a couple," manager Bill Daly explained later— and the swift, flashy Panamanian swarmed to the attack to the delight of a group of about 2,500 Panamanians in the shouting, chanting, flag-waving crowd of 19,480 at Shea Stadium.

"I had him from the first round on," Ortiz said. "I knew I had him when I first hit him with that right hand. He was fighting my fight.

"I was never concerned. I just wanted to be sure I didn't make any mistakes and had enough to go the distance if I had to. He was in good condition and fought a good fight. But I'm the champion."

Then he grinned even more broadly.

"In fact," he said, "I'm the greatest."

Referee Art Mercante and judge Al Berl each had Ortiz ahead in rounds 10-4-1. Judge Jack Gordon had Ortiz the winner 11-3-1. The Associated Press scored for Ortiz 10-4-1.

"I'm very proud of my people," Ortiz said of the Puerto Ricans in the audience. "We don't want to do anything against our citizenship. I won. But I don't think there would be any trouble if I hadn't. But I fought extra hard to be sure."

Hundreds of extra police were on duty to prevent a recurrence of the riots that developed in Madison Square Garden the last three times Puerto Rican fighters were involved. There wasn't a hint of trouble.

Laguna, taller and faster, had only praise for Ortiz as "a great champion. He won it clearly and cleanly. I have no excuses."

Time and again Laguna swarmed in with a flashy, two-handed attack. Time and again the stolid Ortiz punished him, rocking him in the second, fourth, eighth, 10th and 11th rounds with right hands.

"He tries to suck you in," Ortiz said. "He feints in, then steps back. I've fought him before. I know him. I just wait until he starts back, then go with the right. He's a sucker for it.

"I wanted to get him coming in with a looping right and end it. I just never found the spot.

"I'm 30 years old and have been fighting for 13 years. For six I have been champion. A boy like that isn't supposed to beat me."

There were no knockdowns. Ortiz suffered nicks at the corner of both eyes, but they didn't bother him. Each fighter weighed 135 pounds.

Foresters Set up New Camp

FARMINGTON, N. M. -- Sightseeing since winning the southern plains regional championship Monday night, Sikeston's Potlatch Foresters are expected to arrive today at the site of the Connie Mack League Little World Series which starts Friday night.

One of the eight finalists winning their way into the playoff for the national title, the Foresters are scheduled to see action in the second game Friday night against Bridgeport, Conn., winner of the Atlantic regional crown. The starting time will depend on the length of the first game, but is expected to get underway between 9 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Sikeston time.

The action will be broadcasted by radio station KMPL, as will all following contests involving the Foresters.

Preceding their entry in the Little World Series, the Sikeston club received bad news yesterday when it was learned that star second baseman Richard Montgomery would be lost to the team for the remainder of the season due to a mild attack of mononucleosis.

He will rest in the mountains with other members of the Joel Montgomery family who accompanied the Foresters to Colorado.

Punchless Sox Break Loose

The Chicago White Sox, who sometimes seem to win with mirrors, did it Wednesday night with a hitter who can't run, a runner who suddenly can hit and— would you believe— three home runs.

The notoriously light hitting White Sox sprayed 17 safeties around Comiskey Park including two home runs by Pete Ward and one by Gerry McNertney and walloped Kansas City 14-1.

Ken Boyer, sidelined by a pulled muscle in his left leg, came off the bench in the fourth inning and delivered a bases-loaded single that drove in three runs. The ball soared over left fielder Danny Cater's head and the three runners scored easily. But Boyer, limping badly, barely made it to first base.

Sandy Alomar, acquired just hours before game time from the New York Mets as part of the Boyer deal, started at shortstop for Chicago, lashed two singles and scored two runs. Throughout his career, Alomar has been noted as a fast runner and good fielder but weak hitter.

The victory kept the Sox 1½ games back of the streaking first place Minnesota Twins who won their seventh straight, 5-1 from California.

Boston moved into third place by beating Detroit 6-3. Cleveland nipped Washington 1-0 and Baltimore edged New York 5-4.

Ward's two homers drove in three runs for the White Sox but the blow that broke the game wide open was Boyer's pinch hit in the fourth. It climaxed a five-run rally that opened a 9-0 Chicago lead.

Boyer, who pulled up lame in Minnesota last week while fielding a ground ball, struggled to get down the line as the three runners tore around the bases and Cater chased after his drive.

Alomar started the big inning with his second hit and scored the Sox' first run on Walt Williams' double. Williams stole third and scored on a passed ball third strike before Chicago loaded the bases for Boyer.

Gary Peters, who hadn't won since July 23, was the beneficiary of the unusually heavy attack and picked up his 13th victory on a four-hitter.

Minnesota bunched four hits and two walks for five first inning runs against California and that was enough for Dean Chance, who won his 16th game.

The first three Minnesota batters— Zoilo Versalles, Cesar Tovar and Tony Oliva— tripled, doubled and singled for two runs. An infield out following two walks drove in another run and Ted Uhlaender's two-out double produced two more.

George Scott drove in four runs with a pair of homers and Reggie Smith contributed a solo shot as Boston rapped Detroit. Scott and Smith connected in the first inning against Denny McLain and then Scott hit another in the third.

Steve Hargan outduelled Camilo Pascual and Tony Horton's ninth inning double— only the second hit for the Indians— gave Cleveland its victory.

Hargan, who struck out 10, finished with a three-hitter. Horton's two-out double scored pinch runner Chuck Hinton from first base. Pascual did not allow a hit until the seventh when Max Alvis singled with two out.

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PEEKSKILL, N.Y.—(NEA)—All winter, Tommy Burnett listened intently as his brother, Bob, explained the intricacies of professional football and the dos and don'ts of training camp.

A year ago, Bobby was a rookie halfback with the Buffalo Bills. The Bills coaching staff knew they had a sound, fundamentally strong football player who probably was a year — maybe two — away from being a useful professional.

Then, last December, Bobby Burnett received a trophy which said he was the American Football League's rookie of the year.

This season, there is a rookie flanker in the training camp of the New York Jets. His name is Tommy Burnett and he is not expected to play very much this year—at least right now he's not. He is expected to watch and listen and learn and maybe by the 1968 season he will be ready to sufficiently challenge Don Maynard for a starting job.

Tommy Burnett is a polite pleasant 22-year-old from the University of Arkansas who was picked as a future draft choice by the Jets two years ago.

"I was really surprised," Tommy said. "Like Bob, I had to struggle to play at Arkansas. I didn't think I was playing well at all. That's why I was surprised the Jets drafted me."

The Jets picked Tommy, a 6-2, 200-pounder, mainly because of his speed (9.8 for the 100).

Besides, the Jets had picked another unknown from the Southwest Conference three years earlier, a youngster named George Sauer Jr., who caught all of 12 passes for the University of Texas during his last collegiate season. Last year, George Sauer Jr. was on the American Football League's All-Star team and was second in the league in pass receiving.

"It will take Tommy time," says Clive Rush, the coach of the Jets' offense. "George Sauer Jr. didn't learn everything in one year you know.

"Right now it's all probably very confusing to Tommy. And he's behind a man (Maynard) with 10 years' experience."

The most difficult adjustment for Tommy is learning the myriad pass patterns in the Jets' playbook. "Bobby told me to take that playbook and memorize it," he said.

Last year, at Buffalo, Bobby Burnett had a similar problem: learning to block for a pocket passer. The Buffalo coaches were concerned because Arkansas' passing attack was built around the roll out, which meant its backs seldom blocked for a drop-back passer.

The Jets are hoping that Tommy learns the nuances of playing flanker as well as his brother learned about pass blocking.

If the Jets get a repeat from Tommy Burnett, 25 professional teams will have representatives at Fayetteville, Ark., to scout another Burnett, young Billy, who is a sophomore at the university.

All three brothers received their early coaching from their father, Clell, who coached at Smackover, Ark., then at Bentonville, where the family lives now.

"For a while last season, after Bobby made rookie-of-the-year, Dad couldn't button his shirt—he was so proud," Tommy said.

Mr. Burnett better have a good supply of shirts around. Before Tommy and Billy are finished, it's possible some more buttons may be missing.

U.S. Trackmen Fight For Lost Prestige

DUESSELDORF, Germany (AP)— The U. S. track and field squad, shaken by their own first night showing against the fiery West Germans, face a fight to regain lost prestige tonight.

The U. S. aces hold a slender seven-point lead going into the final day of the two-day dual meet.

Only a mighty final heavy by chunky hammer thrower Ed Burke of Newport Beach, Calif., and a soaring lead by pole vaulter Dick Railsback of Pasadena, Calif., in Wednesday night's two final events kept the Americans' lead alive by a score of 56-49.

Glenn Beckert's two-run seventh inning homer was the big blow for the Cubs.

The tale of the tape— that's the story of a serious, but unsuccessful bid for the first no-hitter in the 59-year history of Pittsburgh's Forbes Field.

But it didn't prevent him from aggravating an injury, which forced him to leave in the seventh inning of the game won by Cincinnati 4-0.

Billy McCool took over and was touched for both Pittsburgh hits in the eighth inning.

St. Louis nipped the Chicago Cubs 4-3, Atlanta topped San Francisco 6-3, the New York Mets beat Philadelphia 5-3 and Los Angeles trounced Houston 7-1 in other National League games.

"I was scared," said McCool, who relieved Maloney after he stepped into a hole with his right foot in delivering a fourth ball to Matty Alou, making Alou the first Pirate base runner.

"I wanted it real badly," continued McCool, "but I wished he could have stayed in. I think he might have gotten it."

Maloney declined to talk about what might have been but he did comment about his ankle injury, which he said he suffered last Friday night against Los Angeles.

"I haven't been able to run on it at all, and the only way I could pitch tonight was because of the tape," he said.

He also said that if it had been his left ankle, he would have been able to continue, but since it was the right one he couldn't because he pushes off on it when he pitches.

Jose Pagan kept the Forbes Field jinx against no-hitter intact with a one-out single in the eighth. Jerry May followed with a double but McCool then settled down to preserve the shutout.

Tony Perez' 23rd homer gave the Reds a 2-0 lead in the fourth, and they added another pair in the sixth on Lee May's RBI double and an error.

Ron Swoboda was the big gun in New York's victory over Philadelphia. He slammed three hits and drove in four runs.

Hank Aaron's 30th homer, with two on in the third, powered Atlanta past San Francisco as Ken Johnson boosted his record to 13-5.

Los Angeles broke out of run scoring famine as Jim Lefebvre and pitcher Bill Singer each drove in two runs against Houston. Singer also limited the Astros to four hits in bringing his record to 7-4.

Ortiz Retains Crown

NEW YORK (AP)— Carlos Ortiz, his fifth straight successful lightweight championship defense behind him, had a slightly puffy eye cocked toward bigger and better things.

"Give me two months," the Puerto Rican-born New Yorker said in his dressing room after solidly trouncing Ismael Laguna in 15 rounds Wednesday night, "and I be ready to fight again.

"Two months. Then bring on Cokes."

The reference was to Curtis Cokes, the world welterweight champion.

"I don't need the money," the happy Ortiz said. "I'm loaded. But I would like to be the first Puerto Rican to hold three titles. I'd like Cokes."

Ortiz, 30, held the world junior welterweight title before taking the lightweight championship from Joe Brown in 1962. In lightweight title fights he is 11-1, losing the title to Laguna in his native Panama in 1965 on a 15-round decision, then winning it back seven months later in Puerto Rico.

This time there was little doubt about it.

In the middle rounds, he let up a bit— "I told him to take it easy, to let Laguna have a couple," manager Bill Daly explained later— and the swift, flashy Panamanian swarmed to the attack to the delight of a group of about 2,500 Panamanians in the shouting, chanting, flag-waving crowd of 19,480 at Shea Stadium.

"I had him from the first round on," Ortiz said. "I knew I had him when I first hit him with that right hand. He was fighting my fight.

"I was never concerned. I just wanted to be sure I didn't make any mistakes and had enough to go the distance if I had to. He was in good condition and fought a good fight. But I'm the champion."

Then he grinned even more broadly.

"In fact," he said, "I'm the greatest."

Referee Art Mercante and judge Al Berl each had Ortiz ahead in rounds 10-4-1. Judge Jack Gordon had Ortiz the winner 11-3-1. The Associated Press scored for Ortiz 10-4-1.

"I'm very proud of my people," Ortiz said of the Puerto Ricans in the audience. "We don't want to do anything against our citizenship. I won. But I don't think there would be any trouble if I hadn't. But I fought extra hard to be sure."

Hundreds of extra police were on duty to prevent a recurrence of the riots that developed in Madison Square Garden the last three times Puerto Rican fighters were involved. There wasn't a hint of trouble.

Laguna, taller and faster, had only praise for Ortiz as "a great champion. He won it clearly and cleanly. I have no excuses."

Time and again Laguna swarmed in with a flashy, two-handed attack. Time and again the stolid Ortiz punished him, rocking him in the second, fourth, eighth, 10th and 11th rounds with right hands.

"He tries to suck you in," Ortiz said. "He feints in, then steps back. I've fought him before. I know him. I just wait until he starts back, then go with the right. He's a sucker for it.

"I wanted to get him coming in with a looping right and end it. I just never found the spot.

"I'm 30 years old and have been fighting for 13 years. For six I have been champion. A boy like that isn't supposed to beat me."

There were no knockdowns. Ortiz suffered nicks at the corner of both eyes, but they didn't bother him. Each fighter weighed 135 pounds.

Jets Hope Tom Burnett Takes Cue from Brother

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y.—(NEA)—All winter, Tommy Burnett listened intently as his brother, Bob, explained the intricacies of professional football and the dos and don'ts of training camp.

A year ago, Bobby was a rookie halfback with the Buffalo Bills. The Bills coaching staff knew they had a sound, fundamentally strong football player who probably was a year — maybe two — away from being a useful professional.

Then, last December, Bobby Burnett received a trophy which said he was the American Football League's rookie of the year.

This season, there is a rookie flanker in the training camp of the New York Jets. His name is Tommy Burnett and he is not expected to play very much this year—at least right now he's not. He is expected to watch and listen and learn and maybe by the 1968 season he will be ready to sufficiently challenge Don Maynard for a starting job.

Tommy Burnett is a polite pleasant 22-year-old from the University of Arkansas who was picked as a future draft choice by the Jets two years ago.

"I was really surprised," Tommy said. "Like Bob, I had to struggle to play at Arkansas. I didn't think I was playing well at all. That's why I was surprised the Jets drafted me."

The Jets picked Tommy, a 6-2, 200-pounder, mainly because of his speed (9.8 for the 100).

Besides, the Jets had picked another unknown from the Southwest Conference three years earlier, a youngster named George Sauer Jr., who caught all of 12 passes for the University of Texas during his last collegiate season. Last year, George Sauer Jr. was on the American Football League's All-Star team and was second in the league in pass receiving.

"It will take Tommy time," says Clive Rush, the coach of the Jets' offense. "George Sauer Jr. didn't learn everything in one year you know.

"Right now it's all probably very confusing to Tommy. And he's behind a man (Maynard) with 10 years' experience."

The most difficult adjustment for Tommy is learning the myriad pass patterns in the Jets' playbook. "Bobby told me to take that playbook and memorize it," he said.

Last year, at Buffalo, Bobby Burnett had a similar problem: learning to block for a pocket passer. The Buffalo coaches were concerned because Arkansas' passing attack was built around the roll out, which meant its backs seldom blocked for a drop-back passer.

The Jets are hoping that Tommy learns the nuances of playing flanker as well as his brother learned about pass blocking.

If the Jets get a repeat from Tommy Burnett, 25 professional teams will have representatives at Fayetteville, Ark., to scout another Burnett, young Billy, who is a sophomore at the university.

All three brothers received their early coaching from their father, Clell, who coached at Smackover, Ark., then at Bentonville, where the family lives now.

"For a while last season, after Bobby made rookie-of-the-year, Dad couldn't button his shirt—he was so proud," Tommy said.

Mr. Burnett better have a good supply of shirts around. Before Tommy and Billy are finished, it's possible some more buttons may be missing.

U.S. Trackmen Fight For Lost Prestige

DUESSELDORF, Germany (AP)— The U. S. track and field squad, shaken by their own first night showing against the fiery West Germans, face a fight to regain lost prestige tonight.

The U. S. aces hold a slender seven-point lead going into the final day of the two-day dual meet.

Only a mighty final heavy by chunky hammer thrower Ed Burke of Newport Beach, Calif., and a soaring lead by pole vaulter Dick Railsback of Pasadena, Calif., in Wednesday night's two final events kept the Americans' lead alive by a score of 56-49.

Foresters Set up New Camp

FARMINGTON, N. M. -- Sightseeing since winning the southern plains regional championship Monday night, Sikeston's Potlatch Foresters are expected to arrive today at the site of the Connie Mack League Little World Series which starts Friday night.

One of the eight finalists winning their way into the playoff for the national title, the Foresters are scheduled to see action in the second game Friday night against Bridgeport, Conn., winner of the Atlantic regional crown. The starting time will depend on the length of the first game, but is expected to get underway between 9 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Sikeston time.

The action will be broadcasted by radio station KMPL, as will all following contests involving the Foresters.

Preceding their entry in the Little World Series, the Sikeston club received bad news yesterday when it was learned that star second baseman Richard Montgomery would be lost to the team for the remainder of the season due to a mild attack of mononucleosis.

He will rest in the mountains with other members of the Joel Montgomery family who accompanied the Foresters to Colorado.

Punchless Sox Break Loose

The Chicago White Sox, who sometimes seem to win with mirrors, did it Wednesday night with a hitter who can't run, a runner who suddenly can hit and— would you believe— three home runs.

The notoriously light hitting White Sox sprayed 17 safeties around Comiskey Park including two home runs by Pete Ward and one by Gerry McNertney and walloped Kansas City 14-1.

Ken Boyer, sidelined by a pulled muscle in his left leg, came off the bench in the fourth inning and delivered a bases-loaded single that drove in three runs. The ball soared over left fielder Danny Cater's head and the three runners scored easily. But Boyer, limping badly, barely made it to first base.

Sandy Alomar, acquired just hours before game time from the New York Mets as part of the Boyer deal, started at shortstop for Chicago, lashed two singles and scored two runs. Throughout his career, Alomar has been noted as a fast runner and good fielder but weak hitter.

The victory kept the Sox 1½ games back of the streaking first place Minnesota Twins who won their seventh straight, 5-1 from California.

Boston moved into third place by beating Detroit 6-3. Cleveland nipped Washington 1-0 and Baltimore edged New York 5-4.

Ward's two homers drove in three runs for the White Sox but the blow that broke the game wide open was Boyer's pinch hit in the fourth. It climaxed a five-run rally that opened a 9-0 Chicago lead.

Boyer, who pulled up lame in Minnesota last week while fielding a ground ball, struggled to get down the line as the three runners tore around the bases and Cater chased after his drive.

Alomar started the big inning with his second hit and scored the Sox' first run on Walt Williams' double. Williams stole third and scored on a passed ball third strike before Chicago loaded the bases for Boyer.

Gary Peters, who hadn't won since July 23, was the beneficiary of the unusually heavy attack and picked up his 13th victory on a four-hitter.

Minnesota bunched four hits and two walks for five first inning runs against California and that was enough for Dean Chance, who won his 16th game.

The first three Minnesota batters— Zoilo Versalles, Cesar Tovar and Tony Oliva— tripled, doubled and singled for two runs. An infield out following two walks drove in another run and Ted Uhlaender's two-out double produced two more.

Scott and Smith connected in the first inning against Denny McLain and then Scott hit another in the third.

Steve Hargan outduelled Camilo Pascual and Tony Horton's ninth inning double— only the second hit for the Indians— gave Cleveland its victory.

Hargan, who struck out 10, finished with a three-hitter. Horton's two-out double scored pinch runner Chuck Hinton from first base. Pascual did not allow a hit until the seventh when Max Alvis singled with two out.

Frank Robinson drove in four runs for the Orioles— three of them on a sixth inning homer— as Baltimore beat Al Downing.

Watermelon Quality High, Crop Short

By Leo Schade

Thousands of watermelons are going to market. They are of superior quality.

Two top growers are the James Brothers, Joe and J. O., and the W. A. Beggs family of Blodgett.

Watermelons are late this year. Cool, wet early summer weather, stopped growth and continued rain following the cool spell almost produced a crop failure. More recently, three weeks of warm, dry weather, saved the crop, which is short.

The James brothers produce four varieties with emphasis on Blackstone, a small melon averaging about 25 pounds each, the Garrisonian, Charleston Gray and the Yellow Meat, averaging 30-35 pounds.

They have 35 acres planted in melons, and five acres to cantaloupes.

Cantaloupes also are of excellent quality. Rain caused many of them to break open and rot before they ripened.

Don Beggs and associates, his father, W. A. Beggs, and a brother, Gary Beggs, have 55 acres in melons and 10 acres of cantaloupes, on the Lenore Galeener farm, west of Blodgett. They specialize in a new variety known as the Jubilee, averaging 30-35 pounds, and the Charleston Gray of the same size. All are of excellent quality. One week they shipped 80,000 pounds of melons to Michigan and 25,000 pounds to Milwaukee. They are working a crew of ten men.

The Beggs family started their watermelon project three years ago and have increased it each year. They also raise a Jumbo, a large cantaloupe averaging 45-50 pounds per dozen.

Besides the melon projects the Beggs family farms 1,250 acres, of which 650 acres are near Blodgett and the balance near Benton.

CANTALOUPES on the James Brothers farm are placed in a large sack. The melons were selected by Garfield Whitehead, right. Boys are not identified.

The Maternal Health Program in Scott County had a disturbing year. The patients did not like the attitude of the special nursing supervisor; and some of them went through their pregnancies with no pre-natal care because they did not want her in their homes. As a result, with 12 fewer non-white babies born, there were 106 fewer clinic visits in 1966 than in 1965. The number of patients seen each month at the office and the clinic fell from an average of 32 to 23. In December only 8 patients attended--the smallest number seen since the clinic started in 1950.

An average of 4 to 6 mothers who have no pre-natal care are delivered each year in our county. This number had not varied for years. In 1966, 13 failed to receive care. Instead of the usual 8 to 10 who had no seriological test for syphilis during their pregnancy, there were 19.

Of our two excellent midwives, one took a leave of absence to accept employment by the O.E.O. program.

Rules for delivery by a midwife were unchanged. The patient had to have at least 4 pre-natal check-ups, either by a private physician or at the clinic, and be found to have a normal pregnancy. Our private doctors and the hospital gave their usual courteous efficient help if trouble arose.

Author of Novel About Race Relations Honored

Former social worker Bella Rodman was the recent recipient of two awards for "Lions in the Way," her juvenile novel about integration in a Southern public school. The book was recently released in paperback by Camelot Books, the juvenile line of Avon Books. On May 31st, in Chicago, Mrs. Rodman was presented with the Charles W. Follett Award for her worthy contribution to children's literature. Also in May, she received the Nancy Bloch Memorial Award in New York for her contribution to intercultural relations.

Both awards are presented annually. The Follett Award is presented by the Follett Publishing Company, the hardcover publisher of "Lions in the Way." Although the award is usually given to the promising new author of a recently submitted manuscript, the Follett judges broke precedent this year to present the award to Mrs. Rodman after publication of her book. The Nancy Bloch Intercultural Library has presented its Memorial Award annually since 1955. This year, seventh and eighth grade students participated in reading the books submitted by publishers for the award, and their enthusiasm for "Lions in the Way" is said to have tipped the vote of the judges in favor of this title.

Since the hardcover publication of "Lions in the Way," both the book and Mrs. Rodman have gained increasing recognition, particularly among educators. In April, "Lions in the Way" was selected by the American Library Association as one of the "notable books" of 1966. When it was reprinted by Camelot Books on May 20th, it became the first such "notable book" to be rushed into paperback and thus made available

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

The Missouri General Assembly, during the session just completed, passed legislation providing financial support for kindergarten programs, on the same basis as has been provided for grades one through twelve. However, as kindergarten children attend only one-half day sessions, only one-half of the amount of state aid provided for a full-day student, is paid to the school operating the program.

As a basis for computing the cost of a kindergarten program for our schools, we estimate that we would probably enroll about 320 children. The total cost of this program is estimated to be about $65,000.00. This would include transportation, maintenance and upkeep of buildings, teachers' salaries, supplies and equipment. On the basis of 320 students, our district would received about $39,000 in state aid, this would then leave a balance of approximately $25,000 to be raised locally. This would require a $.15 tax levy.

A sound kindergarten program would help to prepare our beginning school youngsters, would get their formal education started one year earlier and would enable them to start on a more-or-less even basis with children in schools where kindergartens are maintained. Our Board of Education has discussed this problem but, has as yet taken no definite step toward its establishment. The only sound approach, in our opinion, will be to submit this issue to the patrons of the district at the next school election to see whether or not we, the taxpayers, believe that the education of our kindergarten-age children is of sufficient importance to spend an additional $.15 per $100 evaluation. We would imagine that such a vote would favor the education of these youngsters, especially as the major portion of the cost comes from the state and as state taxpayers we will support kindergartens in those schools which already are and will operate them. Unless we provide kindergartens for our children, we are paying for something which they are not getting here. If we had to build a building for kindergarten, it would require an outlay much in excess of $.15 tax increase. However, we have asked the city to continue our lease on two buildings at Airport School. (Our lease on this property expires this year.) Two of these buildings have large, well-lighted classrooms and would be very adequate for a kindergarten until such time as the school district is in a financial situation as to provide other facilities.

Most intelligent educators and educationally informed laymen have long recognized that schools should be centers of inquiry rather than only stale purveyors of information. In essence, we should teach people to think for themselves, to develop inquiring minds, to be problem solvers rather than to attempt to fill them with dead, mostly uninteresting and usually unimportant facts. Yet, few schools fall in this category. It is not easy to maintain an atmosphere wherein students are encouraged to think for themselves and to ask questions. The questions are many times embarrassing ones and our society doesn't seem to be able to accept this kind of education. Maybe sometime it will, then we can develop individuals who can adapt to and change their environment for the better.

One of the current criticisms of college education is that many colleges and universities have lost their concern for the individual student. He is a victim, in many cases, of bigness. He becomes, it is charged, merely a hole in an IBM card. Each student must conform to the rules with little or no exception. This charge may be true in some of our schools.

We submit, however, that there are still colleges that are willing to make exceptions to the rule, who look at the student as a person -- a person who needs and problems may differ from those of any other student. Colleges where the student still maintains an identify and where his problems will be considered as such. We believe our own Southeast Missouri State College is one of these. We are aware of the concern which the administration and faculty there, indicates for the student body generally and especially in individual cases where a general rule does not apply and where exceptions are made on the basis of what is helpful and needful for the individual. This, we believe, is a real and commendable distinction.

The Faculty Orientation Workshop will begin Monday with registration of participants from 9:00 - 10:00 A.M. and at 10:00 the group will be greeted by a representative of the Ministerial Alliance; Dr. A. D. Martin, president of the Board of Education; Mayor Kendall Sikes and William Huff, president of the Chamber of Commerce. The speaker for the morning session will be Dr. Neal Neff, an educational specialist in non-graded systems, college lecturer and curriculum advisor. His topic will be: "Creating the School of Today for Tomorrow's Children".

The remainder of the week will be devoted to small group meetings, in which Dr. Neff will also participate for one day, and other session will be devoted to school policies, personnel information, etc. The faculty will devote considerable time to grade-level or departmental discussions, concerning problems peculiar to their area of concern and will devote the last part of the week to preparing their lesson plans, getting their rooms ready in order to start classes on time Monday, August 28th, when school officially opens.

We have had occasion last week to visit the beautiful new Charleston High School. This was during the beginning of their special workshop which they held to acquaint teachers and school officials with some of the programs which will be operated in the new building. This is an impressive school plant, indicates real planning and provision for modern and progressive programs of instruction. The administration, Board of Education and community in Charleston have real reason for pride in this new facility.

We hope that all school age children in the district can begin school the first day of the session, August 28th and, barring illness, attends every day that it is in session thereafter during the year. We can not overemphasize the importance of school attendance. Obviously and simply, a student can not get the benefit or instruction and other educational experiences unless he is present. When he is absent, he and the taxpayer are being cheated. They are not getting the benefit of an educational program provided through the taxpayer's willingness to pay the cost.

I am a Protestant minister. One Sunday I had just finished my sermon and was engaged in greeting my parishioners as they left the church. I was approached by a woman who said, "I always enjoy your sermons and try not to miss any if I can help it." Then she added, "I do hope they will be published in book form some day."

To which I replied jokingly, "Perhaps they will be some day, posthumously."

"Well, I hope that will be real soon," replied the woman fervently.

Cuba Hails Cong Girl Boasting 25 Americans Killed

HAVANA (AP) — One of Cuba's publicized guests is a 17-year-old Viet Cong heroine who claims to have killed 25 American soldiers in less than two years of guerrilla fighting.

Ngo Thi Tuyet, holder of the title "valiant combatant, annihilator of Yankees," is the latest Communist visitor to be glorified by the Cuban government as part of its year-long solidarity campaign with the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong. In Cuba, this is the "year of heroic Vietnam."

Thi Tuyet arrived in Havana in July with dozens of other Vietnamese to attend the Organiztion of Latin-American Solidarity conference at which she was an honorary delegate.

In an interview with the Cuban Communist organ Granma she told this story:

She joined the Viet Cong when she was 11, working first in the underground and becoming a guerrilla fighting in 1965 when "the Yankees sent troops" near her home in the vicinity of Chu Lai.

"First I lost my father, she said. "They killed him. Later they killed my mother, too. There was no alternative but to fight the enemy to avenge my parents and my people."

Watermelon Quality High, Crop Short

By Leo Schade

Thousands of watermelons are going to market. They are of superior quality.

Two top growers are the James Brothers, Joe and J. O., and the W. A. Beggs family of Blodgett.

Watermelons are late this year. Cool, wet early summer weather, stopped growth and continued rain following the cool spell almost produced a crop failure. More recently, three weeks of warm, dry weather, saved the crop, which is short.

The James brothers produce four varieties with emphasis on Blackstone, a small melon averaging about 25 pounds each, the Garrisonian, Charleston Gray and the Yellow Me[illegible], averaging 30-35 pounds.

They have 35 acres planted in melons, and five acres to cantaloupes.

Cantaloupes also are of excellent quality. Rain caused many of them to break open and rot before they ripened.

Don Beggs and associates, his father, W. A. Beggs, and a brother, Gary Beggs, have 55 acres in melons and 10 acres of cantaloupes, on the Lenore Galeener farm, west of Blodgett. They specialize in a new variety known as the Jubilee, averaging 30-35 pounds, and the Charleston Gray of the same size. All are of excellent quality. One week they shipped 80,000 pounds of melons to Michigan and 25,000 pounds to Milwaukee. They are working a crew of ten men.

The Beggs family started their watermelon project three years ago and have increased it each year. They also raise a Jumbo, a large cantaloupe averaging 45-50 pounds per dozen.

Besides the melon projects the Beggs family farms 1,250 acres, of which 650 acres are near Blodgett and the balance near Benton.

CANTALOUPES on the James Brothers farm are placed in a large sack. The melons were selected by Garfield Whitehead, right. Boys are not identified.

Total hours spent doing maternity services, 2306.5.

The Maternal Health Program in Scott County had a disturbing year. The patients did not like the attitude of the special nursing supervisor; and some of them went through their pregnancies with no pre-natal care because they did not want her in their homes. As a result, with 12 fewer non-white babies born, there were 106 fewer clinic visits in 1966 than in 1965. The number of patients seen each month at the office and the clinic fell from an average of 32 to 23. In December only 8 patients attended--the smallest number seen since the clinic started in 1950.

An average of 4 to 6 mothers who have no pre-natal care are delivered each year in our county. This number had not varied for years. In 1966, 13 failed to receive care. Instead of the usual 8 to 10 who had no seriological test for syphilis during their pregnancy, there were 19.

Of our two excellent midwives, one took a leave of absence to accept employment by the O.E.O. program.

Rules for delivery by a midwife were unchanged. The patient had to have at least 4 pre-natal check-ups, either by a private physician or at the clinic, and be found to have a normal pregnancy. Our private doctors and the hospital gave their usual courteous efficient help if trouble arose.

Author of Novel About Race Relations Honored

Former social worker Bella Rodman was the recent recipient of two awards for "Lions in the Way," her juvenile novel about integration in a Southern public school. The book was recently released in paperback by Camelot Books, the juvenile line of Avon Books. On May 31st, in Chicago, Mrs. Rodman was presented with the Charles W. Follett Award for her worthy contribution to children's literature. Also in May, she received the Nancy Bloch Memorial Award in New York for her contribution to intercultural relations.

Both awards are presented annually. The Follett Award is presented by the Follett Publishing Company, the hardcover publisher of "Lions in the Way." Although the award is usually given to the promising new author of a recently submitted manuscript, the Follett judges broke precedent this year to present the award to Mrs. Rodman after publication of her book. The Nancy Bloch Intercultural Library has presented its Memorial Award annually since 1955. This year, seventh and eighth grade students participated in reading the books submitted by publishers for the award, and their enthusiasm for "Lions in the Way" is said to have tipped the vote of the judges in favor of this title.

Since the hardcover publication of "Lions in the Way," both the book and Mrs. Rodman have gained increasing recognition, particularly among educators. In April, "Lions in the Way" was selected by the American Library Association as one of the "notable books" of 1966. When it was reprinted by Camelot Books on May 20th, it became the first such "notable book" to be rushed into paperback and thus made available

About Our Schools

By Lynn Twitty

The Missouri General Assembly, during the session just completed, passed legislation providing financial support for kindergarten programs, on the same basis as has been provided for grades one through twelve. However, as kindergarten children attend only one-half day sessions, only one-half of the amount of state aid provided for a full-day student, is paid to the school operating the program.

As a basis for computing the cost of a kindergarten program for our schools, we estimate that we would probably enroll about 320 children. The total cost of this program is estimated to be about $65,000.00. This would include transportation, maintenance and upkeep of buildings, teachers' salaries, supplies and equipment. On the basis of 320 students, our district would received about $39,000 in state aid, this would then leave a balance of approximately $25,000 to be raised locally. This would require a $.15 tax levy.

A sound kindergarten program would help to prepare our beginning school youngsters, would get their formal education started one year earlier and would enable them to start on a more-or-less even basis with children in schools where kindergartens are maintained. Our Board of Education has discussed this problem but, has as yet taken no definite step toward its establishment. The only sound approach, in our opinion, will be to submit this issue to the patrons of the district at the next school election to see whether or not we, the taxpayers, believe that the education of our kindergarten-age children is of sufficient importance to spend an additional $.15 per $100 evaluation. We would imagine that such a vote would favor the education of these youngsters, especially as the major portion of the cost comes from the state and as state taxpayers we will support kindergartens in those schools which already are and will operate them. Unless we provide kindergartens for our children, we are paying for something which they are not getting here. If we had to build a building for kindergarten, it would require an outlay much in excess of $.15 tax increase. However, we have asked the city to continue our lease on two buildings at Airport School. (Our lease on this property expires this year.) Two of these buildings have large, well-lighted classrooms and would be very adequate for a kindergarten until such time as the school district is in a financial situation as to provide other facilities.

Most intelligent educators and educationally informed laymen have long recognized that schools should be centers of inquiry rather than only stale purveyors of information. In essence, we should teach people to think for themselves, to develop inquiring minds, to be problem solvers rather than to attempt to fill them with dead, mostly uninteresting and usually unimportant facts. Yet, few schools fall in this category. It is not easy to maintain an atmosphere wherein students are encouraged to think for themselves and to ask questions. The questions are many times embarrassing ones and our society doesn't seem to be able to accept this kind of education. Maybe sometime it will, then we can develop individuals who can adapt to and change their environment for the better.

One of the current criticisms of college education is that many colleges and universities have lost their concern for the individual student. He is a victim, in many cases, of bigness. He becomes, it is charged, merely a hole in an IBM card. Each student must conform to the rules with little or no exception. This charge may be true in some of our schools.

We submit, however, that there are still colleges that are willing to make exceptions to the rule, who look at the student as a person -- a person who needs and problems may differ from those of any other student. Colleges where the student still maintains an identify and where his problems will be considered as such. We believe our own Southeast Missouri State College is one of these. We are aware of the concern which the administration and faculty there, indicates for the student body generally and especially in individual cases where a general rule does not apply and where exceptions are made on the basis of what is helpful and needful for the individual. This, we believe, is a real and commendable distinction.

Emerson Electric Plans Expansion

ST. LOUIS (AP)— The Emerson Electric Co. has announced plans for expansion of its electronic and space division at its plant in St. Louis County.

President W. L. Davis said the division will be expanded by more than 125,000 square feet.

Space now assigned to manufacture of fractional-horsepower motors would be devoted to electronics and space efforts.

Davis said the motor production would be shifted to other Emerson plants.

THE Outlook for Business

Paul F. Lorenz
Vice President
Ford Motor Company

In addition to the usual problems of forecasting the future of general business conditions, forecasting the outlook for the automotive industry in the second half of 1967 is especially complicated because of uncertainties associated with such special factors as labor negotiations, expected higher car prices due to safety and emission control equipment, and the effect of changes in the international situation on the current economic and political situation.

General economic prosperity has contributed to an increase in car sales from 5.9 million in 1961 to 9.3 million in 1965 and a leveling off at 9.0 million last year. The 1967 models started off at what appeared to be a 9.0 million annual rate in the fourth quarter of 1966 and then fell to a calculated 8.0 million rate in the first quarter of 1967. This sharp drop in sales between the fourth and first quarters was due in part to accelerated deliveries of fleet sales in the fourth quarter of 1966 which altered the normal fourth to first quarter seasonal pattern. Hence, the "true" normal demand appears to have been at or near the 8.5 million rate since the beginning of the model years last October. This trend in demand was confirmed by April car sales which were at an 8.5 million rate and sales in early May which continued at the 8.5 million rate.

Assuming no serious work stoppage, sales in the second half of 1967 should be buoyed by higher consumer incomes and an upward trend in consumer confidence but dampened somewhat by higher car prices resulting from government requirements for safety and emission control equipment on the 1968 models.

We believe the economy will advance strongly in the second half. The money supply and time deposits have both increased rapidly since January. This monetary expansion is expected to cause business and consumer spending to pick up in the third quarter. Government fiscal policy is also expansionary, as it looks as if the deficit will be greater than budgeted. These positive factors could be dampened if the Administration's request for a 6 per cent surcharge on personal and corporate income taxes is implemented before the end of the year. Manufacturers' inventories are still somewhat high, which will have a continuing dampening effect on production and employment during the next couple of months, but the underlying expansive forces should begin to be reflected in higher sales, production, and employment by the beginning of the third quarter.

Demand for premium models and specialty cars has remained strong, confirming that consumers have the money to buy cars. Also, the cost of credit has dropped, and there appears to be ample credit availability for new car purchases. Taking all of these factors into consideration, we expect car sales in the second half of the year to be at an 8.6 or 8.7 million rate.

Truck sales in the first quarter of calendar 1967 were at a 1.6 million annual rate -- 10 per cent below the previous year. However, truck availability remains at peak levels, and the rate of plant and equipment spending is expected to increase in the last half of the year. Our forecast is for truck sales to continue at about the same rate, resulting in total sales of 1.6 million for calendar year 1967.

In summary, we expect car sales in the last half of the year to exceed the current 8.5 million rate, possibly reaching the 9.0 million rate by the end of the year. Although below the record 1965 and 1966 levels, total car and truck sales for the year should be about 10 million -- about normal for our population and income and a very good year by any standard of comparison.

Report From Washington

Paul C. Jones

On June 28 I asked the Chairman of the Armed Services Subcommittee on Military Preparedness, Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss) to hold full and complete hearings on the effectiveness of current bombing practices in North Vietnam and the number of military targets which have not been touched.

After two days of hearings this last week, Sen. Stennis, speaking for the committee of which I am a member, said that the bombing should be continued and that there are "additional targets --- military targets of value to the enemy -- that could be put on the target list."

The Committee will not draw final conclusions until all of the testimony is completed. We hope the hearings will clear up the conflicts in an information presented to the American people regarding the results of the air attacks against North Vietnam which does not coincide with testimony given previously in executive session to the Armed Services Committee.

These hearings perhaps may serve to break the military, political and economic stalemate now characteristic of so much of our operations in Vietnam; operations which are sapping the treasure of the United States, and what is more important, costing the lives of so many young men.

SCENIC RIVER BILL PASSES

By 84 to 0, the Senate last week voted to preserve the Eleven Point River in Southern Missouri in its natural state. The Wild and Scenic Rivers bill, of which I am a co-sponsor, designates the Eleven Point as a scenic river from its headwaters at Thomasville to the intersection with Highway 142 near the Arkansas border. The bill now goes to the House for consideration.

As passed by the Senate, the bill also would authorize a study of the Gasconade River for future consideration as a scenic river. The difference between the designation of wild and scenic rivers is based on locality and population, with wild rivers found in the most rugged and sparsely populated areas of the country.

Near Tragedy Ends Huck Finn Raft Journey

ST. LOUIS -- The raft voyage of two modern Huckleberry Finns ended abruptly in near - tragedy about 4 a.m. Wednesday when their wood and drum raft slipped under a moored barge near Crystal City, and they were forced to swim, bumping their heads, under two barges.

Rick Moulton, 18, of Keene, N. H., floated unconscious and was not seen for several minutes after coming from under the barges. When found he was hoisted 40 feet up to the dock of the Armour Agricultural Chemical Co., where the barges were moored.

The boy was given artificial mout - to mouth respiration by Armour employes 45 minutes before he regained consciousness. He was admitted to Jefferson Memorial Hospital in Festus for observation.

Lunsford Phillips, 18, University City, immediately was fished out of the water. He was treated and released at the hospital.

Young Phillips said he and Moulton misjudged the width of the channel in early morning fog and drifted too close to the Missouri shore where the barges were moored.

"We knew right away we were going to hit it and there was nothing we could do about it," young Phillips said. "So we took a good deep breath and jumped. The current carried us under the barge and another one behind it.

"I remember bumping along the bottom of the barge as we were pulled along by the tow (current). We finally surfaced, but th raft, didn't" he said.

The two had patterened their trip after one described by Mark Twain in "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn." Huck's fictional trip with the runaway

Also, the cost of credit has dropped, and there appears to be ample credit availability for new car purchases. Taking all of these factors into consideration, we expect car sales in the second half of the year to be at an 8.6 or 8.7 million rate.

Truck sales in the first quarter of calendar 1967 were at a 1.6 million annual rate -- 10 per cent below the previous year. However, truck availability remains at peak levels, and the rate of plant and equipment spending is expected to increase in the last half of the year. Our forecast is for truck sales to continue at about the same rate, resulting in total sales of 1.6 million for calendar year 1967. In summary, we expect car sales in the last half of the year to exceed the current 8.5 million rate, possibly reaching the 9.0 million rate by the end of the year. Although below the record 1965 and 1966 levels, total car and truck sales for the year should be about 10 million -- about normal for our population and income and a very good year by any standard of comparison.

Report From Washington

Paul C. Jones

On June 28 I asked the Chairman of the Armed Services Subcommittee on Military Preparedness, Sen. John Stennis (D-Miss) to hold full and complete hearings on the effectiveness of current bombing practices in North Vietnam and the number of military targets which have not been touched.

After two days of hearings this last week, Sen. Stennis, speaking for the committee of which I am a member, said that the bombing should be continued and that there are "additional targets --- military targets of value to the enemy -- that could be put on the target list."

The Committee will not draw final conclusions until all of the testimony is completed. We hope the hearings will clear up the conflicts in an information presented to the American people regarding the results of the air attacks against North Vietnam which does not coincide with testimony given previously in executive session to the Armed Services Committee.

These hearings perhaps may serve to break the military, political and economic stalemate now characteristic of so much of our operations in Vietnam; operations which are sapping the treasure of the United States, and what is more important, costing the lives of so many young men.

SCENIC RIVER BILL PASSES

By 84 to 0, the Senate last week voted to preserve the Eleven Point River in Southern Missouri in its natural state. The Wild and Scenic Rivers bill, of which I am a co-sponsor, designates the Eleven Point as a scenic river from its headwaters at Thomasville to the intersection with Highway 142 near the Arkansas border. The bill now goes to the House for consideration.

As passed by the Senate, the bill also would authorize a study of the Gasconade River for future consideration as a scenic river. The difference between the designation of wild and scenic rivers is based on locality and population, with wild rivers found in the most rugged and sparsely populated areas of the country.

Near Tragedy Ends Huck Finn Raft Journey

ST. LOUIS -- The raft voyage of two modern Huckleberry Finns ended abruptly in near - tragedy about 4 a.m. Wednesday when their wood and drum raft slipped under a moored barge near Crystal City, and they were forced to swim, bumping their heads, under two barges.

Rick Moulton, 18, of Keene, N. H., floated unconscious and was not seen for several minutes after coming from under the barges. When found he was hoisted 40 feet up to the dock of the Armour Agricultural Chemical Co., where the barges were moored.

The boy was given artificial mout - to mouth respiration by Armour employes 45 minutes before he regained consciousness. He was admitted to Jefferson Memorial Hospital in Festus for observation.

Lunsford Phillips, 18, University City, immediately was fished out of the water. He was treated and released at the hospital.

Young Phillips said he and Moulton misjudged the width of the channel in early morning fog and drifted too close to the Missouri shore where the barges were moored.

"We knew right away we were going to hit it and there was nothing we could do about it," young Phillips said. "So we took a good deep breath and jumped. The current carried us under the barge and another one behind it.

"I remember bumping along the bottom of the barge as we were pulled along by the tow (current). We finally surfaced, but th raft, didn't" he said.

The two had patterened their trip after one described by Mark Twain in "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn." Huck's fictional trip with the runaway

GREENHOUSE

His twin weaknesses were poker and ice cream; he could eat for or five quarts of the latter any day; after winning a fat pot in a poker game, he did a "victory" dance in the street, and a loser tagged him as 'Bajangles,' which was cant of the time for 'happy-go-lucky.'

Thus he acquired the nickname by which he was more widely known than as Luther 'Bill' Robinson, saluted by Mayor Jimmy Walker as "probably the greatest dancer in the world today." That was in 1938.

For half a century he danced across the stages of America, one of the longest and most successful careers in history of show business. His name emerges again, to strike fond memories in theater goers of the gladsome era, in a book "Famous Negro Entertainers of Stage, Screen and TV," by Charlemae Rollins, (Dodd, Mead, $3.50) a volume to be cherished by theater addicts.

A critic wrote of him:

"He expressed as much beauty with his feet as a singer does with his voice, and 'Bojangles' himself said: "I hear the music, and something comes into my head which I just send down to my feet . . . And that's all there is to it. They just won't be still after that."

The stair tap probably was his most memorable contribution to tap dancing. Although there are many versions of how the routine began, his own story is that it came from a drem.

"I was being made a lord by the King of England, and the King was standing at the head of the stairs. Rather than walk, I danced up to receive the honor."

He played with Shirley Temple in "The Little Colonel" and "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," and he gained great distinction in "The Hot Mikado."

He served his country in two wars, the Spanish-American and World War I; on the other hand, and surely in no wise connected with his military accomplishments, he held the record for backward running, a distance of 75 yards in 8 1-5 seconds.

Here also is the story of how Marian Anderson sang a full concert in Carnegie Hall while standing on one foot. Enroute back to this country for the event, she slipped on the ship's deck just before landing in New York, and broke her ankle. She refused to permit the concert to be canceled, and gave instructions that there was to be no mention of her injury.

On the night of her concert, she wore a long dress to hide the cast on her foot; she asked the stagehands to keep the curtains closed while she placed herslef on the grand piano, so that part of her weight could rest on the instrument. Thus she sang the entire concert while standing on one foot.

How a boy from Perdido (Lost) Street in New Olreans came to be known as 'Dippermouth' and later as "Satchelmouth," eventually contracted to 'Sathmo," makes a part of this book. It is the story of Louis Armstrong, whose musical career began with playing the tambourine in a band in the New Orleans Waifs' Home. He had been sent to the home for shooting at a cat with a .38 caliber pistol, the playing Western badman and shooting up and down the street. Before he left the home, he was playing the cornet, after an apprenticeship as bugler; later he became director of the band.

His gravelly voice became a trademark; it was called "froggish" and he popularized "scat" singing, talking in a singsong to melody.

It is to be wished that there had been a chapter on Jimmy Lunceford, the Memphis band leader who gained wide popularity with his records. From 1934 until 1944 his band, in the words of Leonard Feather, "enjoyed a unique reputation as the best disciplined and most showmanly Negro jazz orchestra."

Jimmy Lunceford is bured in Memphis.

Lightest Mexico

by John Abney

MEXICO CITY -- As if it is any wonder, some government officials here are reportedly envious of the United States because of the National Debt.

Mexico has not been able to build up a debt worth mentioning while Washington (probably by fudging) has piled up one slightly higher than the sky. Such status would make any neighbor mad.

A quick review of the history of the U.S. National Debt (referred to hereafter as the party of the first part) plus a capsule explanation of International Financial Systems (referred to hereafter as Mother Pool's Carsick Remedy) should provide a fairly clear picture of what is happening.

The reader will note that the U.S. government went into business back in 1700-something the United States was a backward young nation in that it had no history, royalty nor even major baseball leagues. (There was a group known as the Philadelphia Pirates but they operated from boats.)

At any rate, the most prudent manner of acquiring status seemed to be through a credit system and going into debt. Possibly the initial 50 million amounted to mothing more than expense accounts and random entertainment by a few Congressmen.

Until this time, England, France and Spain were the only nations powerful enough (by international agreement) to maintain a National Debt and catching up with them meant a long and bitter struggle.

But even with such a modest start, Washington managed through a series of clever maneuvers to catch and pass the other world powers. Astute political leaders soon realized that Congressmen alone, in their limited numbers, could not achieve a debt of any signifance. Thus, the Senate was created to speed up the project.

Similarly, the Whigs and Tories were a bit slow so the Democrats and Republicans were invited to initiate a crash program.

Within a relatively short time, the revised system was able to devise a National Debt of 286 billion dollars. (It may be explained at this point that there actually is no debt, since this is money the country reportedly owes itself. For practical and other purposes, however, it is necessary to quote some figure in order to remain a world power.)

There is reliable information available at most bars here to the effect that the amount of the Debt was derived through a simple formula taken from Pizoff's "Handy Guide For Undertakers," published in 1932.

Briefly, the formula (known as "X" or "Common Market Obstacles") is used in this manner:

Bank Assets- -$40,000,000,000
Exports- - - - 20,000,000,000
Political Assassinations- - 25
Commitments- 225,999,999,575
Gobi Desert- - - - - - - - - 400
Total Debt- - -$286,000,000,000

This elementary manner of checking the formula is recommended:

National Debt- $286,000,000,000
(Less) Distance

No need for anyone to be envious of a status as simple as that.

HERE'S WHAT'S NEW IN SHOWER BATH CONTROLS

There was a time when devotees of tub-bathing and those who favored showers came close to feuding. According to the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau, they argued their position in colorfully worded letters-to-the-editor, in syndicated columns and even before state legislatures when building codes came up for review.

Now all that has changed. Most families have members who favor both, and few bathrooms being installed today are without showering equipment as well as bathtubs. Major improvements in equipment helped popularize the shower, especially in recent years, so that if yours is over 5 years old, it's outdated. (It may even be outdated it it's brand new and doesn't include some of the advanced features.)

According to Howard Griesbach of Powers Regulator Co., a firm that helped pioneer all types of liquid flow controls, the upgrading features include the following:

1. BETTER TEMPERATURE CONTROLS. In old-fashioned showers, hot and cold water was mixed manually. Any sudden surge in water supply pressure could change the mixture, giving the user a sudden dousing of icy cold or near-scalding water that could be as dangerous as it was unwelcome. Today's controls are engineered to adjust to pressure change so that, once it's set, the temperature remains constant.

2. BETTER SHOWER HEADS. The old ones were shaped like the rose on a watering can and offered the user just as little control over water flow. Some were so large in diameter that the strong rush of water could knock over an off-balance bather. Today's showerhead has as many as eight different spray settings, ranging from fine, needle and coarse to full-flow. Unlike the old types, which often clogged, today's are self-cleaning.

Marine Chief Points out Enemy's Lack of Successes

KANSAS CITY (AP)— Marine Corps Commandant Wallace Green Jr. said Wednesday the "enemy hasn't been able to successfully complete any major operation they've commenced."

He made the comment in talking about action around the demilitarized zone separating North and South Vietnam.

Greene, in Kansas City to address the 44th annual Marine League meeting, said he observed more progress being made in Vietnam in his most recent visit there than ever before.

The four-star general also said he backed President Johnson in expanding the number of bombing targets in North Vietnam.

Labor Demands At Seasonal Low

The farm rest camp, route two, served 119 migrants last week. Two were enroute to Illinois, nine to Indiana, seven to Michigan, and 101 returned to Texas.

I don't know why they call those one-hour TV shows "specials." To me, a special is when coffee is marked down from 89 cents to 54 cents a pound.

Area labor demands are at a seasonal low and few on-farm workers are employed.

The farm rest camp, route two, served 119 migrants last week. Two were enroute to Illinois, nine to Indiana, seven to Michigan, and 101 returned to Texas.

I don't know why they call those one-hour TV shows "specials." To me, a special is when coffee is marked down from 89 cents to 54 cents a pound.

Car Topics For. Lady Pedal Pushers

WASHING AND WAXING THE CAR

Back in the good old days on a sunny Saturday afternoon, everybody in the neighborhood was out in the back yard polishing up his Marmon or Hupmobile. Paint dulled so quickly then that a car might fade before it got dirty.

Today's automobile paint is wonderfully durable, but road haze from dirt, oil and (you should pardon the expression) air pollution does cause a car to lose some of its luster after a while. Weekly washes and occasional polish jobs are a wise form of prevention for the preservation of auto paint. If nothing else, this is marvelous exercise for the lady of the house. It uses muscles you didn't know you had.

Some car wash compounds, available from most any type of automotive retailer, do such a good job on modern paint finishes that you will not even need to dry the car. These detergents air dry without spotting. They usually come in powdered form, ready to mix with water.

A waxing is advised every six months or so. You can use one of the new, one-step cleaner-waxes which are popular, easy to apply and eliminate a step or two. But now and then you really ought to go all the way and give the car a professional treatment.

To do this, wash the car first and be sure it is thoroughly dry. Then apply a paste or liquid cleaner to remove the tough road film washing compounds that do not penetrate. This will dry to a powdery look. Wipe it off.

Now, if you haven't collapsed from so much unaccustomed stretching and bending, you're all set to wax. Plain automotive paste or liquid wax will do nicely.

A hint or two, may be old hat to the Saturday afternoon car fussers, but helpful if you're new at the game: Avoid waxing in hot sun. Work in small patches. Use plenty of clean, soft cloth --old bath towels are perfect.

An elbow grease saver, especially if you are using good old paste wax: Sprinlking a little cornflour on spots that are difficult to polish will work wonders. The cornflour picks up excessive wax and, with minimum rubbing, brings the paint to a beautiful shine. Also, keep a can of tar remover handy and use it where you need to before you apply the wax.

Sprucing up your car is a great project for a dull weekend - not to mention the benefits to your muscle tone.

honorable man whom we know has spent many long years developing the knowledge and skill required to save the live of the dear one we entrust to his care.

We don't want equality. If there were no men in this world superior to ourselves, no men capable of earning more than we earn, no men capable of preaching finer sermons, organizing greater skill in medicine, in the arts and in literature, and no men of great devotion or spiritual insight, it would be a poor, drab world in which to live. Let us have done with the cult of the common man and begin to recognize and appreciate worth, talent, ability and devotion wherever we find it. Gifted men have carried the world forward on their shoulders. Whatsoever progress we have made, we owe to them. Let us acknowledge it and be grateful for it, and not try to clip their wings and reduce them to the level of mediocrity.

Hearnes Vetoes Bill Providing Extra Judges

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes vetoed a bill Wednesday that was originally drawn up in the Senate to provide an additional circuit judge in Jefferson and Washington counties by appointment after Oct. 13, 1967, when bills become effective, and elected in 1968.

The bill was amended in the House by Rep. Charles Sheehan, D-House Springs (Jefferson County) providing that none of the provisions of the act would become effective until January, 1969.

In stating his reasons for the veto Gov. Hearnes noted the amendment is in total conflict with the provisions of the bill or an election in 1968 and creates a conflict which cannot be reconciled by any reasonable interpretation.

The 23rd Judicial District, which is composed of Jefferson and Washington counties, now has two circuit judges. The Senate bill was introduced by Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, whose senatorial district includes the 23rd Judicial District.

Blackwell and Sheehan have been at loggerheads before on legislation affecting the area they both represent.

Hearnes signed three other new bills. One will permit the director of a mental health or correctional institution to order standard medical, surgical and psychiatric treatment for a patient or inmate without consent.

Pacifists: Enemies of Peace

We wish once more to register our strong disapproval of all the publicity given to the avowed enemies of our country and to their treasonable activities among us. Before me as I prepare this column is a picture of Herbert Aptheker, our number one Communist, along with Tom Hayden, one of the founders of Students for a Democratic Society, and fellow travelers and Communist fronters Staughton Lynd and A. J. Muste. (The two latter I am sorry to say are members of the Society of Friends and thus my co-religionists, but I couldn't disapprove more of their activities.)

These men have been widely pictured throughout America and have received an enormous amount of newspaper space. They want to see our country defeated. They are a part of the group who defy our laws and carry Vietcong flags in parades. They look with favor upon draft card burners and obstructionist tactics designed to thwart the activities of our government in Vietnam, resulting in the slaughter of more of our boys.

Our Communist enemies now openly point to the fact that there is division in our country and that they need not assemble around a conference table to talk peace, for sooner or later the opposition here will take us out of the war. Just as the emergency peace campaign in Europe was one of the very important factors in inducing Chamberlain to agree to the sell-out in Munich, thus bringing on further aggression and leading to World War II, so our own pacifists are undermining the will and determination of our government and large numbers of our people to prosecute the war to a successful conclusion in Vietnam. A back-down there would bring further aggression and eventually war for survival. The greatest enemies of achieving peace in the modern world are the pacifists, who insist upon neutralizing the efforts of government to establish and maintain peace on the basis of justice throughout the world. In time of war such activity ought not to be tolerated. It gives aid and comfort to the enemy and causes him to think with good reason that if he persists a little longer we will back down and he will win. That has always been considered treason, and it ought to be so considered now.

EQUALITY: THE LEVEL OF MEDIOCRITY

Most of us are conscious of the fact that the world contains multitudes of men who are far abler than ourselves. Far from making us jealous or unhappy, we are exceedingly grateful for them. We enjoy great music, but we could not write it, as Beethoven, Bach, Brahms, Chopin, Tchaikovsky, Schubert, Mozart, Verdi and a host of others have done. We can play a few instruments, but not like Liszt, Paderewski, Kreisler, Heifetz, Rubinstean and many other immortals who have brought heaven down to earth with their superb excellence.

Our libraries are filled with good books, the treasuries of history, literature and culture. We take great delight in reading Shakespeare's plays and Tennyson's poetry, but we could not have written such marvelous works. We are fortunate that they could. Suppose we had no great minds such as these! How fortunate that we can ride along with them, enjoying their creations as if they were our own. Why should we be jealous of them? Rather we should be thankful and pay tribute to them.

Our devotion and spiritual perception is vastly inferior to that of a Saint Paul, a Saint Francis of Assisi, a Saint Augustine or a Saint Thomas Aquinas, but we can soar up into the heavens on the spiritual power generated by a host of saints and prophets.

We enjoy our automobile, riding about the world in jet planes, our radio, television, and stereophonic music. We could not have developed the great industrial giants of our country that have lifted the burden of toil from our backs and emancipated us from the handicraft age into a degree of luxury unknown by kings a few centuries ago, but we can enjoy the results of the efforts of the great men who created these things for our enjoyment.

When taking a loved one to the hospital, who wants a common, average surgeon? We all want a doctor, not only with superior skill, but a conscientious,

Viet Youths Forsake Riots For Positive Political Work

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Many young men and women in South Vietnam have of late decided that parades, protest marches and demonstrations aren't the most effective way to get better government.

Groups representing thousands of young people met recently in Saigon and decided "it is no longer useful for the youth of Vietnam to take to the streets to shout cheers or boos or to foster ineffective criticism."

Instead, these youth decided to get into the coming presidential and legislative political campaigns.

Teams of these young people will go to the thousands of South Vietnam's hamlets to explain the election laws. They'll explain to people exactly how the polls work. They'll aim to stir discussions that will get people to the polls. They'll make certain that the people know their voting rights and that all candidates' rights are not shaded.

Youth units in each province will arrange for candidate debates so that the villagers will hear "both sides" of the issues.

In the weeks before the election, youth "watchdog" teams will try to discover and expose any shady deals or "undue pressure" tactics carried out to influence the voters.

On election day, these same watchdog teams will check the polls to make certain the men running the voting places do an honest job.

This movement is likely to set off some fireworks if there are generals unwilling to accept the results of the elections.

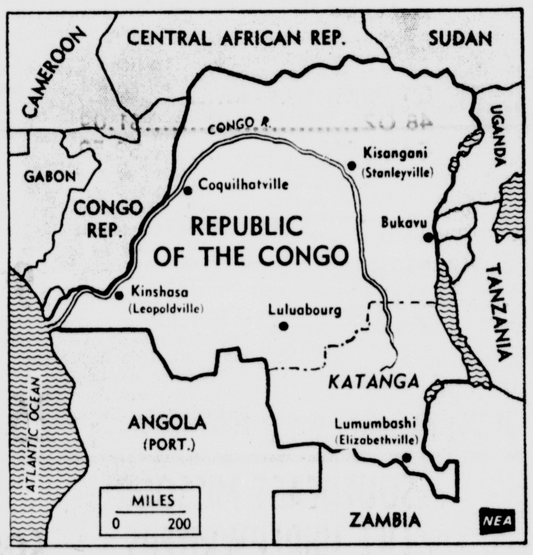

If some generals attempt to nullify the elections and attempt to take over illegally the powers of the men elected to the presidency and the South Vietnam legislature, it is unlikely that the young people who will have pushed so hard for honest and open elections would stand still. A continued rule by a military junta would thus meet opposition among these organized youths.

The ability and willingness of young Vietnamese to stand up against pressure showed up in the meetings of the assemblymen elected to write South Vietnam's new constitution. On a number of occasions, these assemblymen disagreed with views of the military junta. On these occasions, the assemblymen did not bow to the military's wishes. They stood firm and achieved their objectives. One can quarrel with parts of the new constitution, but it was not written by the military.

What will happen if there is a clash between the military junta and the youth groups is certainly not clear today. But one thing is certain. Great numbers of the young people of South Vietnam have decided that protest marches and street riots are not the answer to Vietnam's problems.

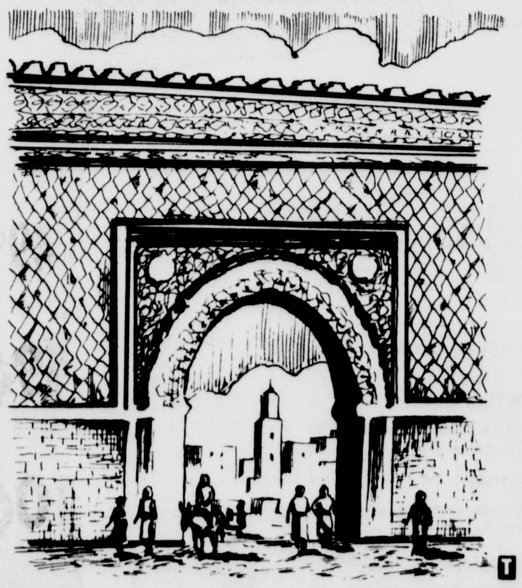

They've decided, instead, that what's needed is for them, the youth, to become workers in a positive program to get better elections and better government. They're going to take part in the tough, monotonous, undramatic tasks of precinct work and getting out the vote. This isn't going to get them the headlines or television coverage that a riot or sit-in would provide.

It's a very healthy sign.

CONGO CRISIS is again on the United Nations agenda. President Joseph Mobutu has appealed to the world body to halt recruitment of foreign mercenaries for an alleged plot seeking his overthrow. Trouble spots are Kisangani and Bukavu, where planeloads of mercenaries were reported to have landed following kidnaping of exiled former Premier Moise Tshombe.

175,000 JEWS STILL LIVE IN ARAB AND MOSLEM LANDS

Although 100,000 Jewish children and adults have managed to move from Algeria to France, while thousands of others escaped to Israel, South America and elsewhere, 175,000 others are still stranded in Algeria, Iran, Morocco and Tunisia.

Of these people still in Arab and Moslem lands about 50,000 receive an average of $100 per year in help from money contributed through the United Jewish Appeal. The money goes for such things as school feeding, medical aid, welfare services, care of the aged and food parcels.

A donation to help these people may be mailed to United Jewish Appeal at 1290 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019.

JEWS FLEE TERROR

Jewish survivors from Iraq owe their lives to generous Americans whose contributions helped bring them to Israel. You can help other Jews, still in Arab lands, move to Israel. The move costs $400 per Jew. Contributions may be mailed to: United Jewish Appeal, 1290 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019.

More than 400 works have been written about Billy the Kid, including movies, plays, poems, novels, and at least one ballet.

PERSONAL NOTICE

Will the person, who, on the evening of September 2, 1966, saw a gasoline truck stopped on U. S. Highway #60, between Charleston, Missouri, and Wyatt, Missouri, help? You were on your way to visit in Sikeston at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital when you just barely avoided colliding with this truck. Coy Hayden and his young son were not as fortunate as you. They were severely injured when they collided with this truck.

If you saw this truck - please telephone GRanite 1-1207 or GRanite 1-4584, Sikeston, Missouri, collect and let me talk with you.

Viet Youths Forsake Riots For Positive Political Work

By RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)

Many young men and women in South Vietnam have of late decided that parades, protest marches and demonstrations aren't the most effective way to get better government.

Groups representing thousands of young people met recently in Saigon and decided "it is no longer useful for the youth of Vietnam to take to the streets to shout cheers or boos or to foster ineffective criticism."

Instead, these youth decided to get into the coming presidential and legislative political campaigns.

Teams of these young people will go to the thousands of South Vietnam's hamlets to explain the election laws. They'll explain to people exactly how the polls work. They'll aim to stir discussions that will get people to the polls. They'll make certain that the people know their voting rights and that all candidates' rights are not shaded.

Youth units in each province will arrange for candidate debates so that the villagers will hear "both sides" of the issues.

In the weeks before the election, youth "watchdog" teams will try to discover and expose any shady deals or "undue pressure" tactics carried out to influence the voters.

On election day, these same watchdog teams will check the polls to make certain the men running the voting places do an honest job.

This movement is likely to set off some fireworks if there are generals unwilling to accept the results of the elections.

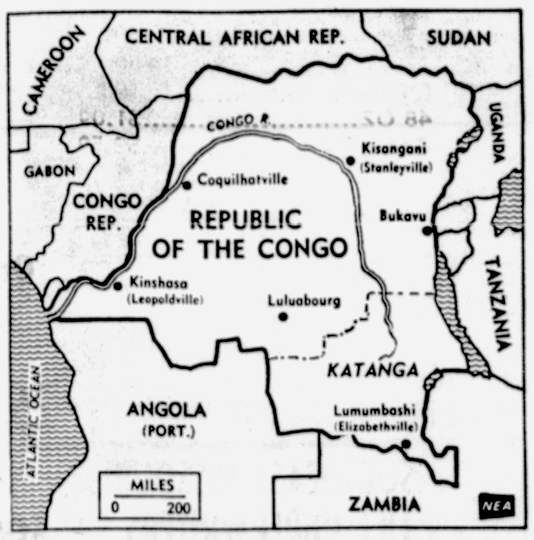

If some generals attempt to nullify the elections and attempt to take over illegally the powers of the men elected to the presidency and the South Vietnam legislature, it is unlikely that the young people who will have pushed so hard for honest and open elections would stand still. A continued rule by a military junta would thus meet opposition among these organized youths.

The ability and willingness of young Vietnamese to stand up against pressure showed up in the meetings of the assemblymen elected to write South Vietnam's new constitution. On a number of occasions, these assemblymen disagreed with views of the military junta. On these occasions, the assemblymen did not bow to the military's wishes. They stood firm and achieved their objectives. One can quarrel with parts of the new constitution, but it was not written by the military.

What will happen if there is a clash between the military junta and the youth groups is certainly not clear today. But one thing is certain. Great numbers of the young people of South Vietnam have decided that protest marches and street riots are not the answer to Vietnam's problems.

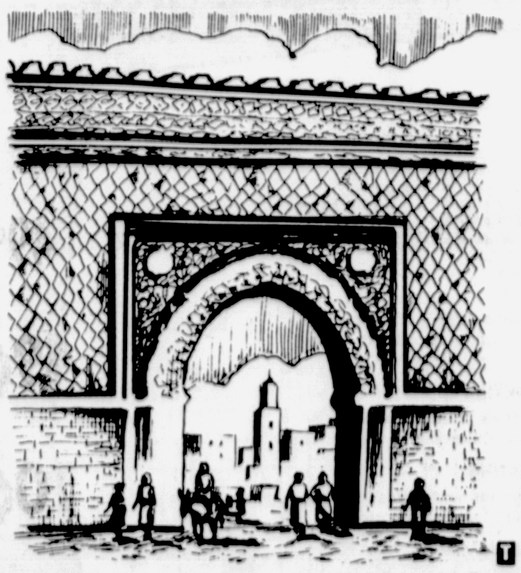

They've decided, instead, that what's needed is for them, the youth, to become workers in a positive program to get better elections and better government. They're going to take part in the tough, monotonous, undramatic tasks of precinct work and getting out the vote. This isn't going to get them the headlines or television coverage that a riot or sit-in would provide.

It's a very healthy sign.

CONGO CRISIS is again on the United Nations agenda. President Joseph Mobutu has appealed to the world body to halt recruitment of foreign mercenaries for an alleged plot seeking his overthrow. Trouble spots are Kisangani and Bukavu, where planeloads of mercenaries were reported to have landed following kidnaping of exiled former Premier Moise Tshombe.

175,000 JEWS STILL LIVE IN ARAB AND MOSLEM LANDS

Although 100,000 Jewish children and adults have managed to move from Algeria to France, while thousands of others escaped to Israel, South America and elsewhere, 175,000 others are still stranded in Algeria, Iran, Morocco and Tunisia.

Of these people still in Arab and Moslem lands about 50,000 receive an average of $100 per year in help from money contributed through the United Jewish Appeal. The money goes for such things as school feeding, medical aid, welfare services, care of the aged and food parcels.

A donation to help these people may be mailed to United Jewish Appeal at 1290 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019.

JEWS FLEE TERROR

Jewish survivors from Iraq owe their lives to generous Americans whose contributions helped bring them to Israel. You can help other Jews, still in Arab lands, move to Israel. The move costs $400 per Jew. Contributions may be mailed to: United Jewish Appeal, 1290 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y. 10019.

More than 400 works have been written about Billy the Kid, including movies, plays, poems, novels, and at least one ballet.

TRUSTEE'S SALE

WHEREAS, John P. Watkins, a single person by a certain Deed of Trust dated the 2nd day of February, 1961, and recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds for the County of Scott and the State of Missouri, in Book 126, Page 433-436 conveyed to the undersigned Trustee the following described real estate situated in the County of Scott and State of Missouri, to wit:

All of Lot Numbered Ninety-four (94) of Jones' Subdivision, Scott County, Missouri, as shown in Plat Book No. 7 at Page 26 in the office of the Recorder of Deeds of Scott County, Missouri. Subject to all rights of way and easements, if any, affecting the same.

Which conveyance was made to the undersigned in trust to secure the payment of a certain Promissory Note in said Deed specified; and

WHEREAS, on the 16th day of April, 1962, Leonard Moran and Peggy V. Moran, his wife, assumed and agreed to pay the debt secured by said Deed of Trust, and

WHEREAS, said note is now past due and remains unpaid default having been made in the payment of said note.

NOW, THEREFORE, at the request of the legal holder of said Note and in pursuance of the conditions of said Deed of Trust, the undersigned Trustee will sell the property above described at public vendue to the highest bidder for cash at the Main Front door of the Circuit Court House in the City of Benton, Scott County, Missouri, on August 22, 1967, between the hours of 9:00 A.M., and 5:00 P.M., for the purpose of satisfying said indebtedness and the cost of executing this turst.

PERSONAL NOTICE

Will the person, who, on the evening of September 2, 1966, saw a gasoline truck stopped on U. S. Highway #60, between Charleston, Missouri, and Wyatt, Missouri, help? You were on your way to visit in Sikeston at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital when you just barely avoided colliding with this truck. Coy Hayden and his young son were not as fortunate as you. They were severely injured when they collided with this truck.

If you saw this truck - please telephone GRanite 1-1207 or GRanite 1-4584, Sikeston, Missouri, collect and let me talk with you.

Flooding Has Long Plagued Fairbanks

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Throughout its history, first as a brawling mining camp and then as a major distribution point for the vast Alaskan interior, Fairbanks has done almost yearly battle with the Chena River.

Virtually every year, almost like clockwork, the Chena has lapped to the top of its banks with winter snow melting under sunny summer skies.

This year was no exception, but drenching rains that continued unabated through four long days and nights, gave the river punch it had never had before and it sent Fairbanks reeling under the impact.

Water is everywhere.

It surges against buildings and homes and cars and trucks, abandoned by their owners as they sought to escape the rapidly rising water.

The main streets of Fairbanks, the side streets and the main highways leading in and out of town, are strewn with abandoned vehicles, literally hundreds of them, of all shapes and sizes.

Some lie in water midway up to their doors, some have only their tops showing above the brown sea that has engulfed Fairbanks.

Debris of a thousand descriptions floats down the streets turned into rivers — oil drums, new lumber and old lumber, a liquor bottle, a box, a partially inflated football, a half-sunken couch which once graced someone's living room.

At Fairbanks International Airport, the main building is crammed to the rafters with men, women and children driven from their homes.

They wait-silent and unsmiling for the most part— and try to catch a nap as they can, on hard plastic chairs, on benches, on the bare floor.

River boats, the long, narrow, shallow-draft craft used on interior Alaskan streams, darted everywhere, carrying evacuees to higher ground.

Above the ground, helicopters kept the sky alive with coughing engine sounds as they scurried about rescuing the stranded and carrying rescue officials from place to place as they were needed.

When night fell on Fairbanks, it left one with an eerie feeling of being alone on the sea at night. The water muffled all but a very few sounds.

THE AIR FORCE THUNDERBIRDS in action demonstrating precision flying in F-100 Super Saber jet fighters. The six-pilot team will be the highlight of the air show-open house Sept. 2 celebrating Scott air force base's golden Anniversary.

Thrills Await Visitors at Scott Air Force Base Open House and Sky Show

Celebrating 50 years service with a day-long open house and six-hour air show, the base has gone all-out to invite world-famous and nationally-known attractions--some never before seen in the midwest.

Acts like the precision flying Thunderbirds in their six Super Sabre jets; the army's free-falling Golden Knights' the comical "Flying Professor," and Ernie Opp--a pilot who brings back the barnstorming days as he literally twists and bends his small plane from one impossible maneuver to the next; and many others will headline the air show. St. Louis celebrity, Bob Hardy, will keep spectators informed of events.

On the ground, the Jefferson Rifles will march to lively tunes from the Bagpipers, members of the air force band. And spectators will see exhibits ranging from the air force official art display to the atomic energy commission's explanation of nuclear power in space. The public will be able to tour parked aircraft on display--enter the cavernous C-141 Starlifter, jet cargo plane; peer into the cockpit of the famed Phantom war plane; and wee what it's like inside a flying hospital.

Gates will open to the public at 10 a.m. Refreshments will be available. Nearly all displays and exhibits will be shown along the main flight line and inside the large hangars of the base, several blocks from the main entrance to Scott on highway 158. The art collection display will be seen in the base gymnasium about one block from the flight line.

Acres of free parking and plenty of refreshments will be available. Scott Air Force Base is on highway 158 near Belleville.

If You Were the Judge

Leftovers to Patron

By Jack Strauss, LL. B.

"Let us be couth, madam," the snooty waiter growled. "This is a dignified restaurant. What you don't finish, you've got to leave on your plate."

"Not on your life," was Vera's stubborn response. "The food was expensive and I paid for it. Therefore, it's mine and I can take it home with me."

The dispute had to be resolved in court.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you have permitted Vera to take home her left overs?

This is how the judge ruled: He sided with Vera. He held that food served and paid for in a restaurant constitutes a sale; that the food served to Vera, therefore, belonged to Vera and and she had a right to take it home if she so desired.

The storm Sunday afternoon proved disastrous to Mr. Alexander, who lives on a farm a few miles south of Buckeye, when lightning struck and burned his large barn, killed four mules and crippled three so badly it was necessary to kill them.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Lee are the proud parents of a fine boy born Monday of this week.

Fred, Henry and Herman Schroeder and Gus Daus of Cape Girardeau, and Charles Bush of Poplar Bluff, arrived Monday to work on the new Scott County Milling Co.'s office building.

H. S. Harper has resigned his position as manager of the grocery department of the Farmers Supply Co., and will go to farming on his place near Noxall. Si is an industrious young man and we feel sure that he has made no mistake in taking this step. Good luck to him.

The grounds surrounding the local high school and gymnasium is one of the prettiest spots in Sikeston. The flowers and shrubbery, set off by the evenly mowed grass, is an ample reward for the Woman's Club, in cooperation with Mr. Hayden, and the school board's work.

Eight couples of Sikeston young folks, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Trowbridge, motored to Keeners Springs, north of Poplar Bluff, last Saturday and spent a very enjoyable night under the shelter of cars and a lean-to.

Miss Hyacinth Sheppard entertained Wednesday afternoon with a party in honor of her little nieces and nephews, Lavinia, Ray Allen, Raynette and Miller Moll of Cairo.

A picturesque library of colonial design, 50 feet by 50 feet, will stand on North Kingshighway, just north off Center street in the near future. The edifice will have a main floor for patrons and a basement with an auditorium type club room seating 200 people.

A lease was signed Thursday morning for the Butane Gas Corp. to erect an 18,000 - gallon bulk storage tank and a warehouse on the Missouri Pacific Railroad right-of-way just west of the crossing that leads from Highway 60 to the Cotton Oil Mill, according to J. E. Robinson, railway agent.

Coach "Peg" Mahew checked out 41 suits to aspirants for the .937 version of the Sikeston Bulldogs and practice was begun Monday evening under the lights.

Kentucky Serviceman Thinks Vietnam Needs Bluegrass

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Warrant Officer Russell Preston, a native of Kentucky, yearned for the sight of some of that wonderful grass from the Blue Grass State as he gazed on the expanse of bare ground at his Mekong delta base camp in Vietnam.

So Preston, attached to the 9th Infantry Division, wrote a plea to Kentucky's governor, Edward T. Breathitt:

"I would like to have some grass seed. Not the ordinary, run-of-the-mill grass seed common to the other 49 states, but the grass seed of the exceptional state— that is to say, Suh, Kentucky Bluegrass seed."

Breathitt, described as touched by the letter, turned the matter over to his special assistant for agriculture, Hayden Timmons. Timmons figures he can accommodate the Kentuckian far from home.

"The Ninety and Nine"

"The Ninety and Nine," a novel about the U. S. Navy in World War II and a recent Avon acquisition, has been purchased by producer Sam Katzman to film as a motion picture for his own company, Four Leaf Productions. Shooting will start along the California coast in Spring, 1968. Mr. Katzman, whose current film release is "The Love-Ins" for Columbia Pictures, expects "The Ninety and Nine" to be one of the biggest budgeted pictures he has shot -- costing upwards of $2,000,000.

The novel, by William Brinkley, the author of "Don't Go Near the Water," was published by Doubleday last year and was chosen by the Book-of-the-Month Club, Reader's Digest Condensed Books, and the Literary Guild. Foreign rights were sold in seven countries, and Avon Books bought the paperback rights. The paperback edition will be released in November, 1967, and promoted as Avon's featured title for that month.

Ann Landers

Pets Aren't People

Dear Ann Landers: I had a bridge game last night and invited a substitute. The woman hadn't been in my home 20 minutes when she received a phone call. It seems her poodle was upset when she left the house and her husband couldn't quiet her. We heard him say, "Madame Lazonga is having a nervous breakdown. Please speak to her for a few minutes."

The woman talked to that dog for 12 minutes. I could feel my blood pressure mounting. After she hung up she said, "Madame Lazonga is just like a child. You girls who have children know what it's like when a youngster won't go to sleep."

I resented the interruption, but I resented the comparison even more. Will you comment please? -- STILL STEAMING

Dear Still: Well, here we go again. Every time I say pets are pets and should not be confused with people, about 20,000 animal lovers accuse me of being a mean old woman, a Communist and mentally ill. I will simply say there is a line to be drawn and rational people know where to draw it.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a letter from a wife who was mad because her husband wouldn't roll up the tube of toothpaste. Then a nitwit wrote that she was ready to leave her husband because he kept saying "without" instead of "unless." Another nut was hysterical because her husband wouldn't let her see him without his dentures. She felt "left out."

An old maid wants to call the police because her neighbor hangs out the wash on Sunday. A teen-ager gripes because Mom flicks the porch light off and on while she is saying good night to her boy friend. A young kid screams his head off because he spent $14 on a girl and she didn't kiss him good night.

The trouble with these lunatics is they have never had any real trouble in their lives. Why do people write about such trifles anyway? And why do you print such nonsense? - - OTTAWA MALE

Dear Ot: Letters like the ones you describe serve a useful purpose because they help put the two-bit, penny ante gripes in proper perspective. Now what is YOUR problem, Mister?

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 13-year-old girl who lives in Wisconsin. Isn't it dumb for Mother's Day to fall on the first day of the fishing season? Every Mother's Day as far back as I can remember, my mother has sat home while her corsage wilted in the refrigerator, and Dad went fishing. Is there a solution to this annual problem? -- EAU CLAIRE READER

Dear Eau Claire: From what I know about Wisconsin fishermen, it would be easier to change Mother's Day than to get them to stay home. Celebrate Mother's Day one day early -- on Saturday --and tell your Dad that's HIS Father's Day present.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50¢ in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Lots of Calories

The Prayer From The Upper Room

"Pass no judgment, and you will not be judged. For as you judge others, so will yourselves be judged." (Matthew 7:1-2, NEB)

PRAYER: O God, let the mirror of Thy Word reveal me to myself. May the Holy Spirit remind me how I look. Teach me to look to Christ as my example and live in His spirit rather than being critical of what others look like. In Jesus' name. Amen.

Music Reading Urged For First Graders

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Children should be taught to read music when they begin the first grade, says Edwin Ara Movsesian.

Movsesian, coordinator of music and reading for San Bernardino County, says that children taught to read music will read the written word better and faster.

Words to the Star Spangled Banner, written by Frances Scott Key, were first printed on handbills and distributed to Baltimore citizens.

Mr. Katzman, whose current film release is "The Love-Ins" for Columbia Pictures, expects "The Ninety and Nine" to be one of the biggest budgeted pictures he has shot -- costing upwards of $2,000,000.

The novel, by William Brinkley, the author of "Don't Go Near the Water," was published by Doubleday last year and was chosen by the Book-of-the-Month Club, Reader's Digest Condensed Books, and the Literary Guild. Foreign rights were sold in seven countries, and Avon Books bought the paperback rights. The paperback edition will be released in November, 1967, and promoted as Avon's featured title for that month.

Ann Landers

Pets Aren't People

Dear Ann Landers: I had a bridge game last night and invited a substitute. The woman hadn't been in my home 20 minutes when she received a phone call. It seems her poodle was upset when she left the house and her husband couldn't quiet her. We heard him say, "Madame Lazonga is having a nervous breakdown. Please speak to her for a few minutes."

The woman talked to that dog for 12 minutes. I could feel my blood pressure mounting. After she hung up she said, "Madame Lazonga is just like a child. You girls who have children know what it's like when a youngster won't go to sleep."

I resented the interruption, but I resented the comparison even more. Will you comment please? -- STILL STEAMING

Dear Still: Well, here we go again. Every time I say pets are pets and should not be confused with people, about 20,000 animal lovers accuse me of being a mean old woman, a Communist and mentally ill. I will simply say there is a line to be drawn and rational people know where to draw it.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a letter from a wife who was mad because her husband wouldn't roll up the tube of toothpaste. Then a nitwit wrote that she was ready to leave her husband because he kept saying "without" instead of "unless." Another nut was hysterical because her husband wouldn't let her see him without his dentures. She felt "left out."

An old maid wants to call the police because her neighbor hangs out the wash on Sunday. A teen-ager gripes because Mom flicks the porch light off and on while she is saying good night to her boy friend. A young kid screams his head off because he spent $14 on a girl and she didn't kiss him good night.

The trouble with these lunatics is they have never had any real trouble in their lives. Why do people write about such trifles anyway? And why do you print such nonsense? - - OTTAWA MALE

Dear Ot: Letters like the ones you describe serve a useful purpose because they help put the two-bit, penny ante gripes in proper perspective. Now what is YOUR problem, Mister?

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 13-year-old girl who lives in Wisconsin. Isn't it dumb for Mother's Day to fall on the first day of the fishing season? Every Mother's Day as far back as I can remember, my mother has sat home while her corsage wilted in the refrigerator, and Dad went fishing. Is there a solution to this annual problem? -- EAU CLAIRE READER

Dear Eau Claire: From what I know about Wisconsin fishermen, it would be easier to change Mother's Day than to get them to stay home. Celebrate Mother's Day one day early -- on Saturday --and tell your Dad that's HIS Father's Day present.

Too many couples go from matrimony to acrimony. Don't let your marriage flop before it gets started. Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage -- What To Expect." Send your request to Ann Landers in care of your newspaper enclosing 50¢ in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Lots of Calories

Man's daily energy output averages about 3,500 calories; that of the hummingbird leading its ordinary life of eating, flying, perching and sleeping, is equivalent to approximately 155,000 calories if figured for a 170-pound man.

The Prayer

From The Upper Room

"Pass no judgment, and you will not be judged. For as you judge others, so will yourselves be judged." (Matthew 7:1-2, NEB)

PRAYER: O God, let the mirror of Thy Word reveal me to myself. May the Holy Spirit remind me how I look. Teach me to look to Christ as my example and live in His spirit rather than being critical of what others look like. In Jesus' name. Amen.

Music Reading Urged For First Graders

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Children should be taught to read music when they begin the first grade, says Edwin Ara Movsesian.

Movsesian, coordinator of music and reading for San Bernardino County, says that children taught to read music will read the written word better and faster.

Words to the Star Spangled Banner, written by Frances Scott Key, were first printed on handbills and distributed to Baltimore citizens.

Today In U. S. History

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1940, Germany announced a total blockade of Britain in World War II.

On this date:

In 1786, the hero of the Alamo, Davey Crockett, was born.

In 1807, Robert Fulton's steamboat, the Clermont, made its first run up the Hudson River from New York to Albany.

In 1940, Wendell Willkie accepted the Republican nomination for president, in a speech at Elwood, Ind.

In 1948, Alger Hiss, appearing before the House Committee on Un-American Activities, emphatically denied that he was a Communist.

Ten years ago — The United Auto Workers Union said it would reshape its wage demands if car makers would reduce prices $100 per car.

TIZZY — by Kate Osann

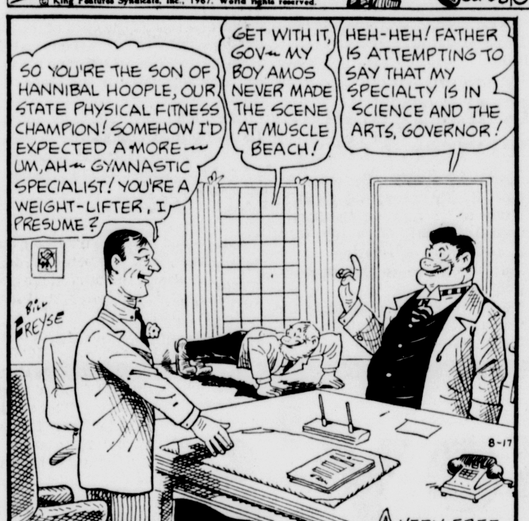

"I don't think Father should make me wait a whole week for my allowance. After all, in summertime the days are LONGER!"

"Lost his class ring, did he? Have you looked in the refrigerator?"

for permission to list gross receipts taxes apart from service charges on monthly telephone bills in Missouri. The company proposes to lower certain basic rates before adding the special city taxes with the net effect of an increase in Bell's revenues of about $1,800,000.

Gross receipts taxes, or franchise taxes, are assessed by cities as a source of revenue.

The new tariffs will go into effect Sept. 13 unless the state public service commission finds reasons, not apparent at this time, for suspension.

Billy Walker vs. Rudolph Chittenden, ACTION ON NOTE.

A company that manufactures air conditions was hosting a technical society luncheon. Directly behind the president of the firm were air conditioners of a competing brand. When news photographers arrived, the president realized the irony of the situation but made the best of it. Pictures in the newspapers the next day clearly showed him fanning himself with a menu in front of his rival's equipment.

Wilfredo A. Campos

A cowboy with nothing much to do ambled into a blacksmith's shop and picked up a horseshoe without realizing it had just come from the forge. Instantly, he dropped it, shoved his seared hand into his pocket and tried to act nonchalant.

"Kinda hot, wasn't it?" chided the blacksmith.

"Nope," replied the cowpoke, "Just don't take me long to look at a horseshoe."

for permission to list gross receipts taxes apart from service charges on monthly telephone bills in Missouri. The company proposes to lower certain basic rates before adding the special city taxes with the net effect of an increase in Bell's revenues of about $1,800,000.

Gross receipts taxes, or franchise taxes, are assessed by cities as a source of revenue.

The new tariffs will go into effect Sept. 13 unless the state public service commission finds reasons, not apparent at this time, for suspension.
